TRIPLE CHRISTMAS PRESENT

Egyptian And Israeli Agreement Is Suez Key

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger believes the Suez Canal can be reopened soon after agreement has been reached on disengagement of Egyptian and Israeli forces, according to high U.S. sources.

Kissinger meets with President Nixon at the White House today to report on his two-week tour of Europe and the Middle East which culminated in the opening of the Middle East peace conference in Geneva. He returned late Saturday and talked by telephone with the President yesterday.

High officials who traveled with Kissinger said yesterday the secretary is confident that the Geneva conference will produce substantial results on the disengagement of forces by late January. According to reports from Switzerland, Kissinger is expected to return to Geneva in late January for further talks with his counterparts from the Soviet Union, Egypt, Israel and Jordan.

No real progress is expected in the disengagement talks between Egypt and Israel until after the Israeli elections Dec. 31.

Once the initial disengagement can be worked out and a demilitarized zone established, work can get underway on reopening of the Suez Canal quickly, the high ranking officials believe.

The canal has been closed since the 1967 war, and both the Soviet Union and the United States appear interested in reopening it. Opening the canal is thought by U. S. officials to be one of the major reasons behind Soviet involvement in the conference.

It would give Russia quicker naval access to the Indian Ocean and easier movement between the Mediterranean and South Asia.

One unresolved problem is what sort of access Israel will have to a reopened Suez Canal. U. S. officials who traveled with Kissinger believe Israel would be allowed to receive cargo through the canal before a final peace settlement, but would probably not get shipping rights until after a full peace settlement.

Nixon Returns To Capital To Meet With Kissinger

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon and his family completed a weekend at Camp David today and headed back to the White House by car. He scheduled a Christmas eve meeting with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger on the Middle East.

Nixon left the mountaintop retreat in Maryland by motorcade around mid-morning for the 70-mile drive.

The Nixon's planned to spend Christmas in the White House where they will open gifts in the morning and then eat a turkey dinner.

White House aides were unable to say whether Nixon would fly to Key Biscayne, Fla., on Wednesday as he had hoped for a 10-day holiday. Nixon has passed the word that he would not permit the usual "pool" of reporters and cameramen to accompany him to Florida and that they must get there on their own.

Kissinger, who returned Saturday night from a 15-day, 13-nation trip to Europe and the Middle East, talked with Nixon by telephone yesterday.

Nixon also had before him a number of bills passed by Congress before adjournment, but not the emergency energy legislation he had hoped to receive to deal with the energy shortages.

A $5.8 billion foreign aid measure including $2.6 billion for Israel.

A bill increasing Social Security benefits by 11 per cent for retired and disabled workers, widows and dependent children.

Bananas Behind Prison Violence

It was a fuss over fruit cocktail versus bananas that touched off the weeklong series of incidents at San Quentin's adjustment center which culminated yesterday in the teargassing of six convicts, an official said today.

The violence, which has included the wounding of two guards, has been confined to the center, where the prison's most difficult inmates are housed, according to William D. Nyberg, information officer.

"They haven't told us" what the beef is about, Nyberg said today, when asked what the prisoners were protesting. It is not the general lockup at the prison, he said, because the adjustment center inmates were already in a lockup status before tightened security was ordered for the general prison population.

The trouble at the adjustment center began a week ago, Nyberg said, when the men were angered because fruit cocktail instead of bananas was served at one of the meals. When the adjustment center inmates were told that all prisoners had gone without bananas "because they were too green," the men in the center said they still wanted the bananas, Nyberg said.

It was at this time they refused to give back their meal trays and these were forcibly removed from the cells.

Since then some of the men have been on a hunger strike, although "more of them ate this morning," Nyberg said.

Several times the convicts have flooded the first floor of the adjustment center by stopping up drains, set fire to magazines and thrown trays.

In addition, two guards have suffered burned faces when a combination of scouring powder and urine was thrown at them. The names of the officers, both treated at Marin General Hospital, were not released by the prison.

One was injured at 12:03 a.m. Saturday and the other at 1:15 p.m. yesterday.

The main difference between the two types of cells is that in

Skylab Crew Takes Shots Of Eclipse

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab 3 astronauts got an early Christmas present today in the form of a rare partial eclipse of the sun, a research task squeezed between study of Comet Kohoutek and preparation for a spacewalk.

Astronauts Gerald P. Carr, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue used their array of solar telescopes to watch the moon creep in front of the sun, blocking all but the outer ring.

Clouds blocked the view of the annular eclipse for many people in the eastern United States, but the northern part of South America and Northwest Africa afforded the best views anyway.

Solar scientists said because of the way light from the sun was directed at Skylab during the eclipse, the solar study instruments were able to see things about the sun which they can't under normal conditions.

Mission control began Christmas celebrations for the space station crew a day early, telling the men last night they had a surprise gift aboard, stowed in the Apollo spacecraft that ferried the crew into space.

Flight controllers also sent the astronauts wishes for three sexy ladies and two working gyroscopes, among other presents, on an oversized Christmas card delivered via teleprinter.

"Now we've got a present to go under our tree," Pogue said after he was tipped by ground controllers on where to look for the gift.

If all goes according to plan, the pilots will also discover sometime today a 36-inch tall green cloth Christmas tree buried in a box beneath the gear needed for their Christmas day spacewalk. The pilots have not been tipped off about the tree. They announced Saturday they had built their own makeshift tree out of odds and ends they found in the space station.

Ex-Convict Resigns His Corrections Job

An ex-convict whose hiring as a correctional worker for the Marin County Honor Farm has come under fire, yesterday quit his job. (For an interview with another former convict working at the farm, see page 5.)

Leon Le Gant, 47, of San Rafael, said protecting his family from possible adverse effects of publicity about his past criminal record prompted his decision to resign.

"I consider him irreplaceable," remarked Ralph Merola, director of the newly created department of corrections, which is to take over operation of the honor facility in Santa Venetia from the sheriff's department Jan. 1.

Merola has been criticized by Municipal Court Judge Robert A. Smallman and Bella Aaron, head of the court's criminal justice planning agency, for hiring Le Gant and another former felon to work at the honor farm.

Merola blamed loss of Le Gant on Smallman for sparking controversy around the hiring of the ex-offenders. "This whole ugly thing could have been avoided if Judge Smallman hadn't approached this situation in such an impulsive, inhumane and irresponsible way," Merola said.

The judge said last week that he would not sentence inmates to the honor facility if ex-convicts were working there as supervisors.

On Friday, Smallman ordered honor farm inmates returning from Christmas leave on Wednesday to report to the county jail at the Civic Center, operated by the sheriff's department, then rescinded the order after discussion with chief probation officer James W. Brewer, ccording to Merola.

LEON LE GANT
Quits, blaming publicity

The jail, designed to house a maximum 111 prisoners, is presently over capacity. Smallman's order would have added 50 more inmates to the population.

Before his employment by Marin County, LeGant worked since March 1972 as a counselor at Center Point, a drug treatment agency in San Rafael.

He also has been a staff counselor at Reality House West in San Francisco and director of the drug program's detoxification unit.

Prior to that, he completed a year's training with the Sonoma County Drug Abuse Council.

LeGant recently adopted his wife's 15-year-old daughter by a previous marriage. The couple also has a preschool-age son.

The board of supervisors is to review the policy of hiring former convicts as correctional workers when it meets Thursday. Merola said he would wait until after that meeting to consider a replacement for LeGant, who indicated he would return to his former job at Center Point.

Six Persian Gulf Oil Nations Double Their Petroleum Price

KUWAIT (UPI) — The six oil-producing Persian Gulf states more than doubled the price of petroleum at a meeting yesterday in Tehran. Today oil ministers from all the Arab oil producing states met in Kuwait to see how else they could use their oil weapon against Israel.

The ministers of the Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries (OAPEC) were meeting for the fourth time since Oct. 17, the date they announced they were using their oil weapon in support of the Arab countries fighting Israel.

Many of the ministers attending today's meeting flew in from Tehran, where they had attended a two-day meeting of Persian Gulf members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

The six Persian Gulf states, including non-Arab Iran, decided to more than double crude oil prices as of Jan. 1, 1974. The posted price of the marker crude, Arabian Light, will jump from $5.11 to $11.65.

"It is the end of the former empire of western oil companies," the Shah of Iran said after the meeting. "The era of terrific progress of western countries based on cheap oil has ended. Oil is no longer going to be cheap."

The top item on the agenda for today's meeting was a report from Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the Saudi Arabian Oil Minister, and Algerian Oil Industry Minister Belaid Abdesselam on a tour they made of western capitals.

The two ministers, acting as representatives of all the OAPEC states, went to Western Europe, the United States and Japan to explain the use of the oil weapon.

The Arab oil producers have stopped deliveries to the United States and Holland and have cut production by around 30 per cent in an attempt to pressure the West into forcing concessions from Israel in the Middle East conflict.

WIFE'S GIFT WINDS UP ON HUBBY'S ARM

A Larkspur man's idea for a Christmas joke turned into a problem yesterday as he found himself locked in a handcuff without a key to free himself.

Larkspur firemen said Gary L. Hellums, 2130 Redwood Highway, came to their station yesterday evening with the handcuff clasped securely about his wrist and the matching cuff falling from its mate.

Hellums' wife explained that he bought the handcuffs for $3 at a pawn store as a joke gift for her. But after trying one on he found he had no way to free himself.

Firemen sent the couple to the Larkspur police station where attempts to open the handcuff with police keys proved fruitless.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Trouble In Greece

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the first time, an administration official is on record that the new Greek military dictatorship "has serious political problems."

The State Department has been cautious in statements about the ouster of Premier George Papadopoulos Nov. 25, but Assistant Treasury Secretary John M. Hennessy has revealed that there is concern.

Hennessy offered no details in a Dec. 19 letter to the House international finance subcommittee.

Sees Inflation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Walter W. Heller, economic adviser to Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, says lower income groups have "taken an awful beating" recently and the country is tired of having wealthy people — including President Nixon — using tax escape hatches.

Heller, president-elect of the American Economic Association, said America is "heading for an 8 or 9 per cent rate of inflation in terms of the cost of living in the first half of next year . . . "and this will hit lower income groups hardest.

He was interviewed on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Hits 'Christmas Tree' Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes says Congress couldn't pass the emergency energy bill because the measure was "loaded down like a Christmas tree" with excess provisions.

Rhodes

The Arizona legislator, who got his leadership post when Gerald R. Ford vacated it to become vice president, said Congress sometimes acts "in ways that appear to be irresponsible" because important legislation becomes so burdened with amendments that lawmakers don't know what they are voting on.

"The main problem with that energy bill was also a problem we saw in the trade bill, the Alaska pipeline bill and a few others," Rhodes said. "That is the penchant to have too many things on the bill."

Bombing Deaths

BELFAST (UPI) — A bomb believed carried by Irish Republican Army militants exploded prematurely in a pub near the Irish border today while they were having a Christmas Eve drink.

An army spokesman said at least four persons were killed including the two gunmen and more than 20 badly maimed in the blast in the pub frequented by Roman Catholics in the border town of Newry.

An army spokesman called the explosion the worst in several months and said it could be the start of a Christmas Eve bomb wave.

Doggie Dinner

FRISBY, England (UPI) — A Christmas dinner of sausages, corned beef, rice pudding and chocolate biscuits is on the menu for 98 stray dogs at a Frisby, Leicestershire, dog home tomorrow.

Phnom Penh Shelled

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Pro-Communist Cambodian rebels fired five 100-pound rockets into Phnom Penh today in the second shelling of the capital in 24 hours.

Storm Hits Denver

DENVER (UPI) — Metropolitan Denver was immobilized today by a wind-whipped snowstorm that piled up three-to-10-foot drifts, virtually shut down Stapleton Airport and left police, fire and ambulances stranded along with other motorists.

"Nothing is moving," said newsman Bob Scott of radio station KHOW in a telephoned report to United Press International. "It took me two hours in a four-wheel drive vehicle to cover my normal 12-minute trip to work."

Fighting For Rice

SAIGON (UPI) — Christmas Eve fighting for the Mekong Delta rice crop and a Viet Cong attack on two truce team helicopters marred hopes for a holiday truce, military spokesmen said today.

The Saigon high command said fighting was at a generally low level throughout the nation, but government forces were on alert against Communist attacks.

Ford Enjoys The Snow, Television

VAIL, Colo. (UPI) — Vice President Gerald Ford watched football on television this weekend waiting for a swirling storm that dumped three inches of snow on the ski resort to end and then took his family out on the ski slopes.

"He hasn't asked for any special treatment," said Pam Conklin, a spokesman for the ski resort where Ford has a $50,000 condominium. "He's just another skier. This is strictly family-type vacation for him as far as we're concerned."

Ford went virtually unnoticed yesterday while he waited five minutes in line at a small shop to buy a pair of ski gloves.

"It's not that people don't care," Miss Conklin said. "They are impressed with the idea of having a resident vice president here. But they also are nice about letting people alone."

Dennie Hoeger, a former ski instructor and a personal friend, said Ford is a good skier and has little trouble with Vail's slopes, regarded by many professionals as being pretty tricky.

Rough Time Seen With Peace Talks

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Egypt and Israel send negotiating teams back to Geneva this week to discuss troop withdrawal along the Suez Canal but reports from Tel Aviv and Cairo today reported such conflicting views that the negotiations were expected to be long and difficult.

"There is a possibility of getting the separation of forces negotiations under way within a few days," Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said on return from the opening round of the Geneva Middle East peace conference. "But I would be greatly surprised if they should end in success within a number of days."

The actual Geneva peace conference was suspended Saturday after two days and is not expected to resume until after the Israeli national elections Dec. 31.

Finland's Lt. Gen. Ensio Siilasvuo, commander of the U.N. Emergency force (UNEF), left today for Geneva to take part in the disengagement talks, expected to open tomorrow or Wednesday. Before leaving he protested to both Israel and Egypt against a Thursday shooting incident in which a Finnish soldier was shot in the head.

Siilasvuo was accompanied by Ireland's Capt. J. Falloen from the military staff of U.N. headquarters, the spokesman said. Both Siilasvuo and Falloen had taken part in the talks which were held at Kilometer 101 on the Cairo-Suez road and which ended in failure.

The head of Israel's military team at the negotiations will be Maj. Gen. Mordechai Gur, the Israeli Army attache in the Washington embassy, Israeli newspapers said.

Gur, 43, commanded the paratroop brigade that captured the old walled city of Jerusalem from Jordan in the 1967 Six Day War. He commanded the Israeli northern front opposite Syria and Arab guerrillas in Lebanon until his transfer to Washington in 1972.

An Israeli government official said the cabinet of Prime Minister Golda Meir authorized Defense Minister Moshe Dayan yesterday to issue the troop disengagement negotiators with the same instructions they got when bargaining with Egyptian officers last month at Kilometer 101.

106 Die As Belgian Jet Crashes On Morocco Peak

TANGIER, Morocco (UPI) — A Belgian airliner captain killed with 105 other persons when his plane crashed 20 miles away from Tangier airport announced he was lined up for a landing when the fatal crash occurred moments later, the Ministry of Transport said today.

Most of the 99 passengers were Moroccan students returning home for the Christmas holidays. They and seven crewmen died when the Sobelair chartered Caravelle airliner burst into flames when it struck a 2,400-foot peak in the Rif mountain range, the government said.

A Ministry of Transport statement said in part:

"The plane contacted Tangier control tower for the first time at 8.58 p.m., stating it was flying over the VOR (Vertical Omni-Range) beacon of Tangier airport and was about to start the approach and landing phase.

"After the agreement of the control tower and at about 10.13 p.m., the plane called the tower again to state that it was entering the final phase of approach and was lined up on the beacon for entry to the runway.

"This beacon, known as the exterior beacon, is situated 9.3 km (six miles) from the beginning of the runway.

"The tower instructed the aircraft to indicate when it had the runway in sight and the plane acknowledged.

"When the tower asked if the plane had the runway in sight, the pilot replied 'not yet.'

"After that, the tower lost all contact with the aircraft."

The statement said the plane had smashed into the summit of Mount Mallayine in the Rif range 20 miles south of the airport at 10.15 p.m.

Mules were taken to the rugged mountain crash scene to carry bodies and pieces of the wrecked plane to Tangiers, where experts will try to determine cause of the accident.

Spain Hunts For Killers

MADRID (UPI) — Spain's mountain border with France was sealed off today as thousands of police fanned out high in the Pyrenees seeking six Basque separatists accused in the assassination of Prime Minister Luis Carrero Blanco.

Border guards yesterday turned back Basque travelers to France, confiscated their passports and said they could pick them up from police in a few days. Police by the thousands searched known smuggler trails in the Pyrenees, the mountains that border France, in what police sources said was the largest manhunt in modern Spanish history.

In France, however, the separatist organization "Basque Homeland and Liberty" (ETA) said the assassins were already "in a safe place" and threatened new blows against Spain if the "oppression" of Basques continued.

Authorities named the six as suspects Saturday and said all had records as political criminals. Sources said the six were identified when three alleged associates, among them two women, were picked up in a roundup of hundreds of suspects and told what they knew.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Trouble In Greece

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the first time, an administration official is on record that the new Greek military dictatorship "has serious political problems."

The State Department has been cautious in statements about the ouster of Premier George Papadopoulos Nov. 25, but Assistant Treasury Secretary John M. Hennessy has revealed that there is concern.

Hennessy offered no details in a Dec. 19 letter to the House international finance subcommittee.

Sees Inflation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Walter W. Heller, economic adviser to Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, says lower income groups have "taken an awful beating" recently and the country is tired of having wealthy people — including President Nixon — using tax escape hatches.

Heller, president-elect of the American Economic Association, said America is "heading for an 8 or 9 per cent rate of inflation in terms of the cost of living in the first half of next year . . . "and this will hit lower income groups hardest.

He was interviewed on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Hits 'Christmas Tree' Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes says Congress couldn't pass the emergency energy bill because the measure was "loaded down like a Christmas tree" with excess provisions.

Rhodes

The Arizona legislator, who got his leadership post when Gerald R. Ford vacated it to become vice president, said Congress sometimes acts "in ways that appear to be irresponsible" because important legislation becomes so burdened with amendments that lawmakers don't know what they are voting on.

"The main problem with that energy bill was also a problem we saw in the trade bill, the Alaska pipeline bill and a few others," Rhodes said. "That is the penchant to have too many things on the bill."

Bombing Deaths

BELFAST (UPI) — A bomb believed carried by Irish Republican Army militants exploded prematurely in a pub near the Irish border today while they were having a Christmas Eve drink.

An army spokesman said at least four persons were killed including the two gunmen and more than 20 badly maimed in the blast in the pub frequented by Roman Catholics in the border town of Newry.

An army spokesman called the explosion the worst in several months and said it could be the start of a Christmas Eve bomb wave.

Doggie Dinner

FRISBY, England (UPI) — A Christmas dinner of sausages, corned beef, rice pudding and chocolate biscuits is on the menu for 98 stray dogs at a Frisby, Leicestershire, dog home tomorrow.

Phnom Penh Shelled

Storm Hits Denver

DENVER (UPI) — Metropolitan Denver was immobilized today by a wind-whipped snowstorm that piled up three-to-10-foot drifts, virtually shut down Stapleton Airport and left police, fire and ambulances stranded along with other motorists.

"Nothing is moving," said newsman Bob Scott of radio station KHOW in a telephoned report to United Press International. "It took me two hours in a four-wheel drive vehicle to cover my normal 12-minute trip to work."

Fighting For Rice

SAIGON (UPI) — Christmas Eve fighting for the Mekong Delta rice crop and a Viet Cong attack on two truce team helicopters marred hopes for a holiday truce, military spokesmen said today.

The Saigon high command said fighting was at a generally low level throughout the nation, but government forces were on alert against Communist attacks.

Ford Enjoys The Snow, Television

VAIL, Colo. (UPI) — Vice President Gerald Ford watched football on television this weekend waiting for a swirling storm that dumped three inches of snow on the ski resort to end and then took his family out on the ski slopes.

"He hasn't asked for any special treatment," said Pam Conklin, a spokesman for the ski resort where Ford has a $50,000 condominium. "He's just another skier. This is strictly family-type vacation for him as far as we're concerned."

Ford went virtually unnoticed yesterday while he waited five minutes in line at a small shop to buy a pair of ski gloves.

"It's not that people don't care," Miss Conklin said. "They are impressed with the idea of having a resident vice president here. But they also are nice about letting people alone."

Dennie Hoeger, a former ski instructor and a personal friend, said Ford is a good skier and has little trouble with Vail's slopes, regarded by many professionals as being pretty tricky.

An Old Era Closes As Capitol Is Shut

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The stately neo-Grecian building has been the heart of California government and politics for a century. Such men as Hiram Johnson and Earl Warren walked its halls as governor.

Now, the old building is doomed to virtual idleness, its empty halls were echo chambers for raging debates of days past. The state architect, putting sentiment aside, calls it "a pile of bricks."

In a few days the giant oak doors will close to the public and a Capitol tour guide mourned this past week: "Taking people through here in the last few days has kind of been like going to a wake."

"I'm surprised at the public's reaction. It's kind of morbid, like they're seeing the inside for the last time."

They may be.

Branded an earthquake hazard, the Capitol's original wing, legislative chambers and gold-domed rotunda will be closed to the public Jan. 1. The building would have to be completely rebuilt before it can be opened again.

The Senate and Assembly will continue to meet in the 104-year-old chambers. State Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest's offices will stay at least temporarily because no secure place has been found to store the $10 billion in securities in the capitol vault. Otherwise the historic structure will be empty.

Just when — and if — it will reopen is uncertain. Gov. Ronald Reagan wants the building to be fully restored and retained as the Capitol. But key legislative leaders want to build a modern twin-tower capitol on a site adjacent to Capitol Park. The starting price for such a structure is $40 million.

No one talks of tearing down the Greek columned landmark, but no one is sure what to do with it.

No visitors will be allowed in the wing once its closed. Special guests of the legislators can watch legislative sessions from the rear of each chamber, but only if they sign a waiver. Otherwise the public will have to watch proceedings on closed circuit television from hearing rooms in the Capitol's newer east wing, built in 1952.

Most west wing offices are already empty.

Occupants now depart one by one, without much fanfare, leaving a "we've moved" note on their huge wooden doors.

The legislature has gone home for the holidays and paintings of the state's 32 former governors stare down at nearly silent hallways, elegantly tiled in the grand style of the Victorian era. Workmen are sealing up a passageway from the east wing. few visitors stare up at the huge inner dome, rising 125 feet above the rotunda floor.

"We decided that if it was going to close in January we were going to go see it," said one visitor, Diane Berg, 23, of North Highlands, a Sacramento suburb. "It's going to be a shame to close it off."

Mother's Ills Don't Cause Birth Defects

CHICAGO (UPI) — Birth defects do not occur more often in infants whose mothers had measles, mumps, chicken pox or certain other virus diseases, according to a study reported in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Some 400 pregnant women in New York City who contracted one of the infectious diseases gave birth to malformed infants no more frequently than women who were not ill, the study said.

"There was no apparent difference in the incidence of congenital defects among virus-affected and control subjects. Their total rates were 2.2 per cent and 2.3 per cent, respectively," Morris Siegel of the Downstate Medical Center in Brooklyn, M.Y., said.

Yule Travel Reported On Light Side

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The gasoline situation apparently prompted motorists to make their trip home for the holidays early or wait until today.

In some areas, the decision not to travel on Sunday may have been unnecessary since service stations planning to close Christmas stayed open.

The Automobile Club of Southern California found about 30 per cent of the gasoline stations in its area open on Sunday—much more than on recent Sundays. They were opened because they planned to close Christmas.

A survey by the Automobile Club of Michigan found that 92 per cent of the state's stations would close at 9 p.m. Monday and 90 per cent would not open at all on Christmas. This compared with 85 per cent closed on Sunday.

Bob Myers, radio operator for the West Virginia State Department of Highways, reported traffic Sunday "fairly light" for this time of year.

Maryland and Delaware reported light traffic because of station closings. The Maryland Automobile Association said most Maryland stations would close Christmas Eve and Christmas day.

Florida police reported traffic was deflated because of Sunday closings.

"I'm surprised at the public's reaction. It's kind of morbid, like they're seeing the inside for the last time."

They may be.

Branded an earthquake hazard, the Capitol's original wing, legislative chambers and gold-domed rotunda will be closed to the public Jan. 1. The building would have to be completely rebuilt before it can be opened again.

The Senate and Assembly will continue to meet in the 104-year-old chambers. State Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest's offices will stay at least temporarily because no secure place has been found to store the $10 billion in securities in the capitol vault. Otherwise the historic structure will be empty.

Just when — and if — it will reopen is uncertain. Gov. Ronald Reagan wants the building to be fully restored and retained as the Capitol. But key legislative leaders want to build a modern twin-tower capitol on a site adjacent to Capitol Park. The starting price for such a structure is $40 million.

No one talks of tearing down the Greek columned landmark, but no one is sure what to do with it.

No visitors will be allowed in the wing once its closed. Special guests of the legislators can watch legislative sessions from the rear of each chamber, but only if they sign a waiver. Otherwise the public will have to watch proceedings on closed circuit television from hearing rooms in the Capitol's newer east wing, built in 1952.

Most west wing offices are already empty.

Occupants now depart one by one, without much fanfare, leaving a "we've moved" note on their huge wooden doors.

The legislature has gone home for the holidays and paintings of the state's 32 former governors stare down at nearly silent hallways, elegantly tiled in the grand style of the Victorian era. Workmen are sealing up a passageway from the east wing. few visitors stare up at the huge inner dome, rising 125 feet above the rotunda floor.

"We decided that if it was going to close in January we were going to go see it," said one visitor, Diane Berg, 23, of North Highlands, a Sacramento suburb. "It's going to be a shame to close it off."

Yule Travel Reported On Light Side

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The gasoline situation apparently prompted motorists to make their trip home for the holidays early or wait until today.

In some areas, the decision not to travel on Sunday may have been unnecessary since service stations planning to close Christmas stayed open.

The Automobile Club of Southern California found about 30 per cent of the gasoline stations in its area open on Sunday—much more than on recent Sundays. They were opened because they planned to close Christmas.

A survey by the Automobile Club of Michigan found that 92 per cent of the state's stations would close at 9 p.m. Monday and 90 per cent would not open at all on Christmas. This compared with 85 per cent closed on Sunday.

Bob Myers, radio operator for the West Virginia State Department of Highways, reported traffic Sunday "fairly light" for this time of year.

Maryland and Delaware reported light traffic because of station closings. The Maryland Automobile Association said most Maryland stations would close Christmas Eve and Christmas day.

Florida police reported traffic was deflated because of Sunday closings.

Mother's Ills Don't Cause Birth Defects

CHICAGO (UPI) — Birth defects do not occur more often in infants whose mothers had measles, mumps, chicken pox or certain other virus diseases, according to a study reported in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Some 400 pregnant women in New York City who contracted one of the infectious diseases gave birth to malformed infants no more frequently than women who were not ill, the study said.

"There was no apparent difference in the incidence of congenital defects among virus-affected and control subjects. Their total rates were 2.2 per cent and 2.3 per cent, respectively," Morris Siegel of the Downstate Medical Center in Brooklyn, M.Y., said.

Gun Permits Plan Told At Synanon

The head of Synanon Foundation in Marshall has written a letter to Marin Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos announcing his intention to get gun permits for 250 men residents of Synanon because the district attorney has failed to act in an alleged burglary.

Charles E. Dederich said in the letter that "we think it is necessary to arm every adult male in our Tomales Bay facilites."

The action, he said, is due to theft of tapes from the Synanon office last January. Dederich blames the burglary on a former Synanon resident, but he said when he presented evidence to the district attorney's office, that Asst. Dist. Atty. Joshua W. Thomas said his office was not interested "in such cases."

"The district attorney's actions encourage the spread of crime and lawlessness in this county," Dederich said in his letter.

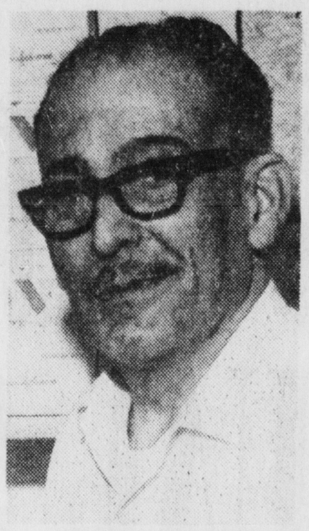
OBITUARIES

Joseph G. Alvarez Succumbs At 67



JOSEPH G. ALVAREZ
Kidney campaigner dies

Joseph Glynn Alvarez, who led an unsuccessful campaign to get a kidney treatment center in Marin after his wife died of kidney disease, died yesterday in a Burlingame hospital after a long illness. He was 67.

His first wife, Dorothy, died in September, 1970, two years after thousands of dollars were raised in Marin to help pay $11,000 for a kidney machine and admission to a treatment center in San Francisco.

He vowed then he would work to get a kidney center in Marin "until I die. I made that promise to my wife before she died." Marin hospital officials, however, decided there was too little need for such a unit to warrant its cost, especially since treatment was available in San Francisco.

A native of Puerto Rico, Alvarez came to the U.S. in 1924. He worked as a jewelry designer at New York stores, including Tiffany's, before moving to California. He operated a jewelry store in San Francisco for many years. He lived in Marin from 1955 until last year, when he moved to Burlingame. In Marin, he lived in Greenbrae and San Anselmo.

Alvarez was a leader of the Marin unit of the Kidney Foundation of Northern California, a prime mover of the annual car show at Strawberry to raise funds for the foundation, and a member of the Marin Independent Order of Foresters, Court 1950, and of the Buen Vecino Club of San Francisco.

He is survived by his wife, Carmen; seven children, Joseph Alvarez of Puerto Rico, Anthony Alvarez and Thelma Johnston, both of Santa Ana, Orange County, Violet Johnston of Fremont, Charles Alvarez and Margarita Alvarez, both of Fairfax, and Robert Alvarez of Pleasant Hill; a brother, Joaquin Alvarez; a sister, Carmen Alvarez of Puerto Rico, and many grandchildren.

A Requiem Mass will be celebrated at 10 a.m. on Thursday at St. Dunstan's Catholic Church, Millbrae. Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael. The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Chapel of the Highlands, Burlingame. His family asked that memorial contributions go to the Cancer Society.

PRISON

the so-called management facilities, convicts are allowed none of their possessions, Nyberg said, so that there is no possibility of finding objects to throw or burn.

The Independent-Journal also learned that Hugo Pinell, one of the "San Quentin Six" charged with murder in connection with violence at the prison in 1971, was among the men moved from his regular cell.

None of the other San Quentin six was involved.

When the six convicts yesterday refused to go peacefully to their new cells, officers teargassed them, officials said.

Despite the violence at the adjustment center, the rest of the big prison was "pretty calm" today, Nyberg said.

Only food service, laundry and hospital workers were allowed out to go to their jobs, and the inmates were still being fed in small groups.

The general lock-up was ordered Dec. 1 at San Quentin and three other state prisons in the wake of the murder of a guard at Deuel Vocational Institute at Tracy.

Permit For Fill On Review List

Review of the fill permit granted last year by Corte Madera for the proposed Hahn regional shopping center will be considered by the town's council when it meets Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in town hall.

Councilman Robert J. Flahive, a constant opponent of the center, asked that the permit be reviewed after special election last week to name three new councilmen.

Flahive, always before in the council minority in opposing the center, found after the election he is backed by a majority of councilmen who oppose the center.

The council will also seat new members, Jana G. Haehl, Albert A. Kostelic and Joel A. Shawn, and will elect a mayor nd vice mayor.

Gymnastic Classes Slated At School

Beginning and intermediate gymnastic classes will be held Monday evenings starting Jan. 7 at Tamalpais High School, sponsored by the Marin Young Men's Christian Association.

The classes, which are from 5 to 6:30 p.m., are for 8 to 18 years old. They feature tumbling, free exercise, balance beam, uneven parallel bars and vaulting.

Gun Permits Plan Told At Synanon

The head of Synanon Foundation in Marshall has written a letter to Marin Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos announcing his intention to get gun permits for 250 men residents of Synanon because the district attorney has failed to act in an alleged burglary.

Charles E. Dederich said in the letter that "we think it is necessary to arm every adult male in our Tomales Bay facilites."

The action, he said, is due to theft of tapes from the Synanon office last January. Dederich blames the burglary on a former Synanon resident, but he said when he presented evidence to the district attorney's office, that Asst. Dist. Atty. Joshua W. Thomas said his office was not interested "in such cases."

"The district attorney's actions encourage the spread of crime and lawlessness in this county," Dederich said in his letter.

Synanon residents at one time turned in a number of hunting guns in support of antigun legislation.

OBITUARIES

Joseph G. Alvarez Succumbs At 67

JOSEPH G. ALVAREZ
Kidney campaigner dies

Joseph Glynn Alvarez, who led an unsuccessful campaign to get a kidney treatment center in Marin after his wife died of kidney disease, died yesterday in a Burlingame hospital after a long illness. He was 67.

His first wife, Dorothy, died in September, 1970, two years after thousands of dollars were raised in Marin to help pay $11,000 for a kidney machine and admission to a treatment center in San Francisco.

He vowed then he would work to get a kidney center in Marin "until I die. I made that promise to my wife before she died." Marin hospital officials, however, decided there was too little need for such a unit to warrant its cost, especially since treatment was available in San Francisco.

A native of Puerto Rico, Alvarez came to the U.S. in 1924. He worked as a jewelry designer at New York stores, including Tiffany's, before moving to California. He operated a jewelry store in San Francisco for many years. He lived in Marin from 1955 until last year, when he moved to Burlingame. In Marin, he lived in Greenbrae and San Anselmo.

Alvarez was a leader of the Marin unit of the Kidney Foundation of Northern California, a prime mover of the annual car show at Strawberry to raise funds for the foundation, and a member of the Marin Independent Order of Foresters, Court 1950, and of the Buen Vecino Club of San Francisco.

He is survived by his wife, Carmen; seven children, Joseph Alvarez of Puerto Rico, Anthony Alvarez and Thelma Johnston, both of Santa Ana, Orange County, Violet Johnston of Fremont, Charles Alvarez and Margarita Alvarez, both of Fairfax, and Robert Alvarez of Pleasant Hill; a brother, Joaquin Alvarez; a sister, Carmen Alvarez of Puerto Rico, and many grandchildren.

A Requiem Mass will be celebrated at 10 a.m. on Thursday at St. Dunstan's Catholic Church, Millbrae. Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael. The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Chapel of the Highlands, Burlingame. His family asked that memorial contributions go to the Cancer Society.

the so-called management facilities, convicts are allowed none of their possessions, Nyberg said, so that there is no possibility of finding objects to throw or burn.

The Independent-Journal also learned that Hugo Pinell, one of the "San Quentin Six" charged with murder in connection with violence at the prison in 1971, was among the men moved from his regular cell.

None of the other San Quentin six was involved.

When the six convicts yesterday refused to go peacefully to their new cells, officers teargassed them, officials said.

Despite the violence at the adjustment center, the rest of the big prison was "pretty calm" today, Nyberg said.

Only food service, laundry and hospital workers were allowed out to go to their jobs, and the inmates were still being fed in small groups.

The general lock-up was ordered Dec. 1 at San Quentin and three other state prisons in the wake of the murder of a guard at Deuel Vocational Institute at Tracy.

Permit For Fill On Review List

Review of the fill permit granted last year by Corte Madera for the proposed Hahn regional shopping center will be considered by the town's council when it meets Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in town hall.

Councilman Robert J. Flahive, a constant opponent of the center, asked that the permit be reviewed after special election last week to name three new councilmen.

Flahive, always before in the council minority in opposing the center, found after the election he is backed by a majority of councilmen who oppose the center.

The council will also seat new members, Jana G. Haehl, Albert A. Kostelic and Joel A. Shawn, and will elect a mayor nd vice mayor.

Ex-Convict Explains Why He's In Correction Work

By PAUL LIBERATORE

The day before Christmas when Michael Gaspar was 8 years old, juvenile authorities took him, his older brother and two sisters to juvenile hall.

His mother and father were recently divorced then and his father had made threats against the family, Gaspar explained during an interview Saturday.

Gaspar is one of two former convicts hired as correctional workers for the department of corrections honor farm at Santa Venetia. The other, Leon LeGant, 47, resigned yesterday, fearing the effects on his family of publicity about his past criminal record. (For story on Le Gant resignation, see page 1.)

MICHAEL GASPAR
Would rescue others

Gaspar, 27, of San Francisco, is single and spoke freely about his earlier drift toward crime and prison — his rehabilitation there and now a job on the opposite side of the bars. His main interest in becoming a correctional worker, he said, is to try to prevent others from taking the same agonizing trip.

The Gaspar children were held in juvenile hall in San Francisco for 20 months to protect them from their father and to give their mother time to become self-supporting, Gaspar said.

During his teen-age years, Gaspar dropped out of high school in Pacifica, where his mother moved after remarrying, and began to drift towards crime.

He was arrested for joy riding in a stolen car and for carrying a concealed weapon. He was placed on probation, received no jail sentence, and also received no help from authorities, which later was to prove disastrous to him, he said.

"There was no communication at home," Gaspar said, and no one to talk to when he was arrested. "Maybe I should have said, 'Help me to understand what I am doing wrong,' but I was shy and withdrawn and didn't."

At 19, Gaspar was sentenced to Soledad Prison after being convicted of trying to extort money from supermarkets in Pacifica. "I was trying to be somebody, to be a big wheel. But I later realized that even if I had money it wouldn't have made any difference."

At first, in prison, he said, he was just marking time, waiting to be released. Then he made a startling realization. "I knew I wasn't going to get out right away. And I couldn't get through to the adult authorities why I did what I did, because I really didn't know then myself."

Then followed a period of self-evaluation, introspection and education. Gaspar completed high school while in prison and training in three trades.

When he was released from Soledad in 1971 after six years, Gaspar said, he knew he could best serve society by providing the helping hand he never received. He worked for two years as a parole agent and associate for the state Parole and Community Services Division in San Francisco after his release. He has completed some college work and plans to enroll at San Francisco State University, where he will major in sociology.

"I might be better able to relate to the prisoners here because I understand what they have been through," he said. "I took this job with Marin County because as a group we may be able to come up with programs that would be of help. Eventually I would like to move up the ladder and go into juvenile probation work, catching the problem of crime where it begins."

Armed Gang Gets $7,000 InCash,Gems

Four masked men armed with handguns and rifles, described by police as a San Francisco Chinese gang, last night took $7,000 in cash and jewelry from 19 Chinese men, who share quarters at 1786 Las Gallinas Avenue, San Rafael police said today.

The gang burst through an unlocked door of the home at 11:30 p.m. as the residents, employees of Golden Harvest International, Ltd., of Kowloon, Hong Kong, a film company, were sitting down for dinner, police said.

The bandits,their faces hidden with blue ski masks, ordered the men to lie face down in the living room. Two of the masked men stood guard with rifles while the other two searched and stripped the residents of valuables and tied their hands, police said.

Taken in the 20-minute ordeal was cash totaling $3,846 and about $3,000 worth of jewelry and photography equipment, according to police.

Tiburon Family Takes Smitty In For Holidays

Albert (Smitty) Smith will have a warm Christmas this year after all, thanks to a Tiburon family which wants to remain anonymous.

According to Tiburon Police Chief Maurice D. Lafferty, the family took Smitty home last Friday to keep him through the holiday season.

Ninety-year-old Smitty has been a familiar figure for years in Tiburon, where he lives in the bottom of an old ark near city hall. Tiburon police have been seeking a new home for him in place of the quarters where he has lived rent-free in return for doing gardening for a local real estate developer.

Annie Jameson, chief of county social services, said the Tiburon family said that Smitty is bright and has a sense of humor and seems to be feeling better after several recent visits to the hospital.

She said the county had also found a small rest home in Marin with five or six other elderly people living in it where Smitty might go permanently. "It has a small garden, and it's the kind of place where he wouldn't feel lost," she said.

Man Sentenced For Bad Check

Robert L. Anderson, 24, of Sausalito, has been placed on three years probation, ordered to spend four months in Marin County Jail and ordered to repay $100 on a bad check.

Superior Court Judge Charles Read Best imposed the sentence Thursday after Anderson changed his plea to guilty on one count of writing a worthless check. Best said that if Anderson completes probation satisfactorily, the count will be reduced to a misdemeanor. The judge, as a result of plea bargaining, also dismissed counts of carrying a concealed weapon and possessing a lost credit card.

Anderson was arrested Oct. 18 in Sausalito.

Tax Assistance Being Offered

Help in preparing income tax returns for low-income and elderly people will be offered this year by a group called Volunteer Income Tax Assistance.

Community Action Marin is recruiting volunteers to help prepare the returns. The Internal Revenue Service is providing the material and training them.

May the Spirit of Christmas abide with you THROUGHOUT THE COMING YEAR

Ex-Convict Explains Why He's In Correction Work

By PAUL LIBERATORE

The day before Christmas when Michael Gaspar was 8 years old, juvenile authorities took him, his older brother and two sisters to juvenile hall.

His mother and father were recently divorced then and his father had made threats against the family, Gaspar explained during an interview Saturday.

Gaspar is one of two former convicts hired as correctional workers for the department of corrections honor farm at Santa Venetia. The other, Leon LeGant, 47, resigned yesterday, fearing the effects on his family of publicity about his past criminal record. (For story on Le Gant resignation, see page 1.)

MICHAEL GASPAR
Would rescue others

Gaspar, 27, of San Francisco, is single and spoke freely about his earlier drift toward crime and prison — his rehabilitation there and now a job on the opposite side of the bars. His main interest in becoming a correctional worker, he said, is to try to prevent others from taking the same agonizing trip.

The Gaspar children were held in juvenile hall in San Francisco for 20 months to protect them from their father and to give their mother time to become self-supporting, Gaspar said.

During his teen-age years, Gaspar dropped out of high school in Pacifica, where his mother moved after remarrying, and began to drift towards crime.

He was arrested for joy riding in a stolen car and for carrying a concealed weapon. He was placed on probation, received no jail sentence, and also received no help from authorities, which later was to prove disastrous to him, he said.

Planner Candidates Give Novato Views

By FRANK FARRARA
(Last of a series)

Daniel P. Donovan, Loren G. Baxter and Miguel B. Medeiros are three of nine applicants for two open seats on the Novato Planning Commission.

The Novato City Council is expected to make its selections this week.

Donovan, 41, is an attorney and owner of a chain of drug stores.

Donovan said he would like "to see something other than" the townhouses and apartments being constructed in Novato, because he's "seen nothing lately but apartments blossoming in Novato. I am concerned about density. . ." the candidate said.

Donovan said he is in accord with the Novato General Plan and believes open space should be included.

However, he said the city has to balance individual rights with the community's right to good planning. "A person should have the right to utilize his land, especially if he has paid taxes on it for a long time."

Donovan said a planning commissioner should research every proposal thoroughly so that his decision is well-reasoned.

Asked whether water districts should limit growth, Donovan said he does not think "they are in a position to limit growth independently, but they may be forced to if they don't have the water supply . . ." A district "has an obligation to supply the community, not act to limit the supply," Donovan added.

He is a graduate of the College of Pharmacy at the University of California and of Lincoln University Law School in San Francisco. He has lived in Novato for 10 years.

Baxter said he would like to see some of the planning ideas he has studied in other communities tried in Novato. But he was critical of Novato's proposal to slow population growth with a specific limit of 500 new housing units a year, similar to a Petaluma ordinance.

"As a policy, growth control is very desirable to have, but if you restrict it to a specific number you are putting a perimeter on yourself that would be hard to change, you are casting it in bronze," Baxter added.

Baxter said he is "a strong candidate of open space in its proper place" but added it would be "just as bad" to have open space "just to have open space" as to "have buildings just to have buildings."

Baxter sees the commission's role as an advisory one and believes that conflicts between the city council and the commission can be worked out.

Baxter, a graduate of Brigham Young University, with a bachelor's degree in accounting, said his work has brought him into contact with land development throughout the United States.

He formerly served as a director of the Lake Arrowhead Chamber of Commerce and has been a resident of Novato for almost two years.

He and his wife and four children live at 14 Driftwood Court.

Medeiros believes that "Government has to be more responsive to people . . . the planning commissioners aren't completely open to public suggestions."

If appointed, he said he would "be available for considerable hours a month for the public to talk to me so I can bring ideas back to the commission."

If the commission is more responsive to the public, its decisions would become less likely to be referred back from the city council or overruled, Medeiros said. He called for the planning commission not to "follow the city council blindly," or "go to the other extreme" and consistently oppose the council.

Medeiros said he thinks he could serve as "a representative for all people" on the commission.

Concerning open space, he said: "We are all for it but how are we going to accomplish it? That is the big question because of the number of dollars available."

Medeiros said there must be "harmonious" discussion between the city and the county in matters of planning for the Novato area.

Medeiros wants "to bring people closer to government . . . so they can trust and believe when they go to city hall."

Medeiros, 39, has lived in Novato for more than 13 years. He, his wife, Mary, two daughters and a son live at 1456 Pastel Lane.

Planner Candidates Give Novato Views

By FRANK FARRARA
(Last of a series)

Daniel P. Donovan, Loren G. Baxter and Miguel B. Medeiros are three of nine applicants for two open seats on the Novato Planning Commission.

The Novato City Council is expected to make its selections this week.

Donovan, 41, is an attorney and owner of a chain of drug stores.

Donovan said he would like "to see something other than" the townhouses and apartments being constructed in Novato, because he's "seen nothing lately but apartments blossoming in Novato. I am concerned about density . . ." the candidate said.

Donovan said he is in accord with the Novato General Plan and believes open space should be included.

A FAMILY TRADITION CONTINUES

Susan Scarpa, 23, gazes over a mammoth Christmas collage built by her mother, Phyllis, in the family dining room at 16 San Miquel Way, Novato. The display, which each year rises around the Christmas tree as part of a family tradition, is formed by more than 500 figurines that sit in mounds of cotton on a foundation of boxes.

Londoners Warned About Christmas Present Bombs

LONDON (UPI) — Scotland Yard today warned Londoners to expect more "Christmas present" bombs from Irish extremists blamed for a pre-holiday weekend of terror that injured six persons.

The warning followed six bomb explosions from late Friday night to yesterday evening. The injuries brought to 74 the number of persons wounded by 19 bomb blasts since the beginning of the terror campaign Dec. 17.

An anonymous telephone caller yesterday told the Press Association news agency: "There are three Christmas presents for you tonight — one (each) for the dead, murdered and interned in Northern Ireland."

Within an hour, bombs exploded outside Kensington police station in Earl's Court Road, the headquarters of a construction firm in Hammersmith and the White Lion pub in a downtown office block complex. There were no casualties.

A Scotland Yard spokesman said most of the 120 men of the London bomb squad would be on duty through Christmas. He warned the public not to forget the bomb menace during the holiday period.

Last night's three bombs went off within a five-mile radius. The telephone caller used an identification code known to police as belonging to someone whose previous information had been reliable.

The police spokesman said one theory the Yard has been investigating in trying to track down the bombers — believed to be members of the militant Irish Republican Army (IRA) — is that some of the blasts could be connected with Princess Anne's wedding. Two senior army officers who helped plan last month's royal wedding have been selected as letter bomb targets.

Another bomb last Monday blew off the thumb of Queen Elizabeth's aide de camp, Brig. Michael O'Cock.

Fleeing Driver Cause Of Deaths

NEW YORK (UPI) — A driver trying to escape from police early yesterday ran into a limousine which slammed into a church wall, killing two persons, police said.

Lee Johnson, driver of a white Thunderbird that police said was stolen, was charged with 10 violations.

Killed were Fred Gregorio, 25, and his brother, Michael, 20. The nine other occupants of the limousine were injured.

Chinese Beer In California

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — If residents of the Golden Gate state enjoy one of China's best beers, the rest of the country's drinkers will get a chance to sample it.

"California is the tasting ground," said R. C. Wilson, Western regional sales manager for the premium Tsingtao (pronounced Ching-tow) beer, the same brew that Chairman Mao presented to President Nixon as a good will gesture.

"If people go for it here," said Wilson, "we will expand across the country."

Two shipments of 5,000 cases each recently arrived in Oakland and Los Angeles and Wilson opened an office on Fisherman's Wharf last week to promote the beer throughout Northern California.

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

New Patriotic License Plates Will Be Delayed In California

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California motorists will have to wait at least another year for the red-white-and-blue license plates which Gov. Ronald Reagan had said would be ready for the nation's 200th anniversary.

The reason for the delay is that no bids were received for reflective material that was to make the plates more visible as well as patriotic, state Motor Vehicles Director Robert C. Cozens said Saturday.

The contract offer stipulated that the reflective material must retain its brightness for at least 10 years because the state's license plates are used year after year.

But the 3M Company, the major manufacturer of the product, says it has had only five years to test the reflective material. "They didn't want to be legally liable for personal injuries from traffic accidents which could be held to result from reflective failure of a plate less than 10 years old," he explained.

Another problem was a legislative requirement for at least two qualified bidders before any contract could be awarded. Cozens said he believed only 3M was interested.

Last July 4, Reagan announced the current blue-and-gold plates would be replaced starting in 1974 with the red-white-and-blue ones. Thus, by the bicentennial celebrations in 1976 many of the state's 15 million vehicles would have a patriotic touch.

Because of the legal problems, Cozens said he did not expect another bidding invitation could be made for at least a year.

A SINGLETON

West leads his singleton heart, dummy plays the jack and East wins with the king. East returns a heart (preferably the ace), and South ruffs with the king of spades.

"Aha!" says the average West, "I can't get better value than that for my ace." And he overruffs. West's surrender to this temptation allows South to make his contract.

ANOTHER HEART

West next leads a diamond to his partner's ace, and East returns another heart. South ruffs with the queen and then draws trumps with the jack and ten. The rest is silence, unless East has a sharp eye and a tongue to match.

ACE CAN WAIT

There is no need for panicky haste in taking the ace of trumps. The Supreme Court would never let anybody take the ace of trumps away from you. Relax and wait for the right time.

When South ruffs the second trick with the king of spades, just discard a club or a diamond. Your turn will come.

HIGH SPADE

Declarer now leads the queen of spades, and you take the ace. You lead a diamond to East's ace, and he returns a heart. Now declarer must ruff with the jack to shut you out. He leads the ten of spades, drawing your deuce — and your eight of spades becomes the master trump! This middle-size trump, promoted by your restraint, defeats the contract.

ANSWER: Bid one heart. You have 14 points in high cards and a fairly strong five card major suit. This is ample for an opening bid.

Today is Monday, Dec. 24, the 358th day of 1973 with seven to follow. It's Christmas Eve.

The moon is new. The morning star is Mercury. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1814, a peace treaty between the United States and Great Britain was signed, ending the War of 1812.

In 1865, six men, most of them veterans of the Confederate Army, organized a secret fraternal society in Pulaski, Tenn., known as the Ku Klux Klan.

In 1942, Adm. Jean Louis Darlan, the French administrator of North Africa, was assassinated as a sympathizer of the French Vichy regime.

In 1949, the Christmas song "Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer," first hit the United States.

A thought for the day: Novelist James Thurber said, "You might as well fall flat on your face as to lean over too far backward."

Munich, Germany's 16-day Oktoberfest draws about five million persons who consume some 880,000 gallons of beer, 700,000 sausages and 500,000 roasted chickens. Oktoberfest is considered the biggest beer festival in the world.

A FAMILY TRADITION CONTINUES

Susan Scarpa, 23, gazes over a mammoth Christmas collage built by her mother, Phyllis, in the family dining room at 16 San Miquel Way, Novato. The display, which each year rises around the Christmas tree as part of a family tradition, is formed by more than 500 figurines that sit in mounds of cotton on a foundation of boxes.

Londoners Warned About Christmas Present Bombs

LONDON (UPI) — Scotland Yard today warned Londoners to expect more "Christmas present" bombs from Irish extremists blamed for a pre-holiday weekend of terror that injured six persons.

The warning followed six bomb explosions from late Friday night to yesterday evening. The injuries brought to 74 the number of persons wounded by 19 bomb blasts since the beginning of the terror campaign Dec. 17.

An anonymous telephone caller yesterday told the Press Association news agency: "There are three Christmas presents for you tonight — one (each) for the dead, murdered and interned in Northern Ireland."

Within an hour, bombs exploded outside Kensington police station in Earl's Court Road, the headquarters of a construction firm in Hammersmith and the White Lion pub in a downtown office block complex. There were no casualties.

A Scotland Yard spokesman said most of the 120 men of the London bomb squad would be on duty through Christmas. He warned the public not to forget the bomb menace during the holiday period.

Last night's three bombs went off within a five-mile radius. The telephone caller used an identification code known to police as belonging to someone whose previous information had been reliable.

The police spokesman said one theory the Yard has been investigating in trying to track down the bombers — believed to be members of the militant Irish Republican Army (IRA) — is that some of the blasts could be connected with Princess Anne's wedding. Two senior army officers who helped plan last month's royal wedding have been selected as letter bomb targets.

Last Saturday, a letter bomb posted to army Maj. Gen. Philip Ward, who had overall control of troops at the wedding, injured a police bomb expert examining suspicious mail.

Another bomb last Monday blew off the thumb of Queen Elizabeth's aide de camp, Brig. Michael O'Cock.

Fleeing Driver Cause Of Deaths

NEW YORK (UPI) — A driver trying to escape from police early yesterday ran into a limousine which slammed into a church wall, killing two persons, police said.

Lee Johnson, driver of a white Thunderbird that police said was stolen, was charged with 10 violations.

Killed were Fred Gregorio, 25, and his brother, Michael, 20. The nine other occupants of the limousine were injured.

Chinese Beer In California

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — If residents of the Golden Gate state enjoy one of China's best beers, the rest of the country's drinkers will get a chance to sample it.

"California is the tasting ground," said R. C. Wilson, Western regional sales manager for the premium Tsingtao (pronounced Ching-tow) beer, the same brew that Chairman Mao presented to President Nixon as a good will gesture.

"If people go for it here," said Wilson, "we will expand across the country."

Two shipments of 5,000 cases each recently arrived in Oakland and Los Angeles and Wilson opened an office on Fisherman's Wharf last week to promote the beer throughout Northern California.

New Patriotic License Plates Will Be Delayed In California

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California motorists will have to wait at least another year for the red-white-and-blue license plates which Gov. Ronald Reagan had said would be ready for the nation's 200th anniversary.

The reason for the delay is that no bids were received for reflective material that was to make the plates more visible as well as patriotic, state Motor Vehicles Director Robert C. Cozens said Saturday.

The contract offer stipulated that the reflective material must retain its brightness for at least 10 years because the state's license plates are used year after year.

But the 3M Company, the major manufacturer of the product, says it has had only five years to test the reflective material. "They didn't want to be legally liable for personal injuries from traffic accidents which could be held to result from reflective failure of a plate less than 10 years old," he explained.

Another problem was a legislative requirement for at least two qualified bidders before any contract could be awarded. Cozens said he believed only 3M was interested.

Last July 4, Reagan announced the current blue-and-gold plates would be replaced starting in 1974 with the red-white-and-blue ones. Thus, by the bicentennial celebrations in 1976 many of the state's 15 million vehicles would have a patriotic touch.

Because of the legal problems, Cozens said he did not expect another bidding invitation could be made for at least a year.

HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE
By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Trumps Should Be Promoted, But With Very Great Restraint

The youthful bridge player is willing to overruff at any time of the night or day. But when you're married, meek and middle-age you realize that there's a time and place for everything — even overruffing.

A SINGLETON

West leads his singleton heart, dummy plays the jack and East wins with the king. East returns a heart (preferably the ace), and South ruffs with the king of spades.

"Aha!" says the average West, "I can't get better value than that for my ace." And he overruffs. West's surrender to this temptation allows South to make his contract.

ANOTHER HEART

West next leads a diamond to his partner's ace, and East returns another heart. South ruffs with the queen and then draws trumps with the jack and ten. The rest is silence, unless East has a sharp eye and a tongue to match.

ACE CAN WAIT

There is no need for panicky haste in taking the ace of trumps. The Supreme Court would never let anybody take the ace of trumps away from you. Relax and wait for the right time.

When South ruffs the second trick with the king of spades, just discard a club or a diamond. Your turn will come.

HIGH SPADE

Declarer now leads the queen of spades, and you take the ace. You lead a diamond to East's ace, and he returns a heart. Now declarer must ruff with the jack to shut you out. He leads the ten of spades, drawing your deuce — and your eight of spades becomes the master trump! This middle-size trump, promoted by your restraint, defeats the contract.

DAILY QUESTION

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one heart.

You have 14 points in high cards and a fairly strong five card major suit. This is ample for an opening bid.

Rule Of Law Still A Vital Need In Changing Times

(Editor's Note: This is the 13th of 20 essays by leading men in the world's academic community. The writer of this essay is professor of law at the University of Chicago. Herein he discusses the role of law in a modern society.)

By PHILIP B. KURLAND
Distributed by Copley News Service

Law is a means to an end. Its function is to provide rules for the governance of a society. It is not, however, the creator of society; it is only the creature of society. For law does not determine its own content. Its content is determined by those to whom the society entrusts the lawmaking powers or by those who have imposed themselves as lawmakers on that society.

A system of laws, therefore, can be no better than those who make the laws. The resulting rules may be judged good or bad. But good or bad, the rule of society by law affords the only viable alternative yet discovered to a rule by force.

Law is, then, a set of rules provided by the governors of a society to control individual behavior within that society. These governors may be the elected representatives of the people, as in a democracy; they may be self-imposed, as in a dictatorship; they may be inheritors of that function, as in a monarchy. Any of these forms of government is capable of utilizing law as a means of rule. But, ordinarily, when we refer to the rule of law, we refer to the promulgation of laws by a rational system rather than through arbitrary imposition by fiat.

The rule of law, as we know it, is implied in Dean Roscoe Pound's dictum: "Civilization involves subjection of force to reason, and the agency of this subjection is law."

Obviously, however, much of the behavior of individuals within a society will not be controlled by rules established by government. Certainly as a society becomes more and more complex and interdependent, the formal rules of law will be directed to more and more of its members' activities. Nevertheless, no society however complex — at least short of George Orwell's horrific if prescient description in "1984" — can survive in the absence of mutual understanding of what is proper behavior though not dictated by law.

Without such mutual regard for appropriate behavior, what might be termed civility, society will be as riven as if it were without law.

If the alternative to the rule of law is the rule of force, the alternative to civility is barbarism. And to the extent that America is threatened by chaos, it is due as much to the decline of civility as it is to the decline of the rule of law.

Law, to be effective, must represent the consensus of the society that it purports to govern. A society fragmented by differences, as this country is today, makes consensus difficult to attain. And the effectuation of the laws becomes that much harder. There must, if the rule of law is to be maintained, be at least a consensus that law is to be obeyed.

This does not mean that the law should be free of criticism, nor that the law cannot be changed. Indeed, where the mechanism for peaceful change is not provided within the system, that system can hardly claim to come within the rule of law.

But change mechanisms provided within the system cannot be equated with active obstruction or defiance of the law, whether by the lowliest individual or the highest official of the land.

PHILIP B. KURLAND

Our system of law is different from all others, including those of other democracies — both in details and in fundamentals. The fundamental objective of the American system is the preservation of the freedom of each individual consistent with the freedom of all other individuals in the society. Other societies have similar aspirations but the American system has been based on written constitutions which purport to control — by a higher rule of law — who shall make the rules and what rules might appropriately be made.

It is not the rule of law that distinguishes the United States from so many other systems, but the constitutional limitations on the rule of law that put certain matters beyond the reach of any branch of government and restrict lawmaking powers to particular branches of government.

The American Constitution was based on the knowledge through experience that power corrupts the processes of government and threatens the freedom of the individual. Power, the Constitution writers believed, should, therefore, be dispersed rather than concentrated. Consequently, the Constitution divided the functions of government in what was then a unique federal system between the nation on the one hand and the states on the other.

The national government was to be one of specified, limited powers, delegated from the states or the people.

History has largely destroyed this original concept of federalism, in part because the several communities that were the states became a single community that is the nation, largely through the technological revolutions in transportation, communication and the production of goods.

In part the demise of federalism has also been due to the failure of the states to assume the responsibilities that are the necessary concomitants of power and to the grasp for authority by the central government, which secured power through the use of the income tax as the primary source of revenues.

Within the national government, the Constitution provided for the dispersal of power through a division of authority among three branches of government, the legislative, the executive and the judicial, and a series of checks and balances that each could assert against the others.

The views presented in these articles are those of the writers, and do not necessarily reflect the views of this newspaper, Copley News Service, the colleges and universities involved, or the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Because of their unhappy experience with the British Crown, the writers of the Constitution attempted to provide a strong legislature and a weak executive. But once again history has tended to thwart the intentions of the framers. Since the Civil War, and more rapidly since the presidency of Franklin D. Roosevelt, power has been moving from the legislative branch to the executive.

Today the president claims and exerts powers of lawmaking that are certainly inconsistent with the notion of Congressional primacy. The shift has come both because of the unwillingness of Congress to assume responsibility and the eagerness with which the executive has grasped at all power that comes within its reach.

With the increased concentration of governmental authority in the national government and, within the national government, in the executive branch, the constitutional provisions which inhibit all parts of government from infringing liberties guaranteed to the people have become more important.

The Bill of Rights forbids a congeries of actions to the lawmakers of this country, whoever they might be. But the necessity for interpretation has resulted in the Supreme Court of the United States becoming the penultimate arbiter of their meanings. (The court is only the penultimate authority because the last decision belongs not to the court, but to the people, either by way of constitutional amendment — a seldom used device — or by nonacquiescence in Supreme Court judgment, which fortunately has also been comparatively rare in American history.)

Thus, the Supreme Court, too, has become an important lawmaker, because as Bishop Hoadly (the 18th Century philosopher) had it: "Whoever hath an absolute authority to interpret any written or spoken laws, it is he who is truly the lawgiver to all intents and purposes, and not the person who first spoke or wrote them." In part, too, the lawmaking role of the Supreme Court is based on the common-law tradition by which courts, in the course of their dispute-settling function, created rules to govern decisions in later cases.

In part, also, this is due to the necessity, if we are to be a constitutional democracy, of placing somewhere the ultimate authority as to the meaning of the Constitution. And, since the Bill of Rights is largely a limitation on the powers of the majority and its representatives, the authority seems best placed in those who are not directly responsible to the electorate for their decisions.

This does not or should not mean that the justices of the Supreme Court are free to make of the Constitution whatever their personal predilections would command. In the words of Mr. Justice Felix Frankfurter: "Law alone saves a society from being rent by internecine strife or ruled by mere brute power however disguised . . . The conception of a government of laws dominated the thoughts of those who founded the nation and designed its Constitution, although they knew . . . that laws have to be made, interpreted and enforced by men. To that end they set apart a body of men, who were to be depositaries of law, who by their disciplined training and character and by withdrawal from the usual temptations of private interest may be reasonably be expected to be 'as free, impartial, and independent as the lot of humanity will admit.' "

Such a demand on human frailties could not be expected to be perfectly met. It has not been.

Much that the Supreme Court has done is little more than personal choice of proper rules for government, rules that the Constitution had properly placed within the competence of the democratically chosen Congress rather than the lifetime officials whose selection was by the president with the advice and consent of the Senate, but whose independence from both other branches inheres in the office as described by the Constitution.

In this day when reason has become suspect and emotion admired, law as the epitome of reason based on experience is in danger. The danger was described by C.P. Snow in his novel "Sleep of Reason" in a way that all who lived through the holocaust of Hitlerism and Stalinism can understand perfectly.

"Put reason to sleep, and all the stronger forces would be let loose. We had seen that happen in our lifetime. In the world: and close to us. We knew, we couldn't get out of knowing, that it meant a chance of hell."

We abandon the rule of law, if we do, not with "a chance of hell" but with the certainty of it.

In part the demise of federalism has also been due to the failure of the states to assume the responsibilities that are the necessary concomitants of power and to the grasp for authority by the central government, which secured power through the use of the income tax as the primary source of revenues.

Within the national government, the Constitution provided for the dispersal of power through a division of authority among three branches of government, the legislative, the executive and the judicial, and a series of checks and balances that each could assert against the others.

The views presented in these articles are those of the writers, and do not necessarily reflect the views of this newspaper, Copley News Service, the colleges and universities involved, or the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Because of their unhappy experience with the British Crown, the writers of the Constitution attempted to provide a strong legislature and a weak executive. But once again history has tended to thwart the intentions of the framers. Since the Civil War, and more rapidly since the presidency of Franklin D. Roosevelt, power has been moving from the legislative branch to the executive.

Today the president claims and exerts powers of lawmaking that are certainly inconsistent with the notion of Congressional primacy. The shift has come both because of the unwillingness of Congress to assume responsibility and the eagerness with which the executive has grasped at all power that comes within its reach.

With the increased concentration of governmental authority in the national government and, within the national government, in the executive branch, the constitutional provisions which inhibit all parts of government from infringing liberties guaranteed to the people have become more important.

The Bill of Rights forbids a congeries of actions to the lawmakers of this country, whoever they might be. But the necessity for interpretation has resulted in the Supreme Court of the United States becoming the penultimate arbiter of their meanings. (The court is only the penultimate authority because the last decision belongs not to the court, but to the people, either by way of constitutional amendment — a seldom used device — or by nonacquiescence in Supreme Court judgment, which fortunately has also been comparatively rare in American history.)

Thus, the Supreme Court, too, has become an important lawmaker, because as Bishop Hoadly (the 18th Century philosopher) had it: "Whoever hath an absolute authority to interpret any written or spoken laws, it is he who is truly the lawgiver to all intents and purposes, and not the person who first spoke or wrote them." In part, too, the lawmaking role of the Supreme Court is based on the common-law tradition by which courts, in the course of their dispute-settling function, created rules to govern decisions in later cases.

In part, also, this is due to the necessity, if we are to be a constitutional democracy, of placing somewhere the ultimate authority as to the meaning of the Constitution. And, since the Bill of Rights is largely a limitation on the powers of the majority and its representatives, the authority seems best placed in those who are not directly responsible to the electorate for their decisions.

This does not or should not mean that the justices of the Supreme Court are free to make of the Constitution whatever their personal predilections would command. In the words of Mr. Justice Felix Frankfurter: "Law alone saves a society from being rent by internecine strife or ruled by mere brute power however disguised . . . The conception of a government of laws dominated the thoughts of those who founded the nation and designed its Constitution, although they knew . . . that laws have to be made, interpreted and enforced by men. To that end they set apart a body of men, who were to be depositaries of law, who by their disciplined training and character and by withdrawal from the usual temptations of private interest may be reasonably be expected to be 'as free, impartial, and independent as the lot of humanity will admit.' "

Such a demand on human frailties could not be expected to be perfectly met. It has not been.

Much that the Supreme Court has done is little more than personal choice of proper rules for government, rules that the Constitution had properly placed within the competence of the democratically chosen Congress rather than the lifetime officials whose selection was by the president with the advice and consent of the Senate, but whose independence from both other branches inheres in the office as described by the Constitution.

In this day when reason has become suspect and emotion admired, law as the epitome of reason based on experience is in danger. The danger was described by C.P. Snow in his novel "Sleep of Reason" in a way that all who lived through the holocaust of Hitlerism and Stalinism can understand perfectly.

"Put reason to sleep, and all the stronger forces would be let loose. We had seen that happen in our lifetime. In the world: and close to us. We knew, we couldn't get out of knowing, that it meant a chance of hell."

We abandon the rule of law, if we do, not with "a chance of hell" but with the certainty of it.

A LIGHTED PATHWAY TO CHRISTMAS

Rows of luminarios glow alongside Highway 101, in what has become a Novato tradition. It began with Hamilton Air Force Base families that saw the centuries-old yuletide custom in the Southwest. Each evening after sundown, the last few nights before Christmas, residents in many neighborhoods put out the paper bags partly filled with sand and a lighted candle. The luminarios outline creche scenes or sidewalks. Christmas Eve brings out the brightest display, whole blocks glowing in South Novato, Loma Verde, Marin Highlands, The Oaks, Domingo Canyon, San Marin and elsewhere.

Companies Asked To Tell Of Interest Rate Effects

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) is considering a notice to public companies for fuller disclosure of the effects of high interest rates.

With the stock market in a two-month slump and many companies facing difficulty in raising capital from issues of securities, more firms are being forced to turn to banks where the prime rate has been swinging between 9 and 10 per cent.

"We would like to know what the effect of this high cost money is going to be on operating costs and profits now and in the immediate years ahead," a high SEC official said.

The notice would be similar to one last week in which the SEC said the "timely disclosure" rule requires companies to estimate the "actual or potential impact that possible fuel shortages" would have.

Some companies had been providing information on the energy situation in proxies, filings with the SEC and public announcements. But others had been quiet on energy.

SEC officials said the effect of borrowing money could also be profound on many companies. So far, however, companies have been slow to provide information to investors, the officials said.

There was no firm date for the disclosure notice on interest, but officials noted that four-day federal holidays for Christmas and New Year's would cause some delays.

SEC officials said they hoped companies would respond to "reminders" that the investing public must have meaningful information on the impact of possible fuel shortages and high interest rates on sales and profits.

If the general notices fail to generate a response that the SEC considers significant, officials said tougher steps would be taken, possibly in the form of specific guidelines.

Song Writers Win Christmas Awards

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (UPI) — Irving Berlin, who wrote "White Christmas" and Johnny Marks, the "Rudolph the RedNosed Reindeer" author, nosed out Charles Dickens today for spirit of Christmas awards.

Berlin and Marks were named by the International Society of Santa Claus as the first recipients of the society's annual awards to persons who have contributed greatly to the spirit of the Christmas season.

The society's bewhiskered 8,379 members picked the two men over 11 others on a list of possible recipients.

Runners up included Charles Dickens for his "Christmas Carol" and Clement C. Moore who wrote "Twas the night before Christmas."

Open Space Purchase To Be Eyed

Purchase of some 32 acres of waterfront property on Gallinas Creek in Santa Venetia for open space will be considered for Thursday by directors of the Marin County Open Space District.

The land, located on the east side of the Gallinas Village subdivision, recently was sold to the trust for public land, which has offered it to the county for about $71,000.

Assessor Bert W. Broemmel said the land has a market value of about $135,000. It was previously owned by the Santa Venetia Land Co. which had an independent appraisal done, indicating the land's value at $300,000.

Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere, who put "the package" together for the county, said the land company will probably claim the unpaid difference as a tax writeoff.

The filled parcel is on the south side of Gallinas Creek across from the county's John F. McInnis Park. It has about 2,700 feet of shoreline.

Pierre W. Joske, general manager of the open space district, recommended its acquisition. It could be developed in the future as part of McInnis Park.

Fire In Mobile Home Kills Eight

FLINT, Mich. (UPI) — Eight persons died early today when a fire of undetermined origin raged through their mobile home in suburban Clayton Township.

Early reports from the Genesee County Sheriff's Department said nine persons died and later they put the toll at six. But when the charred bodies were finally recovered from the rubble, authorities said eight had perished.

One sheriff's deputy said the blaze may have been caused by faulty Christmas tree lighting, but authorities were not certain and the state fire marshal was called in to investigate.

Vet Finally Receives GI Check

A long-awaited GI Bill benefits check arrived Saturday at the David D. Buckley home in San Rafael, temporarily rescuing the family from financial disaster.

Buckley, a Vietnam veteran who spent three years aboard the carrier Midway, has been trying since October to obtain benefits for carpentry training he's taking.

Buckley's first Veterans Administration check for $104 is to be followed by almost $600 more as soon as documents are processed, according to the administration.

Buckley's plight is not unlike that of some 5,000 students in Southern California who have also been awaiting benefit checks, some for as long as four months, according to Associated Press.

President Richard M. Nixon demanded a full report on the lag in payments after the president of California State University at Long Beach complained in a telegram to the White House that "Southern California veterans are hurting severely, especially at Christmas."

Buckley's plight is especially grim since he has been unable to make payments on a $3,000 loan, and a finance company has threatened to reposess the family car, as well as take his furniture.

Partial Sun Eclipse Seen In New England

BOSTON (UPI) — A partial eclipse of the sun was visible over most of New England today reaching its maximum level at 9:20 a.m.

The annular eclipse began at 8:20 a.m. when the moon, approaching its farthest point from the earth, passed in front of the sun, according to the Center for Astrophysics at the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory in Cambridge.

From an optimum viewing location, an annular eclipse is seen as a thin outer ring of sunlight shining brightly around a smaller dark disk, the moon, but this phenomenon was not visible locally.

Dr. Brian G. Marsden of the Smithsonian said the partial eclipse obscured the bottom part of the sun, reducing light about 50 per cent at 9:20 a.m. The eclipse, which was to last about two hours, was of limited interest to scientists, according to Marsden.

He said the sunlight that remained even at maximum coverage was too bright to allow any meaningful study of the sun's corona, or outer atmosphere. He said the best spot to have viewed the eclipse was at the mouth of the Amazon River.

Prayers Offered For World Peace

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI yesterday offered prayers for world peace in a blessing to about 2,000 persons below his window in St. Peter's Square. The pontiff said Christmas was "a holiday generating peace."

"We express the wish in prayer," he said. "This is good diplomacy, and in these days extremely full of urgency and of hope." Vatican sources said the Pope was referring to the Middle East peace conference, which opened Friday in Geneva.

Bay Area Meatcutters Ratify A New Contract

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Bay Area meatcutters, who had already returned to work Friday after an 18-day strike, ratified a new, three-year contract over the weekend, according to federal mediator Eugene J. Barry.

The members of several butchers' and meatcutters' locals under contract with the Food Employers Council, will receive a 5.5 per cent wage hike each year, and a 10 per cent increase in pension benefits each year, Barry reported.

In addition, butchers will get two cost-of-living raises each of the next two years, and a single such raise in 1976.

Barry reported the cost-of-living raises, chief issue in the negotiations, were resolved by a compromise formula based on the Consumer Price Index.

The strike, principally against Safeway and Lucky markets, resulted in shutdown of a majority of other Bay Area supermarkets for a few days in the strike's early stages.

Councilman Arrested By Patrol

A Ross town councilman was arrested yesterday on suspicion of drunken driving, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Alan Preston Maginis, 50, of 3 Crest Road, was stopped at 2:20 a.m. after driving erratically north on the Golden Gate Bridge, the highway patrol said.

Maginis, a real estate executive, was released from county jail on his promise to appear Friday in Marin Municipal Court.

He was appointed to the town council in January 1971 to fill the term of Ralph C. Walker, who resigned. Maginis was re-elected in 1972.

The highway patrol reported that a total of 15 persons were arrested on suspicion of drunken driving Saturday and yesterday.

Fewer Pilgrims Take Trip To Bethlehem

BETHLEHEM, Israeli-occupied Jordan (UPI) — Their numbers sharply reduced from recent years, pilgrims began streaming today into the Judean hilltop town of Bethlehem where Jesus Christ was born. Israeli troops patrolled Manger Square to guard against any Arab guerrilla disruption of Christmas Eve services.

Church bells pealed and an Israeli police band played "O Come All Ye Faithful" as a procession of Roman Catholic clergymen, led by Jerusalem's Latin Patriarch, Msgr. Giacomo Beltritti, arrived for afternoon prayers in the Church of the Nativity, said to be the site of Christ's birth.

The first of an expected 5,000 Christian pilgrims, half the usual number, entered this ancient town in the Judean hills for celebrations culminating in Midnight Mass in St. Catherine's Church, which adjoins the Church of the Nativity.

"This is an unusual year," said George Freij, son of Mayor Elias M. Freij, "because normally the square is jammed with pilgrims and tourists by the time the procession begins in the afternoon.

"This year, you can see that most of the people here, say about 90 per cent, are local Arab residents, and the square isn't even half full."

It was, in fact, about one-third filled.

Israeli soldiers and green-bereted border police barricaded all entrances to the town before dawn, allowing in only those with special passes. Helmeted troops carrying submachine guns patrolled in and around Bethlehem.

Local Arabs in flowing black robes and white headdresses, having witnessed the event many times before, munched on felafel and drank coffee during most of the hour-long procession through Manger Square, which was surrounded with red and green light strands. A Christmas tree stood opposite a nearby police station.

A police band in navy blue serge uniforms and blue caps alternated Christmas carols with rousing march music throughout the afternoon under sunny skies with temperatures in the 40s. Two American choirs and two Belgian choral groups sang the traditional Christmas carols along with local Arab Christian groups during the evening celebrations.

More Americans Support Israel

PRINCETON,N.J. (UPI) — A growing number of Americans support Israel despite the Arab oil embargo against the United States and other countries, according to the Gallup poll.

The Gallup findings, released Sunday, show a return of support for Israel, whose popularity reached 54 per cent among the 1,514 persons interviewed across the country between Dec. 7 and 10.

This represented a 7 point increase from the 47 per cent who backed Israel in a poll taken immediately after the war began on Oct. 6.

Israel's popularity had slipped steadily from 55 per cent during the six-day war of June, 1967 to 50 per cent in February, 1969, and 44 per cent in March, 1970.

Quints Will Make Yule Hectic One

BRUSH PRAIRIE, Wash. (UPI) — It will be a merry — but hectic — Christmas for Mr. and Mrs. Eric Anderson and their seven children — including the five babies born to the couple last April 26.

The quintuplets are thriving.

Diane had been scheduled for surgical repair of a heart defect this month but is considered so stable she can wait four months or so for the operation, her mother said.

The quints are crawling, which has made life lively in the Anderson household, which also includes Eric Jr., 5, and Paul, 3.

Roger is ready to get his first two teeth. Owen has decided to drink from a cup rather than a bottle. Audrey has learned to scream to gain attention.

Mrs. Anderson is a little late sending out the family Christmas cards but said she will have time to serve dessert Christmas day to her husband's family, her own family and the family of Dr. Roger George, the obstetrician who delivered the quintuplets at Bess Kaiser Hospital in Portland.

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (AP) — If your food budget is tight, don't invite Basie de Vries, 26, or Ettienne Mayer, 28, around for a meal. They are local cochampion eaters and recently consumed 36 boiled eggs, 48 pancakes and 3½ pints of soft drinks each inside half an hour.

Fisherman Presumed Drowned At Fort

A San Francisco man was presumed drowned yesterday in the rough surf off Tennessee Point at Fort Cronkhite, but his companions were saved in a dramatic rescue effort by the Coast Guard and Army.

Kenneth Spaulding, 27, a resident of Delancey Street Foundation, was swept out to sea when a large wave swept over a rocky ledge where he and nine other members of the rehabilitation group were fishing.

Two men, Mark Wilson, 22, and Lawrence Burke, 28, were rescued, one by Coast Guard helicopter and the other by a line thrown from the shore, after they tried to swim out to save Spalding.

Both men were flown by helicopter to Letterman Hospital at the Presidio of San Francisco, where they were treated for shock and minor cuts.

Bay Area Meatcutters Ratify A New Contract

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Bay Area meatcutters, who had already returned to work Friday after an 18-day strike, ratified a new, three-year contract over the weekend, according to federal mediator Eugene J. Barry.

The members of several butchers' and meatcutters' locals under contract with the Food Employers Council, will receive a 5.5 per cent wage hike each year, and a 10 per cent increase in pension benefits each year, Barry reported.

In addition, butchers will get two cost-of-living raises each of the next two years, and a single such raise in 1976.

Barry reported the cost-of-living raises, chief issue in the negotiations, were resolved by a compromise formula based on the Consumer Price Index.

The strike, principally against Safeway and Lucky markets, resulted in shutdown of a majority of other Bay Area supermarkets for a few days in the strike's early stages.

Councilman Arrested By Patrol

A Ross town councilman was arrested yesterday on suspicion of drunken driving, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Alan Preston Maginis, 50, of 3 Crest Road, was stopped at 2:20 a.m. after driving erratically north on the Golden Gate Bridge, the highway patrol said.

Maginis, a real estate executive, was released from county jail on his promise to appear Friday in Marin Municipal Court.

He was appointed to the town council in January 1971 to fill the term of Ralph C. Walker, who resigned. Maginis was re-elected in 1972.

The highway patrol reported that a total of 15 persons were arrested on suspicion of drunken driving Saturday and yesterday.

ART REVIEW

David Laurence Watercolors Are Jewel-Toned, Nostalgic

By ADA GARFINKEL

David Laurence of San Anselmo is an accountant by profession and in interior designer by avocation. He is also a history buff and fascinated by English literature and classic European architecture, especially of the Victorian period.

Laurence is, moreover, gifted with a remarkable facility to reconstruct his findings graphically or to portray invented structures dramatically. These emerge as richly and skillfully rendered jewel-toned watercolor portraits of some of the significant and enduring architecture and artifacts of the classic periods of England and France.

In his exhibit of 18 handsomely-priced paintings at the Village Frames and Gallery in Fairfax, 10 of which were claimed by collectors on opening day) it isn't easy at first to tell which of these nostalgic scenes are real, and which are figments of Laurence's inventive imagination. Yet each one is completely believable.

With a bit of help from the gallery attendants and an occasional reference in the title which is sometimes included as part of the painting, one can soon make the distinction.

The tall, narrow Victorian "1198 Fulton Street" does, of course, exist.

So does the glass-domed "Kedleston Hall, Derbyshire" seen in a cut-away section disclosing red marbelized columns, gilded Corinthian capitals, and tall niches, embellished with wreaths and scrolls in low-relief and filled with stiffly formal Napoleonic urns and statuary.

But the homey "Victoria Place," a scene of four rowhouses — each in a different color — with similar, sharply peaked roofs, leaded-and-stained-glass windows and "ginger'bread" ornamentation, is his own invention.

So is the multi-storied "Elms" with its thousand and one turrets, balustrades, and facings.

Laurence has traveled and researched extensively. In "Chateau Amboise," for example, he reconstructs the closely clustered group of dwellings which formerly surrounded the remaining battlements of this fifteenth century French castle. A contemporary note crops up in the abstract treatment of the trees and river flow.

One of Laurence's sources of inspiration is the eighteenth century Italian engraver Piranesi. His influence is seen in the strongly massed black and white contrasts in two versions of "Classic Urn" and in "The Rezzonico Clock."

"Le Classique" — Laurence's largest work — is a tour de force which took six weeks to complete. It has much of the monumentality and splendor of Romanesque sculpture and medallion ornamentation which Laurence and Piranesi both love.

The artist's authentic and engaging compilation of the design ornamentation of the Greco-Roman, French and English Renaissance, and Empire periods is an important addition to this show.

This exhibit will continue through Jan. 10 and may be seen daily except Tuesday, from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and from noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

North Korea Makes New Ship Demand

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UPI) — North Korea renewed its demand today that all South Korean ships get advance permission from the North in order to sail to five South Korean-held islands in the Yellow Sea.

North Korea reiterated that waters around the five islands are under its jurisdiction, and warned that a serious situation would result unless its demand is met.

It was the second time since Oct. 1 the North laid territorial claim to the waters and demanded that vessels from the South get prior Northern approval to sail in the area.

The United Nations Command (UNC), as it did on the previous occasion, rejected the North Korean claim and demand and said UNC will honor its obligation to support the people living on the five islands.

The exchange took place at the 347th meeting of the Korean Military Armistice Commission (MAC). North Korea called the meeting.

North Korean Army Maj. Gen. Kim Pung-Sop, Communist spokesman, said UNC should honor the North Korean claim and demand to ensure safe naval passage in the area.

"I admit the five islands are under your military control but the waters around them are under our jurisdiction," Kim said. "Therefore I demand the withdrawal of all military vessels from the area."

Since North Korea raised the claims, South Korea has been continuing ferry service under heavy naval escort to support 15,000 residents of the islands.

The five islands are Yonpyongdo, Sochongdo, Daechongdo, Paegnyondo and Woodoo, located 75 to 135 miles west of Seoul. They are South Korean military outposts overlooking the sea adjacent to the western tip of the military demarcation line dividing South and North Korea.

Judge Plays Santa To 16 Prisoners

LOGAN, W. Va. (UPI) — Circuit Judge Harvey Oakley played Santa Claus to 16 persons serving time in the Logan County Jail on theft charges.

The judge told the 16 they could have five days off to observe Christmas. He instructed them to return to the jail by Thursday.

Four Men Are Held In Paintings Theft

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Four men were held by police under "investigative detention" today after a second stolen Rembrandt painting was returned and nearly all the $100,000 ransom was recovered.

Because $4,000 of the ransom money was still missing, police were tight-lipped about some details of the weekend chain-ofevents which ended five days of bizarre negotiations and late-night rendezvous aimed at recovery of the Rembrandt masterpieces.

Nine persons, seven men and two women, had been held at first, but five were released after day-long questioning.

McLaughlin said the suspects were "young" in age, but he would not elaborate. However, they were not believed to be teen-agers.

The 331-year-old "Portrait of an Elderly Woman," was returned free by the thieves last Thursday night, but they demanded $200,000 ransom for the 323-year-old "Man Leaning on a Sill."

After long and tedious negotiations Friday and Saturday, the thieves agreed to a $100,000 offer from museum officials. The money, in small bills in two white sacks, was taken late Saturday night to the thieves' requested "drop off" spot — a propane gas tank alongside a road about 25 miles northeast of downtown Cincinnati.

About three hours later, following instructions from an unnamed caller, police found the painting under a rural house several miles from the money "drop" point.

Police said the arrests were made about two hours later and $50,000 of the $100,000 ransom money recovered. Later yesterday another $46,000 was recovered.

Police refused to elaborate on how the arrests were made and where the money was recovered.

Although there was a small, "minor" scratch on the first Rembrandt painting returned, McLaughlin said the second painting "appears to be in good shape."

The works were appraised for insurance purposes more than 10 years ago at $330,000, but some art critics say their value is in the millions of dollars.

'Bomb' Is Only A Ticking Toy

BERLIN (UPI) — Police cleared the arrival hall at West Berlin's Tegel Airfield yesterday and sent for demolition experts when an unclaimed suitcase began ticking.

No one claimed the suitcase because it arrived on a charter flight from Palma de Mallorca by mistake. It should have gone to London.

One of Laurence's sources of inspiration is the eighteenth century Italian engraver Piranesi. His influence is seen in the strongly massed black and white contrasts in two versions of "Classic Urn" and in "The Rezzonico Clock."

"Le Classique" — Laurence's largest work — is a tour de force which took six weeks to complete. It has much of the monumentality and splendor of Romanesque sculpture and medallion ornamentation which Laurence and Piranesi both love.

The artist's authentic and engaging compilation of the design ornamentation of the Greco-Roman, French and English Renaissance, and Empire periods is an important addition to this show.

This exhibit will continue through Jan. 10 and may be seen daily except Tuesday, from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and from noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

The gallery is located at 2088 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Fairfax.

The 68-year-old former movie Tarzan, winner of five gold medals in swimming at the 1920 and 1924 Olympics, was admitted to the hospital Wednesday night after falling off a chair and fracturing his hip at the Caesars Palace hotel, where he works as a host.

Five Lost Boys Found All Right

MT. SHASTA (UPI) — Five teen-age boys lost during a Mount Shasta ski trip were found in good condition yesterday after spending the night huddled in deep snow.

John Williamson of the Redding Ski Patrol found the youths huddled beneath a tree. He said they had broken off limbs and formed "a little nest."

The Siskiyou County Sheriff's office said Kirk Larson, Greg Largent, Bobbie Killingsworth and Marion Apadaco, all 13, and Timmy Pierce, 12, all of Weed, planned to ski Saturday from Ski Bowl to the Everett Memorial Highway, about five miles.

Young Largent told searchers they became lost in fog and were forced to seek shelter under the tree for the night.

North Korea Makes New Ship Demand

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UPI) — North Korea renewed its demand today that all South Korean ships get advance permission from the North in order to sail to five South Korean-held islands in the Yellow Sea.

North Korea reiterated that waters around the five islands are under its jurisdiction, and warned that a serious situation would result unless its demand is met.

It was the second time since Oct. 1 the North laid territorial claim to the waters and demanded that vessels from the South get prior Northern approval to sail in the area.

The United Nations Command (UNC), as it did on the previous occasion, rejected the North Korean claim and demand and said UNC will honor its obligation to support the people living on the five islands.

The exchange took place at the 347th meeting of the Korean Military Armistice Commission (MAC). North Korea called the meeting.

North Korean Army Maj. Gen. Kim Pung-Sop, Communist spokesman, said UNC should honor the North Korean claim and demand to ensure safe naval passage in the area.

"I admit the five islands are under your military control but the waters around them are under our jurisdiction," Kim said. "Therefore I demand the withdrawal of all military vessels from the area."

Since North Korea raised the claims, South Korea has been continuing ferry service under heavy naval escort to support 15,000 residents of the islands.

The five islands are Yonpyongdo, Sochongdo, Daechongdo, Paegnyondo and Woodoo, located 75 to 135 miles west of Seoul. They are South Korean military outposts overlooking the sea adjacent to the western tip of the military demarcation line dividing South and North Korea.

Judge Plays Santa To 16 Prisoners

LOGAN, W. Va. (UPI) — Circuit Judge Harvey Oakley played Santa Claus to 16 persons serving time in the Logan County Jail on theft charges.

The judge told the 16 they could have five days off to observe Christmas. He instructed them to return to the jail by Thursday.

Four Men Are Held In Paintings Theft

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Four men were held by police under "investigative detention" today after a second stolen Rembrandt painting was returned and nearly all the $100,000 ransom was recovered.

Because $4,000 of the ransom money was still missing, police were tight-lipped about some details of the weekend chain-ofevents which ended five days of bizarre negotiations and late-night rendezvous aimed at recovery of the Rembrandt masterpieces.

Nine persons, seven men and two women, had been held at first, but five were released after day-long questioning.

McLaughlin said the suspects were "young" in age, but he would not elaborate. However, they were not believed to be teen-agers.

The 331-year-old "Portrait of an Elderly Woman," was returned free by the thieves last Thursday night, but they demanded $200,000 ransom for the 323-year-old "Man Leaning on a Sill."

After long and tedious negotiations Friday and Saturday, the thieves agreed to a $100,000 offer from museum officials. The money, in small bills in two white sacks, was taken late Saturday night to the thieves' requested "drop off" spot — a propane gas tank alongside a road about 25 miles northeast of downtown Cincinnati.

About three hours later, following instructions from an unnamed caller, police found the painting under a rural house several miles from the money "drop" point.

Police said the arrests were made about two hours later and $50,000 of the $100,000 ransom money recovered. Later yesterday another $46,000 was recovered.

Police refused to elaborate on how the arrests were made and where the money was recovered.

Although there was a small, "minor" scratch on the first Rembrandt painting returned, McLaughlin said the second painting "appears to be in good shape."

The works were appraised for insurance purposes more than 10 years ago at $330,000, but some art critics say their value is in the millions of dollars.

'Bomb' Is Only A Ticking Toy

BERLIN (UPI) — Police cleared the arrival hall at West Berlin's Tegel Airfield yesterday and sent for demolition experts when an unclaimed suitcase began ticking.

FOR MARIN CONVALESCENTS

She Makes Life A Little Brighter

'I'M JUST A Girl Who Can't Say No'' sings Patti Newman to a patient at the Rafael Convalescent Home in San Rafael. Mrs. Newman, who lives in San Rafael, has been entertaining at convalescent homes in Marin for the past three months. The professional actress says there is no greater reward than seeing the response from the people.

By JOAN LISETOR

Most of the audience of elderly men and women was in wheel chairs. Some stared into space while others were absorbed in the entertainment as Patti Newman gave a lively rendition of "Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer" at the Rafael Convalescent Home in San Rafael last week.

Her exuberance was contagious. After a few more Christmas songs some sang along, more began clapping and ringing the bells she handed out before the show, and finally an elderly man stood up. He began to sing in a tenor voice, probably once clear, but now the victim of age.

The entertainer stood by in rapt attention as the man finished the long, agonizing song, and the show continued. More of the audience joined in, and as the music drifted through the home more and more wheelchairs made their way into the room.

Someone called out, "again" when Mrs. Newman, wearing a funny straw hat, finished a lively "I'm Just A Girl Who Can't Say No." Many more Christmas songs followed, and tempo grew to the finale, "We Wish You A Merry Christmas."

THE SHOW was over but no one wanted to leave. Mrs. Newman passed through the audience collecting the bells, talking to each patient individually, wishing each a Merry Christmas.

"I'm a ham, I love to do it," she said, catching her breath after the show. "I get a natural high from it."

For the past three months the San Rafael woman has entertained at many convalescent hospitals and senior citizen functions in Marin.

Her payment? Sometimes a turkey sandwich, sometimes a glass of wine, but no amount of money could equal the reward she gets from seeing lonely people made happy, she said.

"At one of the homes the other day two little men were sitting in their chairs oblivious to what was going on when I started. Then I noticed they were paying a little attention, and by the sixth number they were singing with me," she said.

"I get the men up dancing. They're so charming, and it's funny, they hold me very tight."

She found herself in demand after doing a few shows.

"One convalescent hospital tells another, and they all ask me to come back, even if I do the same show," she said.

"WHEN I'M finished I like to go around and shake hands and talk to each one. It's sad because some of them can't respond. I remember an 11-year-old girl at Linda Vista. The only things she could move were her eyes. She smiled through her eyes, how they sparkled. I smiled back at her but with tears in my eyes."

Patti has been a performer most of her life. She really caught the acting bug when she was a 5 year old and her dancing class gave spring recital. At the end of a chorus line of ten 5-year-olds carrying roses she dropped her flower, stooped to pick it up and caused the entire line to stumble over her.

"The audience roared; I got my first laugh; and I loved it," she said.

Another favorite story is when she was 18 years old and the member of a chorus in an industrial show promoting American Motors cars in Detroit. She woke up that morning with the flu, but being a "show must go on performer," she had herself shot full of medicine. In the wings, dazed from fever and medication, she thought she heard the cue for the chorus to enter. Out she waltzed only to find herself in the middle of an enormous stage, where George Romney was standing next to an automobile. When she realized where she was, she stopped dead. Romney spotted her and just stared. Patti smiled, saluted and tiptoed off stage, and she had broken up another audience.

For the past 21 years she has combined her career with marriage. Her husgand, Al, is the program director of radio station KSFO. They have four children, Lauri, 14, twins Tracy and Becky, 13 and Danny, 11 years old.

"I WISH I had more time to spend with older people on a one-to-one basis," she said. "They have nothing to do and need a reason to live."

The Newman family has a large, productive organic garden, and Mrs. Newman believes that growing vegetables could solve some of the problems of the elderly.

"If we could give them some land and let them get out and dig with their hands in the dirt it would be so helpful.

It could solve two problems," she said, "the food shortage we are facing and would give the people something to do."

She also emphasized that Christmas time should not be the only time of year people pay attention to those who need their attention all year around.

AUDIENCE RESPONSE grows as the show goes on when she is entertaining at convalescent hospitals, says Patti Newman. Shown at the Rafael Convalescent Home in San Rafael, where she performed last week, the San Rafael woman urges people to pay attention to those who need it all year around, not just at Christmas time. 'IT'S DELICIOUS'

Following the custom of her native Austria, Mrs. Erika McQuillan of Fairfax trims her all-edible ornamented Christmas tree with gold and silver wrapped choclates sent every year by her mother from Baden, Austria. The candies are shaped as horseshoes, keys, instruments, angels and cones and she adds tangerines and other wrappd foods. Sometimes her son, daughter or husband start eating at the back of the tree, laughs Mrs. McQuillan. They follow the Austrian tradition of an old fashioned Christmas Eve party and take down the tree on Twelfth Night, when games are played and guests eat the trimmings. Mrs. McQuillan looks forward to a special treat this Christmas. Her mother, Anny Grtcy-Wardengg, will make her first U.S. visit to the McQuillans.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

There Must Be A Better Way To Spend Your Christmas Day

DEAR HELEN:

I'm tired of the traditional big family dinner on Christmas but stuck with it again this year. Seems the women spend the whole day working on food, or separating kids who fight over new toys. Even the men don't enjoy themselves that much — there's hardly anything to do but eat, avoid kids' battles, and suffer from indigestion.

Why don't you ask your readers to tell us about the "different" ways they celebrated Christmas this year? Maybe I can get ideas for next year. — TIRED OF TRADITION, BUT STILL A CHRISTMAS FAN

DEAR TIRED:

Good idea. How about it readers?

Several years ago (before our small grandchildren arrived and Santa Claus traditions started all over again) we gathered together most of our large family — sons, daughters, in-laws, boy- and girl-friends, and a few assorted parents — packed a huge picnic lunch, and took off for the Sierra snow country, where most of us skied all day, and the few sideliners enjoyed the camaraderie of other non-traditionalists around the ski lodge's big crackling fireplace.

In the evening, we came home to hot buttered rums before our own Yule log, and we enjoyed our Christmas gifts more because we'd done something better with our day than stuff a turkey — and ourselves.

Somehow, up on those quiet ski slopes, the reverence of the season comes softly into focus — and you have time to remember again how good life is and how much you care about your family.

I'd heartily recommend a picnic in the snow for anyone who dares be different on Christmas.

. . . Even though I nearly broke my leg, and limped my way into the New Year. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Our children's great-grandfather tells them the most outrageous tales about his past exploits — the time he caught a train robber singlehandedly, and how he practically won World War I without help, and — well, there's something new almost every week, mostly complete fabrications.

I try to teach our kids that honesty is important. Yet they eat up his lies and believe every word. Should I tell them the truth — that he never really accomplished anything in his life, he was just a little passenger train conductor to whom nothing exciting ever happened? — EXASPERATED

DEAR EX:

. . . And ruin the only reason an old man has for living? Be tolerant: he's a has-been who never was, and that's the saddest kind for he exists on made-up memories.

Perhaps he believes those exploits himself now, having repeated them so often. If so, let them be "true" — they're all he has.

Children's Christmas Views Are Refreshing

By GAY PAULEY
Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — What is Christmas really?

The answers from adults are pretty stereotyped, from small children a refreshing glimpse at the season.

Adults tend to think along these lines—one big rush that starts before Thanksgiving and abates only as the New Year moves in.

For us, it's getting cards addressed, gifts purchased, wrapped and mailed, preparations for the holiday feast, family reunions, getting out the decorations from last year and decking the tree, spending, spending, confusion everywhere and underneath it all for many the wish that Christmas were over or would just go away. We lose sight of the deeper, spiritual meaning too often, like being unable to see the forest for the trees.

Ask a small child what Christmas is. A child cuts through the nonsense of wasted energies, frenetic preparations, and sees Christmas in truer terms.

CHRISTMAS IS a baby born and laid in a manger because there was no room at the inn, shepherds and wise men, Santa Claus and letters to him, toys and stockings hung somewhere in the house, and most of all an unspoiled joy of the season, a magical world of fantasy all too soon outgrown.

To find what Christmas means to small children, I singled out one group this year just to ask them the question. Through the courtesy of William Aberbach, principal, and Mrs. Gertrude B. Epstein, second grade teacher, I took over her class for a while the other morning at Public School 59 in my mid-Manhattan neighborhood for a "rap" session.

The 33 children represented a cross-section of ethnic, religious, national and racial backgrounds. Many said, for example, their families would observe two religious holidays at this time of the year—Christmas, for the birth of the Christ child, and Hanukah, the Jewish Festival of Lights.

A SHOW of hands indicated a general belief in Santa Claus, whether the children were of New York City, Armenian, Turkish or Korean heritage.

"We fix Santa a snack every Christmas," said Josh, 7-½. "Milk and cookies. Next morning it's all gone but some crumbs."

But the seven-going-on set has some doubters.

"I really don't believe in Santa," said Ivan, 7. "But I wrote him a letter anyway . . . just in case."

"I get mixed up on where Santa lives," said Todd, 7-½.

"I know my Mother picks up the mail," said skeptical Danny, 7, but he still writes.

"Christmas is seeing Santa," said shy Hyang-Mi, 7, of Korean birth.

"Christmas means loving other people and celebrating Christ's birthday," said Ronald, 7-¾ years.

"It means the star of Bethlehem and lots of fun," said Rosemarie, 7-½. Rosemarie had presented a special report to the class on the birth of Jesus and had illustrated it with a tiny manager she made at home.

CHRISTMAS WAS "Santa Claus and toys" to many of the second-graders, including Shant, 7. It was "Jesus' birthday and a doll" to Kathy, 7; the "star of Bethlehem" for Marta, 7; "lots of fun and presents" for Todd, 7-½, and "love and making friends" to Ivan, 7-½.

It's interesting how at this age all want to be older, thus the specifics of their ages. One boy insisted he was "7-4-4ths," and Mrs. Epstein said they'd work on that mathematical problem later.

None seemed to wonder how Santa negotiated his way into their homes although most live in apartments where fireplaces and chimneys are almost nonexistent. The importance was Santa's visit on Christmas Eve. Never mind how he got there.

Holiday Celebrating Was Banned Once

Celebrating Christmas Day was once against the law in America, according to researcher Sally Hopkins of Hallmark Cards. From 1659 until 1681, under a ruling of the General Court of the Massachusetts colony, observance of Christmas was deemed an illegal act, even in churches.

MONEY MATTERS

Review Homeowner's Policy

By JOSEPHINE RIPLEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

This is a good time of year to review that homeowner's insurance policy.

Read it over. Does it apply to your circumstances today?

Many homeowners are prone to pay their insurance premiums automatically, as they do other bills, without pausing to wonder whether the original coverage is sufficient in view of current property values.

Your house may have been insured for $30,000 a few years ago and that was plenty — then. Today, it may be worth $60,000 or more. Have you related this enhanced value to insurance coverage?

FOR INSTANCE, if it became necessary to apply for that insurance in case of fire or other damage, would you be reimbursed by the insurance company on a house with a $30,000 valuation and not the $60,000 selling price you own today? If so you could be out thousands of dollars when it came to replacement and repairs.

Of course, some people may be willing to take this risk rather than pay increased insurance premiums. That is understandable. But at least they've considered the pros and cons.

Prior to the advent of the homeowner's program, dwellings were insured for their actual cash value, which is often substantially less than replacement cost.

A homeowner's policy now provides that when the amount of insurance is at least 80 per cent of the value of the structure, the full cost of repair or replacement will be paid.

NATURALLY YOU can insure for less than that, if you choose, but if you do, reimbursement is figured on a cash-value basis.

Whatever type of insurance one may prefer, however, it is prudent to consider it in relation to the times and to property values as they exist today.

And while reviewing that homeowern's policy take a look at your personal property coverage. Have you bought new furniture, antiques, expensive cameras, or fur coats? What is the coverage? Is it sufficient?

Before crime became so prevalent, a homeowner's policy provided substantial coverage for personal losses, even to the cash in a stolen billfold. Not today. This coverage is subject, in most policies, to a fairly sizable deductible.

In view of this, it might be advisable while you are reviewing your policy to consider whether you want special coverage on items like furs, jewelry, antiques, or cameras.

IN ANY event, you should keep an inventory of personel property in the home and keep it up to date.

Not all homeowners live in houses today. An increasing number live in condominiums or in cooperative apartments. This calls for a slightly different kind of homeowner's insurance.

In a condominium, you own your apartment as you would a house. So you would place insurance on the apartment and its contents.

In a cooperative, the member does not actually own the apartment. He owns a share in the cooperative, which gives him a right to live in that apartment.

He does not need to insure it, for it is covered under the overall insurance placed on the building by the governing body. His insurance, therefore, need only cover the apartment contents and liability protection in case of bodily injury or damage to property of others.

IN A condominium, the owner should make it his business to know precisely what his insurance covers and also what the master policy covers. The common areas — stairways, hallways, and public rooms — are covered by the master policy.

When it comes to any homeowner coverage, it pays to ask a lot of questions.

Put these questions to your insurance broker or write to the Insurance Information Institute, 110 William Street, New York, N. Y. 10038, for the booklet, "A Family Guide to Property and Liability Insurance."

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

There Must Be A Better Way To Spend Your Christmas Day

DEAR HELEN:

I'm tired of the traditional big family dinner on Christmas but stuck with it again this year. Seems the women spend the whole day working on food, or separating kids who fight over new toys. Even the men don't enjoy themselves that much — there's hardly anything to do but eat, avoid kids' battles, and suffer from indigestion.

Why don't you ask your readers to tell us about the "different" ways they celebrated Christmas this year? Maybe I can get ideas for next year. — TIRED OF TRADITION, BUT STILL A CHRISTMAS FAN

DEAR TIRED:

Good idea. How about it readers?

Several years ago (before our small grandchildren arrived and Santa Claus traditions started all over again) we gathered together most of our large family — sons, daughters, in-laws, boy- and girl-friends, and a few assorted parents — packed a huge picnic lunch, and took off for the Sierra snow country, where most of us skied all day, and the few sideliners enjoyed the camaraderie of other non-traditionalists around the ski lodge's big crackling fireplace.

In the evening, we came home to hot buttered rums before our own Yule log, and we enjoyed our Christmas gifts more because we'd done something better with our day than stuff a turkey — and ourselves.

Somehow, up on those quiet ski slopes, the reverence of the season comes softly into focus — and you have time to remember again how good life is and how much you care about your family.

I'd heartily recommend a picnic in the snow for anyone who dares be different on Christmas.

. . . Even though I nearly broke my leg, and limped my way into the New Year. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Our children's great-grandfather tells them the most outrageous tales about his past exploits — the time he caught a train robber singlehandedly, and how he practically won World War I without help, and — well, there's something new almost every week, mostly complete fabrications.

I try to teach our kids that honesty is important. Yet they eat up his lies and believe every word. Should I tell them the truth — that he never really accomplished anything in his life, he was just a little passenger train conductor to whom nothing exciting ever happened? — EXASPERATED

DEAR EX:

. . . And ruin the only reason an old man has for living? Be tolerant: he's a has-been who never was, and that's the saddest kind for he exists on made-up memories.

Perhaps he believes those exploits himself now, having repeated them so often. If so, let them be "true" — they're all he has.

Children's Christmas Views Are Refreshing

By GAY PAULEY
Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — What is Christmas really?

The answers from adults are pretty stereotyped, from small children a refreshing glimpse at the season.

Adults tend to think along these lines—one big rush that starts before Thanksgiving and abates only as the New Year moves in.

For us, it's getting cards addressed, gifts purchased, wrapped and mailed, preparations for the holiday feast, family reunions, getting out the decorations from last year and decking the tree, spending, spending, confusion everywhere and underneath it all for many the wish that Christmas were over or would just go away. We lose sight of the deeper, spiritual meaning too often, like being unable to see the forest for the trees.

Ask a small child what Christmas is. A child cuts through the nonsense of wasted energies, frenetic preparations, and sees Christmas in truer terms.

CHRISTMAS IS a baby born and laid in a manger because there was no room at the inn, shepherds and wise men, Santa Claus and letters to him, toys and stockings hung somewhere in the house, and most of all an unspoiled joy of the season, a magical world of fantasy all too soon outgrown.

To find what Christmas means to small children, I singled out one group this year just to ask them the question. Through the courtesy of William Aberbach, principal, and Mrs. Gertrude B. Epstein, second grade teacher, I took over her class for a while the other morning at Public School 59 in my mid-Manhattan neighborhood for a "rap" session.

Keep Oven Doors Closed During Baking

To conserve energy in the kitchen, keep oven doors closed until food is cooked, advises the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. Each peeking at cooking foods lowers the oven temperature from 25 to 50 degrees.

Police Doubt Green Beret Killed More

LINCOLNTON, N.C. (UPI) — A former Green Beret charged with the murder of one woman was unable to direct authorities to any additional bodies yesterday despite his confession that he killed seven persons in the Carolinas.

State and county authorities began a search after Tommy York, 28, led officers Saturday to the body of Mrs. Betty Parker Atwell, 38, of nearby Sherill's Ford. York also claimed to have killed three other women in the Lincolnton area, two women near Columbia, S.C., and a man near Ft. Bragg, N.C.

Detective Sgt. L.W. Cartrett said officers searched the area where York said they would find three of the victims but there was no trace of the victims.

"We can't pinpoint them and don't know if they exist or don't exist," said Cartrett.

York, a small, muscular man who was discharged from the Army Dec. 13, made his bizarre confession to seven murders after he was picked up on a public drunkenness charge. He led police to within two blocks of where they found Mrs. Atwell's body in a wooded area.

Mrs. Atwell, who police said had been living with York since his release from the Army, was stabbed four times and apparently strangled. The body was clad only in a bra.

Police said Mrs. Atwell was separated from her husband and had been released recently from a state alcoholic treatment center.

Police in Columbia and Ft. Bragg said they had checked using the names York gave of the alleged victims but had been unable to verify that any of them had been reported missing.

One policeman said York was highly intoxicated when he was arrested and he had been known to "fabricate stories before."

York was in the Fort Bragg stockade a week before his discharge for being absent without leave. Police said he has a long criminal record with charges ranging from drunkenness to forgery, fighting and passing worthless checks.

York told a UPI reporter who interviewed him Saturday that he confessed because "I just figured I'd better. It'd been worrying me and I just thought about my family."

He said he was married and his wife lives in Lincolnton.

A Letter Bomb Is Dismantled

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Security men dismantled a letter bomb today sent from Milan, Italy, to a Jerusalem address, a communications ministry spokesman said.

The white rectangular envelope was the second booby-trapped letter sent to Israel from the Italian city within the past two weeks. Both were defused without causing injuries.

HOLIDAY BLESSINGS TO YOU!

At this Holiday season and throughout the challenging New Year ahead, Howard and I and our staff, too, wish you the fulfillment which can only come from "marching" to your own drummer. Henry David Thoreau expressed it eloquently:

"Why should we be in such desperate haste to succeed,
And in such desperate enterprises?
If a man does not keep pace with his companions,
Perhaps it is because he hears a different drummer. Let him step to the music which he hears, however measured or far away."

Detective Sgt. L.W. Cartrett said officers searched the area where York said they would find three of the victims but there was no trace of the victims.

"We can't pinpoint them and don't know if they exist or don't exist," said Cartrett.

York, a small, muscular man who was discharged from the Army Dec. 13, made his bizarre confession to seven murders after he was picked up on a public drunkenness charge. He led police to within two blocks of where they found Mrs. Atwell's body in a wooded area.

Mrs. Atwell, who police said had been living with York since his release from the Army, was stabbed four times and apparently strangled. The body was clad only in a bra.

Police said Mrs. Atwell was separated from her husband and had been released recently from a state alcoholic treatment center.

Police in Columbia and Ft. Bragg said they had checked using the names York gave of the alleged victims but had been unable to verify that any of them had been reported missing.

One policeman said York was highly intoxicated when he was arrested and he had been known to "fabricate stories before."

York was in the Fort Bragg stockade a week before his discharge for being absent without leave. Police said he has a long criminal record with charges ranging from drunkenness to forgery, fighting and passing worthless checks.

York told a UPI reporter who interviewed him Saturday that he confessed because "I just figured I'd better. It'd been worrying me and I just thought about my family."

He said he was married and his wife lives in Lincolnton.

A Letter Bomb Is Dismantled

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Security men dismantled a letter bomb today sent from Milan, Italy, to a Jerusalem address, a communications ministry spokesman said.

The white rectangular envelope was the second booby-trapped letter sent to Israel from the Italian city within the past two weeks. Both were defused without causing injuries.

Hubbard Lauds Stabler's Play-Calling After Win

(UPI Telephoto)

By RON SUPINSKI

OAKLAND (UPI) — "Kenny called a whale of a football game and they didn't know what was coming next."

Pile-driving fullback Marv Hubbard of the Oakland Raiders was trying to explain how the Raiders humiliated the Pittsburgh Steelers 33-14 Saturday to vault into the American Football Conference playoffs next Sunday against the Dolphins in Miami.

"The Steelers had been badmouthing us all week and we were ready for them," said the 225-pound running back who personally gained 91 of his team's 232 rushing yards and scored twice on short plunges against a defense ranked No. 2 in the AFC against the rush.

"Joe Greene (Pittsburgh defensive tackle) said Oakland was the best team in pro football last year but we have slipped this year. How can he say that? We were No. 1 in offense and No. 1 in defense in the league this season.

"I just think the Steelers came into the game a little overconfident and they weren't ready to play us. Kenny (Stabler) called a whale of a football game and they didn't know what was coming next. I had a fine game but it was our offensive line that did all the work for me."

As has been their wont in recent weeks, the Raiders played a near-perfect game. Oakland had no fumbles and Stabler didn't throw an interception while completing 14 of 17 passes for 129 yards.

"We're the best football team in the AFC," said the 27-year-old quarterback from Alabama. "We have a super offensive line and we just knocked them out of there.

"I mixed up the plays so the Steelers couldn't determine any kind of offensive pattern and our offensive linemen, especially Gene Upshaw and Art Shell, opened the holes against a pretty good defensive line."

Holding a slim 10-7 halftime lead, the Raiders blew open the contest with 13 points in the third quarter. George Blanda booted two of his four field goals in the period and cornerback Willie Brown picked off a Terry Bradshaw pass and returned it 54 yards for a touchdown.

"Brown's interception runback was one of the plays that forced Pittsburgh to open up a little more and the game turned in our direction. Then (George) Atkinson came back a short while later and got another interception.

"We played close to a perfect offensive game and it was definitely a team victory. We wanted to play a strong, solid football game and that's what we did."

"Their defensive line blew us out," he said, "and their backs ran through tackles. Not very much about the game was worth a damn as far as we're concerned."

Noll's feelings were echoed by L. C. Greenwood, the Steelers' outstanding 245-pound defensive end.

"They beat us good," said Greenwood. "At least in a game like this you don't have to do any second guessing. It was their game all the way."

Bradshaw hurled passes of four yards to Barry Pearson in the second quarter and 26 yards to Frank Lewis in the final period to account for the Pittsburgh scoring.

The Oakland defense limited the Steelers to only 65 yards rushing and 158 passing. Raider linebacker Phil Villapiano plucked off one of Bradshaw's passes that defensive tackle Otis Sistrunk deflected.

"I never thought that ball was going to come down," said Villapiano.

Saving Their Cheers For The Living Room

Because the Miami Dolphins whipped the Cincinnati Bengals yesterday, 34-16, the very vocal Oakland Raider fans will have to do their cheering next Sunday in front of their television sets in their living rooms. It will be warm and comfy for them, but I'm sure they would rather be out at the Oakland Coliseum yelling their heads off.

If Cincy had won yesterday, the American Football Conference championship game would have been held Sunday in he coliseum. But now, the Dolphins get the home field advantage.I'm sure a handful of the most ardent Raider rooters will board planes for Florida, but the great majority will have to depend on the tube.

At Saturday's game in Oakland, the fans brought almost as many signs as the Pittsburgh fanatics do for their home games. But after that 33-14 drubbing, I'm sure the Steeler fans are through writing signs for this year.

Last week Riader offensive guard and captain Gene Upshaw suggested that the Oakland fans should get behind the team with signs and banners and cheers. He was remembering last year's playoff game when the Steelers beat the Raiders on a fluke play and the Steelers' fans went wild. There were signs all over Three Rivers Stadium.

THIS TIME IT was the Raiders' turn to get the fans behind them and the sound of the cheering was a thunderous thing in the coliseum. It was a shame that 2,552 of the ticket holders chose to stay home for this one. They missed quite an awesome performance.

After the game, Upshaw had nothing but praise for the fans. "It was really super," he declared. "It really helped us today. The fans have done their part. We expected more of them and we got it. Because of that, I think they had a right to expect more of us out there today." Well Gene, they got it. They got more than enough.

As they did against Kansas City two weeks earlier,the Raiders played "no turnover" football and the result was the same: a complete drubbing of a good team. The score against Kansas City was 37-7.

"CONSISTENCY OF offense" and "error free football" were the phrases Raider coach John Madden used after the game as a horde of writers tried to squeeze into a 9 by 12 interview room.

Upshaw said, "We knew what he had to do. We want to prove we have the best offense."

Raider quarterback Ken Stabler is very proud of the Raider offense and talked up his offensive linemen. "I don't think you can put four guys up front who can stop us. We ran 232 yards against a pretty good defense today."

When Marv Hubbard, Charlie Smith and Clarence Davis weren't churning through the sloppy turf, Stabler was back there throwing his very accurate passes. And when you complete 14 of 17 passes, that's being accurate.

SINCE STABLER took away the starting job from Daryle Lamonica prior to the Raiders' game against St. Louis Oct. 7, the team has won nine, tied one and lost two. "I'm learning as I go," he said about his success.

Hubbard who gained 91 yards in 20 carries against the Steelers, praised Stabler for his winning attitude. "He brought it with him," said Hubbard. "When he's in a big game he's like ice. He can really stay cool under pressure."

They may not be matches made in heaven but, nevertheless, they'll determine the participants in Super Bowl VIII, Jan. 13, in Houston.

The four teams still in the running for pro football's biggest prize are defending champion Miami, Oakland, Dallas and Minnesota. The number of National Football League contenders will be reduced by two next Sunday after the Dolphins clash with the Raiders at Miami for the American Conference title and the Cowboys meet the Vikings at Dallas for the National Conference crown.

Miami whipped Cincinnati 34-16, Oakland thrashed Pittsburgh 33-14, Dallas downed Los Angeles 27-16 and Minnesota beat Washington 27-20.

"They do everything so well as a team," said safety Neal Craig of Cincinnati, who managed the Bengals' only touchdown with a 45-yard return of an intercepted pass. "I wouldn't want to play them every week."

"They're not the world champions for nothing," added Bengals' quarterback Ken Anderson. "They've got a great football team and they showed it today."

What the Dolphins showed was a near flawless offense that churned out 80-yard touchdown drives behind the expert play calling of Bob Griese the first two times Miami had possession of the ball. Miami increased its lead to 21-3 in the second quarter before the Bengals, taking advantage of two Dolphin turnovers, closed the deficit to 21-16 at halftime.

Basketball Warfare To Resume

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The American Basketball Association has called off the truce with the National Basketball Association and will soon resume wholesale signings of college underclassmen and expansion into major television markets, ABA Secretary Richard P. Tinkham says.

"We are no longer interested in a merger with the NBA," Tinkham told The Indianapolis Star yesterday. "We are now talking directly to about 50 underclassmen and several others on an indirect basis."

Tinkham said the ABA is also formulating plans for expansion into Chicago, Los Angeles, Toronto and Mexico City within the next two years. He declined comment on reports that an existing ABA club will be shifted to Philadelphia next season.

There currently are NBA teams in those U.S. cities, and the Buffalo Braves play several home games at Toronto.

Tinkham, an Indianapolis attorney and a trustee of the ABA champion Indiana Pacers, said the merger drive will be restarted only if the NBA initiates action, adding, "We won't pay any indemnity to join them and we'll go in as full partners or not at all."

The ABA privately made the decision last month and will move into action when an agreement with the NBA to seek merger legislation from Congress expires Dec. 31.

East To Hold A Second Workout

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The East Shrine team was called to a second workout at Candlestick Park today, the site of Saturday's contest against the West team.

After yesterday's workout, head coach Paul Dietzel said he was very pleased with his defensive units in practice, although he said they did a lot of slipping and sliding on the astroturf.

Oakland Tech Whips Drake; Tam Cagers Bow To Riordan

Drake High School's basketball team fell to Oakland Tech, 72-58, in a game for third place in the McClymonds tournament Saturday and Pirates' coach Pete Hayward must still be scratching his head over the officiating.

Because of the 19 fouls called against Drake compared to only six for Oakland Tech, the home town team had a chance to shoot 21 free throws to zero (0) for Drake. Oakland Tech made good 14 of the free throws, the exact margin of victory. The tournament was played at Cal State Hayward.

Drake's Eddie Joe Chavez, who led his team throughout the tournament, was named to the all-tourney team. He scored 30 points in Saturday's game, giving him a total of 66 of Drake's 174 tournament points.

"He had to carry us," said Hayward. "The other kids couldn't get loose, they were too tight. It's too bad. The kids could have really had fun in this tournament."

In the championship game, Berkeley shaded McClymonds, 67-66, and in the other contests, Wilson defeated McAteer, 60-54, and Oakland dumped Ravenswood, 94-64.

In San Francisco Saturday, Tamalpais (2-5) lost to tough Riordan High, 54-42, after leaving the court at halftime with a 21-21 deadlock. Riordan (10-1) ran off a string of eight straight points in the last two minutes of the third quarter to put the game away. Mike Dinehart led Tam's scoring with 15 points.

IN CABLE CAR CLASSIC

2nd-Ranked Maryland Shows Strength

OAKLAND (UPI) — 'Tis the season to be jolly, unless you played basketball for the University of San Francisco or Santa Clara Friday and Saturday evenings in the Oakland Coliseum-Arena.

The powerful University of Maryland quintet whipped coach Bob Gaillard's USF Dons Friday, 78-56, then throttled Santa Clara Saturday, 53-32 to win the Cable Car Classic Christmas championship.

In Saturday's battle, Maryland showed why it is ranked second nationally behind (surprise) UCLA by displaying superior height, quickness and shooting against the deliberate Broncos.

Santa Clara used a tight zone defense and a slowdown attack, effectively neutralizing standout Maryland center Len Elmore much of the time. However, sophomore guard John Lucas, a unanimous choice for tourney most valuable player honors, connected on 11 of 17 field goal attempts while scoring 23 points. He added six assists and five steals as the Terrapins raised their record to 4-1.

Maryland came back from an early 7-4 deficit to lead 21-13 at the half. In the final 20 minutes, Lucas, with help from 7-foot forward Tom McMillen and Elmore, sparkled as the Terps pulled away steadily.

All-tourney choice Elmore grabbed a game-high 11 rebounds as Lucas and McMillen asserted themselves in the second half. Lucas and McMillen joined Elmore on the all-tourney team along with Santa Clara sophomore Glen Hubbard and USF's Phil Smith.

Smith scored 29 points, hitting 11 of 22 field goal tries as the Dons whipped St. Joseph's 80-63 in the consolation contest Saturday. Novato's Gaillard saw his club run and shoot in pleasing form as the Dons dominated the smaller, slower Hawks. The Dons had a 25-point lead when Gaillard pulled his starters.

Forward Kevin Restani, trying to shake a season-long slump, hit four straight jumpers in the first half and finished with 19 points in the holiday tournament. Guard John Boro, a Redwood High School graduate, added eight points.

Now a rookie with the Kansas City-Omaha Kings and averaging about 25 minutes and 12 points per game, Behagen is still a fun-lover and last night he had his fun at the expense of the Golden State Warriors.

Within one minute with 3 ½ minutes left in the game and his team leading 91-90, Behagen hit a jump shot to start the Kings on an eight-point spree then, after Nate Williams converted two free throws, sank another jumper from the top of the key. Drake's Eddie Joe Chavez, who led his team throughout the tournament, was named to the all-tourney team. He scored 30 points in Saturday's game, giving him a total of 66 of Drake's 174 tournament points.

"He had to carry us," said Hayward. "The other kids couldn't get loose, they were too tight. It's too bad. The kids could have really had fun in this tournament."

In the championship game, Berkeley shaded McClymonds, 67-66, and in the other contests, Wilson defeated McAteer, 60-54, and Oakland dumped Ravenswood, 94-64.

In San Francisco Saturday, Tamalpais (2-5) lost to tough Riordan High, 54-42, after leaving the court at halftime with a 21-21 deadlock. Riordan (10-1) ran off a string of eight straight points in the last two minutes of the third quarter to put the game away. Mike Dinehart led Tam's scoring with 15 points.

East To Hold A Second Workout

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The East Shrine team was called to a second workout at Candlestick Park today, the site of Saturday's contest against the West team.

After yesterday's workout, head coach Paul Dietzel said he was very pleased with his defensive units in practice, although he said they did a lot of slipping and sliding on the astroturf.

IN CABLE CAR CLASSIC

2nd-Ranked Maryland Shows Strength

OAKLAND (UPI) — 'Tis the season to be jolly, unless you played basketball for the University of San Francisco or Santa Clara Friday and Saturday evenings in the Oakland Coliseum-Arena.

The powerful University of Maryland quintet whipped coach Bob Gaillard's USF Dons Friday, 78-56, then throttled Santa Clara Saturday, 53-32 to win the Cable Car Classic Christmas championship.

In Saturday's battle, Maryland showed why it is ranked second nationally behind (surprise) UCLA by displaying superior height, quickness and shooting against the deliberate Broncos.

Santa Clara used a tight zone defense and a slowdown attack, effectively neutralizing standout Maryland center Len Elmore much of the time. However, sophomore guard John Lucas, a unanimous choice for tourney most valuable player honors, connected on 11 of 17 field goal attempts while scoring 23 points. He added six assists and five steals as the Terrapins raised their record to 4-1.

Maryland came back from an early 7-4 deficit to lead 21-13 at the half. In the final 20 minutes, Lucas, with help from 7-foot forward Tom McMillen and Elmore, sparkled as the Terps pulled away steadily.

All-tourney choice Elmore grabbed a game-high 11 rebounds as Lucas and McMillen asserted themselves in the second half. Lucas and McMillen joined Elmore on the all-tourney team along with Santa Clara sophomore Glen Hubbard and USF's Phil Smith.

Smith scored 29 points, hitting 11 of 22 field goal tries as the Dons whipped St. Joseph's 80-63 in the consolation contest Saturday. Novato's Gaillard saw his club run and shoot in pleasing form as the Dons dominated the smaller, slower Hawks. The Dons had a 25-point lead when Gaillard pulled his starters.

Fun-Lover Helps Top Warriors

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Ron Behagen was clowning around with some of his teammates last year after leading the United States team to a revenge victory over the Soviet Union in a game at Madison Square Garden when someone asked him what he wanted out of life.

"Man, I just wanna have a good time," Behagen answered.

Now a rookie with the Kansas City-Omaha Kings and averaging about 25 minutes and 12 points per game, Behagen is still a fun-lover and last night he had his fun at the expense of the Golden State Warriors.

Within one minute with 3 ½ minutes left in the game and his team leading 91-90, Behagen hit a jump shot to start the Kings on an eight-point spree then, after Nate Williams converted two free throws, sank another jumper from the top of the key. Nate Archibald followed with a layup and the Kings held on for a 101-93 victory.

Coaches Display Different Styles

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — With time running out and the result already a foregone conclusion, there was this long shot by the camera showing Al Davis nervously chewing his nails and then suddenly laughing, only the way a man can when his ball club is leading by 19 points with less than 10 seconds left.

Al Davis, boss of the Oakland Raiders, easily could afford to laugh then on Saturday afternoon.

A HUNCH

He can't anymore because his Raiders now go up against Miami next Sunday for the American Football Conference title at Miami and although the Raiders ended the Dolphins' winning string at 18 games back in September, I have a hunch that on Sunday Al Davis is going to find out Miami has changed more than he can ever imagine.

The Raiders didn't merely beat the Pittsburgh Steelers Saturday, they dismantled them, 33-14.

PREPARATION

The Dolphins looked nearly as tough and formidable crushing Cincinnati, 34-16, yesterday. The tipoff here is the word "nearly" because even in battering the Bengals, the Dolphins committed a couple of second quarter booboos, and if you know anything at all about Don Shula and the way he prepares his ball club, then you know Miami doesn't figure to make those same mistakes again Sunday.

The Dolphins had a 21-16 bulge over the Bengals at halftime and Shula wasn't at all happy with that kind of small cushion. He talked to his players pointing out their errors and explaining how those errors had resulted in cheap points for Cincinnati.

Shula told them to forget the first half and play the second one as if it were a brand new ball game. If you watched, you saw the result. The Dolphins have some things to say about their coach occasionally, but they also listen to him. They should. He generally gets them where they're supposed to go.

TOO TIGHT

With his team trailing the Washington Redskins at halftime Saturday, he simply told his players they were too tight, and with some of them, like wide receiver John Gilliam, that was very apparent.

Grant didn't make a big speech at half-time but Carl Eller, the Vikes' big veteran defensive end, had something on his chest he wanted to get off, and he did.

He came through loud and clear demanding, among other things, that his teammates get off their dead you-know-whats.

Eller's enjoinder was all the more effective because nobody could ever remember him getting worked up like that before.

"It was a spur of the moment thing," said Eller. "I don't remember exactly what I said."

Fran Tarkenton's old coach, Norm Van Brocklin, once said Tarkenton would never win the big ones.

Van Brocklin was wrong. Tarkenton helped the Vikings win a big one Saturday along with Gilliam, who looked like an entirely different player the second half, and running back Oscar Reed, who made sure to share the credit with "the guys up front" after accumulating big yardage in Minnesota's 27-20 win.

In all this, you had to feel a little sorry for George Allen, the Washington coach, who came up short again. The loss to the Vikings wasn't his fault.

"I think," offered Jeff Siemon, Minnesota's fine looking young linebacker, "Washington is probably the best prepared team we faced all year."

Tom Landry's crew intercepted a John Hadl pass on the Rams' first play from scrimmage, turned that into a touchdown, then picked up another quick one after recovering a first quarter fumble, sat on them and generally were content to contain the Rams thereafter. The Cowboys scored again in the fourth quarter to win 27-16.

It's the same in football as in golf — nobody asks you how, all they ever ask is how many?

cepted a Cincinnati pass early in the third quarter, Griese, who earlier in the game had connected with Paul Warfield for a touchdown, found Jim Mandich in the end zone for a seven-yard scoring strike.

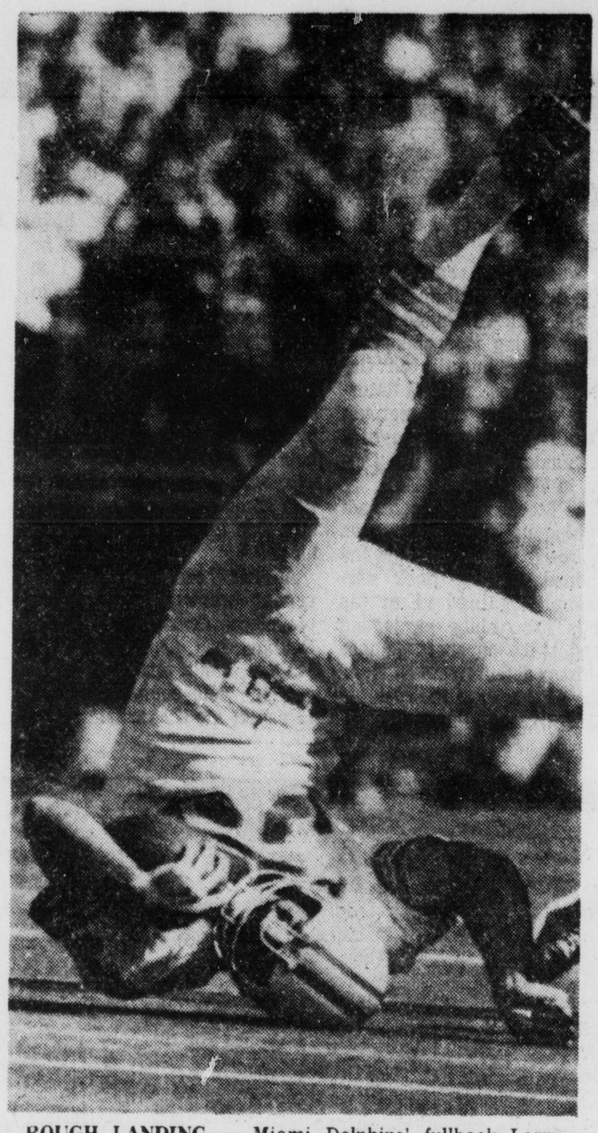
"I think Dallas has got the team that can do it," said Rams' Coach Chuck Knox after the Cowboys "did it" to Los Angeles. "You can't afford a single mistake against them."

The Rams made not one, but two, mistakes early in the game (a pass interception and a fumble) that the Cowboys turned into touchdowns. The Rams, after trailing 17-0, fought back to within 17-16 early in the fourth quarter before a dazed Roger Staubach connected with rookie Drew Pearson for an 83-yard touchdown pass. It was Staubach's second TD toss of the game to Pearson.

Staubach was knocked groggy on a scramble attempt in the opening quarter and didn't fully regain his senses until the last 15 minutes but missed only two plays. While Staubach recovered in time, Cowboy running back Calvin Hill suffered a dislocated left elbow in the final quarter and will miss the game against Minnesota.

Like millions of other football fans, the Vikings watched the Dallas-Los Angeles game on television and got a good idea of what to expect. However, Minnesota quarterback Fran Tarkenton, whose two fourth quarter touchdown passes to John Gilliam enabled the Vikings to beat Washington 24 hours earlier, was just thrilled at being in the playoffs—his first in 13 years of competition.

"We're just happy to be there," said Tarkenton. "Being in the playoffs is what it's all about. I've been called a loser and I've been called a scrambler, but the only thing I want to be known as is a winner."



ROUGH LANDING — Miami Dolphins' fullback Larry Csonka yesterday found he had to pay dearly for what he gained as he was sent head-over-heels after a short advance against the rugged Cincinnati Bengals in Miami. The Dolphins advanced to the American Football Conference championship game Sunday against Oakland by whipping the Bengals, 34-106. (UPI Telephoto)

Orioles' Davis Top Designated Hitter In A.L.

BOSTON (AP) — With an average of .293, the Baltimore Orioles' Tommy Davis has captured the individual crown and the Orioles, also averaging .293, took the team batting championship in the first year of the designated hitter in the American League.

Davis, formerly batting champion of the National League, had 156 hits in 432 times at bat as a designated hitter, according to official figures released by the league Saturday. Davis had 13 hits in another playing capacity and finished tied with Milwaukee's George Scott at .306 in the overall batting race.

Davis was way in front of Orlando Cepeda of the Boston Red Sox and Tony Oliva of the Minnesota Twins, who tied for second among designated hitters with .289 averages.

The averages indicated that designated hitters did much better at bat than pitchers did before the rulewas adopted. The DH average was .257 compared with the pitchers' .145 batting average the previous year.

Bruins' Blind Pass Triggers A Triumph

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Then Sheppard heard Edestrand scream for the puck and fed him a behind-the-back pass without even looking back. Edestrand took the pass at center ice, picked up steam, split the Toronto defense and beat goalie Ed Johnston with a shot that barely left the ice.

The goal, which capped a flurry of three goals in less than two minutes of the third period, enabled the Boston Bruins to squeak by the Toronto Maple Leafs 4-3 last night.

"I shot low and hit Johnston's glove side," said Edestrand. "It may have bounced off his pads, or gone between his legs and his pads, but I only care that it went in. It really wasn't that great a shot."

"Edestrand yelled loudly," said Sheppard. "Loud enough for me to make the pass without looking. Besides, I saw him out of the corner of my eye as we started out of our own end. I thought of him because I knew he liked to carry the puck."

The game was a seesaw battle as Boston jumped to a 2-0 lead only to let Toronto tie it 2-2 before the second period ended on a pair of defensive lapses.

Ken Hodge put the Bruins in front 3-2 at 2:42 of the third period when he tipped in a Bobby Orr rebound shot, but Lanny McDonald tied it for Toronto seconds later after he stole the puck from Boston defenseman Al Sims.

Less than a minute after McDonald's goal, Chris Oddleifson passed the puck to Sheppard, who then set up Edestrand's game-winner.

In other National Hockey League games, the New York Islanders held Montreal to a 1-1 tie, Chicago whipped Vancouver 2-2, Atlanta downed the New York Rangers 3-1, Buffalo nipped Pittsburgh 3-2 and California and Minnesota tied 2-2..

J. P. Bordeleau scored twice and Pit Martin had three assists to help Chicago rookie goaltender Mike Veisor earn a victory over Vancouver in his NHL debut.

Richard scored two goals, the first and third for the Flames. The second Atlanta goal came when Stewart's shot hit New York goalie Ed Giacomin in the chest. Giacomin grabbed it with his glove hand — and dropped the puck into the goal. Referee Dave Sewchyk ruled that Giacomin never had possession of the puck and allowed the goal for Stewart.

Holiday Tourneys For Coast Teams

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

This may be the season to be jolly, but it's also the season for tournaments for West Coast basketball teams.

Except for Washington State, which is in Honolulu today for the Rainbow Classic, all the Pacific-8 teams will take off two days for Christmas, but all will start tourneys before the week is out.

UCLA's Bruins, who have now won 81 straight games, will take part in their own Bruin Classic starting Friday.

Oregon, Washington and Oregon State are in the Far West Classic starting Wednesday at Portland.

California's Bears will enter the Quaker City Classic at Philadelphia, Stanford will move into the New York Holiday Festival and Southern Cal is entered in the All College Tournament in Oklahoma.

Six Bruins shot in double figures Saturday night while handing St. Bonaventure its first loss of the season 111-59, with Dave Meyers leading the onslaught with a career high of 16.

Fifth-ranked Maryland, meanwhile, was using the all-around wizardry of John Lucas to beat Santa Clara 53-32 and win the Cable Car Classic at Oakland.

San Francisco's Dons snapped a five-game losing streak for an 80-63 triumph over St. Joseph's that won third place in the Cable Car.

Southern California's Trojans got 16 points apiece from Dan Anderson and Gus Williams while downing Ohio University 80-68 in a ragged intersectional game, but the game's high man was Bill Brown of Ohio with 25.

Although they got to the finals of the Dayton Invitational, California's Bears were stopped there 66-62 by the University of Dayton. The game was tied four times but Dayton prevailed on the shooting of Rickie Smith who got 20 points.

Stanford's Cardinals reached the finals of the University of Kentucky Initational but lost there 78-77 to Kentucky which took advantage of a stolen ball and three foul shots in the final two minutes.

Tangerine Winner Miami Disappointed

"I'm not saying we could beat an Alabama or LSU," Mallory said, "but I think we could hang in there."

Florida finished the season 7-5, after dropping four of its first six games when hit by early season injuries.

Florida Coach Doug Dickey compared the visiting Redskins with Georgia.

"They had some big guys, but they had some quick guys on offense and Georgia was a lot similar to that," said Dickey. The Gators defeated Georgia 11-10.

The Gators developed fumbleitis in the surprising 20-degree north Florida weather, but Dickey had no alibis for the loss.

"We got untracked offensively," he said of the disastrous third quarter when Miami's lead swelled from 3-0 to 13-0.

Unusual Sked For Prep Fives

Christmas week usually produces some unusual scheduling in high school basketball, and this year is no exception.

Two alumni games are slated this week, plus three contests at the rare time of 11 a.m. On the road, one team will be playing in a tournament and two others in a round-robin affair.

All the 11 o'clock games involve San Francisco teams. Balboa visited Novato today, Lincoln will journey to Drake Thursday and Galileo will invade Novato Friday.

Tuesday usually is a heavy day, but since it is Christmas this year, no games are scheduled. Wednesday's slate is limited to the Drake and Marin Catholic alumni contests, both at 6:45 p.m.

Thursday through Saturday, Marin Catholic will be playing in the Bishop O'Dowd tournament in Oakland, and Redwood and Tamalpais will be at a round-robin affair at San Francisco State.

Redwood will meet Mills of Millbrae at 9 p.m. Thursday, Balboa at 8 p.m. Friday and San Francisco's St. Ignatius at 9 p.m. Saturday. Tam will face S. I. at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Santa Rosa at 6 p.m. Friday and Bal at 6 p.m. Saturday.

Friday's other games find Oakland Tech at San Rafael, 8 p.m., Petaluma will visit San Marin, 8:15 p.m. No others are scheduled Saturday.

Friday's other game will find Oakland Tech at San Rafael, 8 p.m. Petaluma's visit to San Marin, originally scheduled for Friday night, has been changed to Saturday at 8:15 p.m.

Foreman Faces Contempt Move

Combined AP & UPI

SAN FRANCISCO — George Foreman, undefeated world heavyweight champion, has been named in a federal court contempt motion alleging he failed to disclose $360,000 in assets.

The U.S. District Court action was filed last week by George Foreman Associates Ltd., of Philadelphia, a partnership sharing in Foreman's boxing profits. It seeks $360,000 which it charges were hidden assets derived from Foreman's Sept. 1 title defense in Tokyo against Joe Roman.

The partnership, which also asks $15,670 in attorneys' fees and $10 million punitive damages, previously won a preliminary injunction calling for all funds from the match to be held intact until a final hearing.

Named as codefendants with Foreman, 24, are business manager Leroy Jackson, former manager Dick Sadler and the George Foreman Development Corp.

A Good Move By WHA Knights

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

It's beginning to appear that the Jersey Knights gave themselves the best present of all when they moved out of Madison Square Garden.

With Brian Bradley netting a pair of goals, the Knights ripped the Winnipeg Jets, 6-3, last night to register their fifth home ice victory in seven outings since moving from New York to Cherry Hill, N.J. Although still last in the East Division of the World Hockey Association, Jersey has moved into position to battle for a playoff berth.

In the only other WHA action last night, the Cleveland Crusaders beat the Minnesota Fighting Saints, 4-2, and the Chicago Cougars edged the Toronto Toros, 6-5.

Jersey broke open a 1-1 game by scoring three consecutive goals in the second period, two of them by Bradley. After the Jets narrowed their deficit to 4-3 in the final session, Bob Jones and Brian Morenz collected insurance goals for the Knights.

The final 4:16 of the game was played with only one linesman as Ross Keenan was carried off the ice with a back injury after being slammed into the boards. Referee Bob Sloan and linesman Graham Hern finished the game.

Coaches Display Different Styles

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — With time running out and the result already a foregone conclusion, there was this long shot by the camera showing Al Davis nervously chewing his nails and then suddenly laughing, only the way a man can when his ball club is leading by 19 points with less than 10 seconds left.

Al Davis, boss of the Oakland Raiders, easily could afford to laugh then on Saturday afternoon.

A HUNCH

He can't anymore because his Raiders now go up against Miami next Sunday for the American Football Conference title at Miami and although the Raiders ended the Dolphins' winning string at 18 games back in September, I have a hunch that on Sunday Al Davis is going to find out Miami has changed more than he can ever imagine.

The Raiders didn't merely beat the Pittsburgh Steelers Saturday, they dismantled them, 33-14.

PREPARATION

The Dolphins looked nearly as tough and formidable crushing Cincinnati, 34-16, yesterday. The tipoff here is the word "nearly" because even in battering the Bengals, the Dolphins committed a couple of second quarter booboos, and if you know anything at all about Don Shula and the way he prepares his ball club, then you know Miami doesn't figure to make those same mistakes again Sunday.

The Dolphins had a 21-16 bulge over the Bengals at halftime and Shula wasn't at all happy with that kind of small cushion. He talked to his players pointing out their errors and explaining how those errors had resulted in cheap points for Cincinnati.

Shula told them to forget the first half and play the second one as if it were a brand new ball game. If you watched, you saw the result. The Dolphins have some things to say about their coach occasionally, but they also listen to him. They should. He generally gets them where they're supposed to go.

TOO TIGHT

With his team trailing the Washington Redskins at halftime Saturday, he simply told his players they were too tight, and with some of them, like wide receiver John Gilliam, that was very apparent.

Grant didn't make a big speech at half-time but Carl Eller, the Vikes' big veteran defensive end, had something on his chest he wanted to get off, and he did.

He came through loud and clear demanding, among other things, that his teammates get off their dead you-know-whats.

Eller's enjoinder was all the more effective because nobody could ever remember him getting worked up like that before.

"It was a spur of the moment thing," said Eller. "I don't remember exactly what I said."

Van Brocklin was wrong. Tarkenton helped the Vikings win a big one Saturday along with Gilliam, who looked like an entirely different player the second half, and running back Oscar Reed, who made sure to share the credit with "the guys up front" after accumulating big yardage in Minnesota's 27-20 win.

In all this, you had to feel a little sorry for George Allen, the Washington coach, who came up short again. The loss to the Vikings wasn't his fault.

"I think," offered Jeff Siemon, Minnesota's fine looking young linebacker, "Washington is probably the best prepared team we faced all year."

Tom Landry's crew intercepted a John Hadl pass on the Rams' first play from scrimmage, turned that into a touchdown, then picked up another quick one after recovering a first quarter fumble, sat on them and generally were content to contain the Rams thereafter. The Cowboys scored again in the fourth quarter to win 27-16.

It's the same in football as in golf — nobody asks you how, all they ever ask is how many?

FOOTBALL

cepted a Cincinnati pass early in the third quarter, Griese, who earlier in the game had connected with Paul Warfield for a touchdown, found Jim Mandich in the end zone for a seven-yard scoring strike.

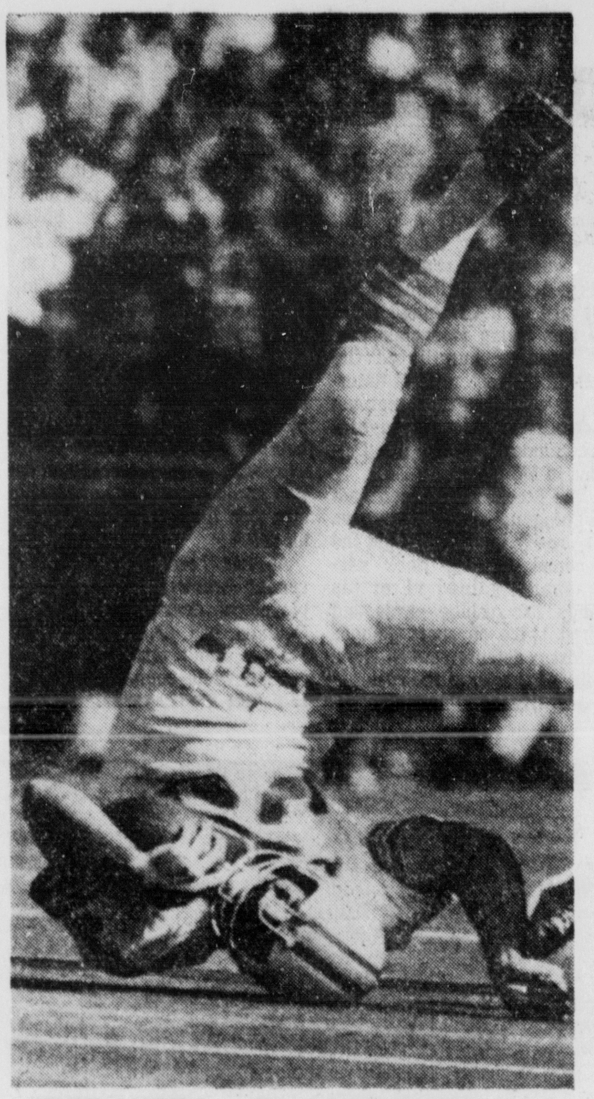
"I think Dallas has got the team that can do it," said Rams' Coach Chuck Knox after the Cowboys "did it" to Los Angeles. "You can't afford a single mistake against them."

The Rams made not one, but two, mistakes early in the game (a pass interception and a fumble) that the Cowboys turned into touchdowns. The Rams, after trailing 17-0, fought back to within 17-16 early in the fourth quarter before a dazed Roger Staubach connected with rookie Drew Pearson for an 83-yard touchdown pass. It was Staubach's second TD toss of the game to Pearson.

Staubach was knocked groggy on a scramble attempt in the opening quarter and didn't fully regain his senses until the last 15 minutes but missed only two plays. While Staubach recovered in time, Cowboy running back Calvin Hill suffered a dislocated left elbow in the final quarter and will miss the game against Minnesota.

Like millions of other football fans, the Vikings watched the Dallas-Los Angeles game on television and got a good idea of what to expect. However, Minnesota quarterback Fran Tarkenton, whose two fourth quarter touchdown passes to John Gilliam enabled the Vikings to beat Washington 24 hours earlier, was just thrilled at being in the playoffs—his first in 13 years of competition.

"We're just happy to be there," said Tarkenton. "Being in the playoffs is what it's all about. I've been called a loser and I've been called a scrambler, but the only thing I want to be known as is a winner."



ROUGH LANDING — Miami Dolphins' fullback Larry Csonka yesterday found he had to pay dearly for what he gained as he was sent head-over-heels after a short advance against the rugged Cincinnati Bengals in Miami. The Dolphins advanced to the American Football Conference championship game Sunday against Oakland by whipping the Bengals, 34-106. (UPI Telephoto)

Orioles' Davis Top Designated Hitter In A.L.

BOSTON (AP) — With an average of .293, the Baltimore Orioles' Tommy Davis has captured the individual crown and the Orioles, also averaging .293, took the team batting championship in the first year of the designated hitter in the American League.

Davis, formerly batting champion of the National League, had 156 hits in 432 times at bat as a designated hitter, according to official figures released by the league Saturday. Davis had 13 hits in another playing capacity and finished tied with Milwaukee's George Scott at .306 in the overall batting race.

Davis was way in front of Orlando Cepeda of the Boston Red Sox and Tony Oliva of the Minnesota Twins, who tied for second among designated hitters with .289 averages.

The averages indicated that designated hitters did much better at bat than pitchers did before the rulewas adopted. The DH average was .257 compared with the pitchers' .145 batting average the previous year.

NHL ROUNDUP

Bruins' Blind Pass Triggers A Triumph

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Then Sheppard heard Edestrand scream for the puck and fed him a behind-the-back pass without even looking back. Edestrand took the pass at center ice, picked up steam, split the Toronto defense and beat goalie Ed Johnston with a shot that barely left the ice.

The goal, which capped a flurry of three goals in less than two minutes of the third period, enabled the Boston Bruins to squeak by the Toronto Maple Leafs 4-3 last night.

"I shot low and hit Johnston's glove side," said Edestrand. "It may have bounced off his pads, or gone between his legs and his pads, but I only care that it went in. It really wasn't that great a shot."

"Edestrand yelled loudly," said Sheppard. "Loud enough for me to make the pass without looking. Besides, I saw him out of the corner of my eye as we started out of our own end. I thought of him because I knew he liked to carry the puck."

The game was a seesaw battle as Boston jumped to a 2-0 lead only to let Toronto tie it 2-2 before the second period ended on a pair of defensive lapses.

Ken Hodge put the Bruins in front 3-2 at 2:42 of the third period when he tipped in a Bobby Orr rebound shot, but Lanny McDonald tied it for Toronto seconds later after he stole the puck from Boston defenseman Al Sims.

Less than a minute after McDonald's goal, Chris Oddleifson passed the puck to Sheppard, who then set up Edestrand's game-winner.

In other National Hockey League games, the New York Islanders held Montreal to a 1-1 tie, Chicago whipped Vancouver 2-2, Atlanta downed the New York Rangers 3-1, Buffalo nipped Pittsburgh 3-2 and California and Minnesota tied 2-2.

J. P. Bordeleau scored twice and Pit Martin had three assists to help Chicago rookie goaltender Mike Veisor earn a victory over Vancouver in his NHL debut.

Richard scored two goals, the first and third for the Flames. The second Atlanta goal came when Stewart's shot hit New York goalie Ed Giacomin in the chest. Giacomin grabbed it with his glove hand — and dropped the puck into the goal. Referee Dave Sewchyk ruled that Giacomin never had possession of the puck and allowed the goal for Stewart.

Unusual Sked For Prep Fives

Christmas week usually produces some unusual scheduling in high school basketball, and this year is no exception.

Two alumni games are slated this week, plus three contests at the rare time of 11 a.m. On the road, one team will be playing in a tournament and two others in a round-robin affair.

All the 11 o'clock games involve San Francisco teams. Balboa visited Novato today, Lincoln will journey to Drake Thursday and Galileo will invade Novato Friday.

Tuesday usually is a heavy day, but since it is Christmas this year, no games are scheduled. Wednesday's slate is limited to the Drake and Marin Catholic alumni contests, both at 6:45 p.m.

Thursday through Saturday, Marin Catholic will be playing in the Bishop O'Dowd tournament in Oakland, and Redwood and Tamalpais will be at a round-robin affair at San Francisco State.

Redwood will meet Mills of Millbrae at 9 p.m. Thursday, Balboa at 8 p.m. Friday and San Francisco's St. Ignatius at 9 p.m. Saturday. Tam will face S. I. at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Santa Rosa at 6 p.m. Friday and Bal at 6 p.m. Saturday.

Friday's other games find Oakland Tech at San Rafael, 8 p.m., Petaluma will visit San Marin, 8:15 p.m. No others are scheduled Saturday.

Friday's other game will find Oakland Tech at San Rafael, 8 p.m. Petaluma's visit to San Marin, originally scheduled for Friday night, has been changed to Saturday at 8:15 p.m.

Holiday Tourneys For Coast Teams

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

This may be the season to be jolly, but it's also the season for tournaments for West Coast basketball teams.

Except for Washington State, which is in Honolulu today for the Rainbow Classic, all the Pacific-8 teams will take off two days for Christmas, but all will start tourneys before the week is out.

UCLA's Bruins, who have now won 81 straight games, will take part in their own Bruin Classic starting Friday.

Oregon, Washington and Oregon State are in the Far West Classic starting Wednesday at Portland.

California's Bears will enter the Quaker City Classic at Philadelphia, Stanford will move into the New York Holiday Festival and Southern Cal is entered in the All College Tournament in Oklahoma.

Six Bruins shot in double figures Saturday night while handing St. Bonaventure its first loss of the season 111-59, with Dave Meyers leading the onslaught with a career high of 16.

Fifth-ranked Maryland, meanwhile, was using the all-around wizardry of John Lucas to beat Santa Clara 53-32 and win the Cable Car Classic at Oakland.

San Francisco's Dons snapped a five-game losing streak for an 80-63 triumph over St. Joseph's that won third place in the Cable Car.

Southern California's Trojans got 16 points apiece from Dan Anderson and Gus Williams while downing Ohio University 80-68 in a ragged intersectional game, but the game's high man was Bill Brown of Ohio with 25.

Although they got to the finals of the Dayton Invitational, California's Bears were stopped there 66-62 by the University of Dayton. The game was tied four times but Dayton prevailed on the shooting of Rickie Smith who got 20 points.

Stanford's Cardinals reached the finals of the University of Kentucky Initational but lost there 78-77 to Kentucky which took advantage of a stolen ball and three foul shots in the final two minutes.

Tangerine Winner Miami Disappointed

"I'm not saying we could beat an Alabama or LSU," Mallory said, "but I think we could hang in there."

Florida finished the season 7-5, after dropping four of its first six games when hit by early season injuries.

Florida Coach Doug Dickey compared the visiting Redskins with Georgia.

"They had some big guys, but they had some quick guys on offense and Georgia was a lot similar to that," said Dickey. The Gators defeated Georgia 11-10.

The Gators developed fumbleitis in the surprising 20-degree north Florida weather, but Dickey had no alibis for the loss.

"We got untracked offensively," he said of the disastrous third quarter when Miami's lead swelled from 3-0 to 13-0.

Increase In Oil Prices Sends Stocks Tumbling

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks responded to the latest price increase on Persian Gulf oil by moving lower in moderate trading today on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said activity was light because of the single session sandwiched between the weekend and Christmas day holiday.

Oils were among the hardest hit issues, although most of the major groups declined.

Among the oils, Atlantic Richfield was off 2, Phillips 1 ⅝, and Texaco, California Standard, Indiana Standard, Mobil and Halliburton 1 ¼ each.

Bangor Punta was the most actively traded stock by midday, up ⅜ at 4 ½ on turnover of 104,100 shares, including a block of 100,000 shares at 4 ¼.

Prices also were lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

The Persian Gulf states announced yesterday after a meeting in the Iranian capital of Tehran that they were more than doubling the price of oil, effective Jan. 1.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Two Interesting Florida Companies

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. In May 1972, I bought 100 shares each of Coca-Cola Bottling of Miami (OTC) and Scotty's Inc. (ASE). Should I continue to hold?—E.A.

A. Shares of both these Florida-based firms merit retention. In each case the drop in share price appears out of proportion to any possible slowdown caused by the energy crisis or other factors. Scotty's principal business is with the "do-it-yourself" trade, while building contractors constitute only a small portion of sales. For this reason the sharp decline in housing starts should have a comparatively minimal effect on Scotty's sales.

In the first quarter of the current fiscal year to end next June, operating results were off to a good start. Sales rose 28 per cent and earnings gained 22 per cent on a 15 per cent increase in the number of shares outstanding. During the September quarter three new retail outlets were opened and six others are currently under construction.

Coa-Cola Bottling of Miami has expanded its franchising territory through acquisitions. Areas served include southern Florida, parts of Maryland, Delaware, Arkansas and Missouri. In 1972, two West Virginia bottlers and a Delaware company were acquired, as well as 71 per cent of a franchiser in West Virginia and Virginia. Consequently, sales were up 36 per cent in the year ended May 31, 1973, and 46 per cent in the August quarter. Sharply higher costs for ingredients, supplies and interest expenses cut profit margins, so that net income rose only seven per cent and 20 per cent in the respective periods. Nonetheless, shares have promising potential and should be held.

Q. Is Lykes-Youngstown 7½ per cent debenture due 1994 a safe investment? What is its current value?—A.A.

A. This B-rated unsecured debenture is trading under 60 ($600) to yield 12.9 per cent currently which indicates the highly speculative nature of the security. Lykes has incurred deficits in seven of the last 13 quarters and for the first nine months of 1973 was 85 cents in the red. This is certainly no "widows and orphans" holding.

Scott Hardware In San Rafael To Change Hands Next Month

Scott Hardware at 1320 Fourth Street in San Rafael, believed to be almost 100 years old, will be sold to new owners next month.

Eldred B. Hillis and his wife Dorothy, who have operated the hardware store for 29 years, will retire in their new home in Petaluma, where they moved two months ago from Santa Venetia.

Hillis estimated that the store is at least 80 or 90 years old. "When I bought the store from Mr. (the late Arthur) Scott in 1944, I heard it was 60 years old then."

Scott Hardware will retain its name and its services under the new owners, Mr. and Mrs. Jeff H. Wong of San Rafael. A resident of Marin for six years, Wong has been with Don Timmer Realtor in San Rafael for the past five years. Before coming to Marin, Wong was in business in Mendocino County for more than 10 years.

"We are keeping the Scott Hardware name because it is such a well established name," said Wong. "We plan to continue the services Scott Hardware provided to the people of Marin all these years."

PACIFIC MUTUAL Life Insurance Co. at 600 California Street in San Francisco will open a Corte Madera office next month in the new Park Marin Office Center at 21 Tamal Vista, between Cinema I theater and Edgewater Inn.

The 50,000-square-foot, two-story building was built by Kaiser Aetna of Oakland and Niles Development Co. of Sausalito.

Among the other tenants to sign leases for space in the new building are BANKERS LIFE NEBRASKA Insurance of 4280 Redwood Highway, San Rafael; and MAHONEY CONSTRUCTING, Sausalito contractor at 2829 Bridgeway.

MARVIN MILLER, manager of the Terra Linda office of Bank of America, was appointed to the Manager's Advisory Council, one of the top honors attainable in the bank.

Miller

Clausen

As one of 12 members of the Advisory Council, Miller will meet periodically with A. W. CLAUSEN, president of Bank of America, and other members of senior management to exchange views on the bank's ideas, policies and operating procedures.

CONNECTICUT MUTUAL Life Insurance Company has just opened its first Marin County branch office in room 308 of the Albert Building in San Rafael, 1010 B Street.

In charge of the San Rafael office are Ronald A. Erickson of Tiburon and Richard S. Roman of Loma Verde, who have been with Connecticut Mutual's San Francisco office for the past three years.

PRICE REDUCTIONS in imported wines are predicted by Benson I. Hattem, owner of European Wine Selections of Marin at 52 Bay Street in San Rafael.

"The rising trend in Bordeaux prices should end with the 1973 vintage," said Hattem. "Price decreases are appearing among the 'unpopular' vintages: 1968, 1969, 1971 and 1972. Couple this with the improvement of the exchange rate of the dollar to European currencies and we may see some brighter days ahead."

BORELL L. KIRSCHEN of Mill Valley has been appointed assistant vice president and assistant general counsel at the San Francisco home office of Fireman's Fund Insurance Companies.

Kirschen joined Fireman's Fund as assistant counsel in 1971 and advanced to associate counsel earlier this year. Before joining the company, he was deputy district attorney for Monterey County.

CALIFORNIA PACIFIC INSURANCE Services Inc. moved last week from Montecito Shopping Center to 1800 Lincoln Avenue in San Rafael, the old site of Bob Cummings Inc.

This is the second expansion move for Cal Pacific Insurance, which started about six years ago in Loch Lomond, then moved to Montecito Shopping Center on Third Street about two years ago.

Headed by President Milton Cerf of Peacock Gap, Cal Pacific offers a complete line of life, health and disability insurance for groups and individuals.

JOHN WADE of Mill Valley has been named a second vice president and associate actuary of the Life Insurance Company of California, located at 100 California Street, San Francisco.

ANTIQUE DEALERS from Marin and Sonoma will be among those participating in the Midwinter Antiques Show and Sale at St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco from Jan. 3 through 6. Among the dealers are John and Paula King of Petaluma, Gemcraft of Sausalito, and The Old Shop in Mill Valley.

CAROL LUNDMARK of Tiburon has joined the Frank Howard Allen & Co. Realtors' residential sales staff office in Greenbrae.

A graduate of the University of Texas, she came to Marin in 1968, taught school in Fairfax, and then entered the real estate field.

Increase In Oil Prices Sends Stocks Tumbling

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks responded to the latest price increase on Persian Gulf oil by moving lower in moderate trading today on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said activity was light because of the single session sandwiched between the weekend and Christmas day holiday.

Oils were among the hardest hit issues, although most of the major groups declined.

Among the oils, Atlantic Richfield was off 2, Phillips 1 ⅝, and Texaco, California Standard, Indiana Standard, Mobil and Halliburton 1 ¼ each.

Bangor Punta was the most actively traded stock by midday, up ⅜ at 4 ½ on turnover of 104,100 shares, including a block of 100,000 shares at 4 ¼.

Prices also were lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

The Persian Gulf states announced yesterday after a meeting in the Iranian capital of Tehran that they were more than doubling the price of oil, effective Jan. 1.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Two Interesting Florida Companies

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. In May 1972, I bought 100 shares each of Coca-Cola Bottling of Miami (OTC) and Scotty's Inc. (ASE). Should I continue to hold?—E.A.

A. Shares of both these Florida-based firms merit retention. In each case the drop in share price appears out of proportion to any possible slowdown caused by the energy crisis or other factors. Scotty's principal business is with the "do-it-yourself" trade, while building contractors constitute only a small portion of sales. For this reason the sharp decline in housing starts should have a comparatively minimal effect on Scotty's sales.

In the first quarter of the current fiscal year to end next June, operating results were off to a good start. Sales rose 28 per cent and earnings gained 22 per cent on a 15 per cent increase in the number of shares outstanding. During the September quarter three new retail outlets were opened and six others are currently under construction.

Coa-Cola Bottling of Miami has expanded its franchising territory through acquisitions. Areas served include southern Florida, parts of Maryland, Delaware, Arkansas and Missouri. In 1972, two West Virginia bottlers and a Delaware company were acquired, as well as 71 per cent of a franchiser in West Virginia and Virginia. Consequently, sales were up 36 per cent in the year ended May 31, 1973, and 46 per cent in the August quarter. Sharply higher costs for ingredients, supplies and interest expenses cut profit margins, so that net income rose only seven per cent and 20 per cent in the respective periods. Nonetheless, shares have promising potential and should be held.

Q. Is Lykes-Youngstown 7½ per cent debenture due 1994 a safe investment? What is its current value?—A.A.

A. This B-rated unsecured debenture is trading under 60 ($600) to yield 12.9 per cent currently which indicates the highly speculative nature of the security. Lykes has incurred deficits in seven of the last 13 quarters and for the first nine months of 1973 was 85 cents in the red. This is certainly no "widows and orphans" holding.

Scott Hardware In San Rafael To Change Hands Next Month

Scott Hardware at 1320 Fourth Street in San Rafael, believed to be almost 100 years old, will be sold to new owners next month.

Eldred B. Hillis and his wife Dorothy, who have operated the hardware store for 29 years, will retire in their new home in Petaluma, where they moved two months ago from Santa Venetia.

Hillis estimated that the store is at least 80 or 90 years old. "When I bought the store from Mr. (the late Arthur) Scott in 1944, I heard it was 60 years old then."

Scott Hardware will retain its name and its services under the new owners, Mr. and Mrs. Jeff H. Wong of San Rafael. A resident of Marin for six years, Wong has been with Don Timmer Realtor in San Rafael for the past five years. Before coming to Marin, Wong was in business in Mendocino County for more than 10 years.

"We are keeping the Scott Hardware name because it is such a well established name," said Wong. "We plan to continue the services Scott Hardware provided to the people of Marin all these years."

PACIFIC MUTUAL Life Insurance Co. at 600 California Street in San Francisco will open a Corte Madera office next month in the new Park Marin Office Center at 21 Tamal Vista, between Cinema I theater and Edgewater Inn.

The 50,000-square-foot, two-story building was built by Kaiser Aetna of Oakland and Niles Development Co. of Sausalito.

Among the other tenants to sign leases for space in the new building are BANKERS LIFE NEBRASKA Insurance of 4280 Redwood Highway, San Rafael; and MAHONEY CONSTRUCTING, Sausalito contractor at 2829 Bridgeway.

MARVIN MILLER, manager of the Terra Linda office of Bank of America, was appointed to the Manager's Advisory Council, one of the top honors attainable in the bank.

Miller

Clausen

As one of 12 members of the Advisory Council, Miller will meet periodically with A. W. CLAUSEN, president of Bank of America, and other members of senior management to exchange views on the bank's ideas, policies and operating procedures.

CONNECTICUT MUTUAL Life Insurance Company has just opened its first Marin County branch office in room 308 of the Albert Building in San Rafael, 1010 B Street.

In charge of the San Rafael office are Ronald A. Erickson of Tiburon and Richard S. Roman of Loma Verde, who have been with Connecticut Mutual's San Francisco office for the past three years.

PRICE REDUCTIONS in imported wines are predicted by Benson I. Hattem, owner of European Wine Selections of Marin at 52 Bay Street in San Rafael.

"The rising trend in Bordeaux prices should end with the 1973 vintage," said Hattem. "Price decreases are appearing among the 'unpopular' vintages: 1968, 1969, 1971 and 1972. Couple this with the improvement of the exchange rate of the dollar to European currencies and we may see some brighter days ahead."

BORELL L. KIRSCHEN of Mill Valley has been appointed assistant vice president and assistant general counsel at the San Francisco home office of Fireman's Fund Insurance Companies.

Kirschen joined Fireman's Fund as assistant counsel in 1971 and advanced to associate counsel earlier this year. Before joining the company, he was deputy district attorney for Monterey County.

CALIFORNIA PACIFIC INSURANCE Services Inc. moved last week from Montecito Shopping Center to 1800 Lincoln Avenue in San Rafael, the old site of Bob Cummings Inc.

This is the second expansion move for Cal Pacific Insurance, which started about six years ago in Loch Lomond, then moved to Montecito Shopping Center on Third Street about two years ago.

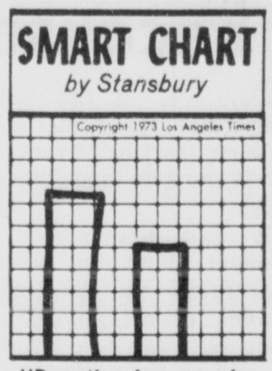
Headed by President Milton Cerf of Peacock Gap, Cal Pacific offers a complete line of life, health and disability insurance for groups and individuals.

JOHN WADE of Mill Valley has been named a second vice president and associate actuary of the Life Insurance Company of California, located at 100 California Street, San Francisco.

ANTIQUE DEALERS from Marin and Sonoma will be among those participating in the Midwinter Antiques Show and Sale at St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco from Jan. 3 through 6. Among the dealers are John and Paula King of Petaluma, Gemcraft of Sausalito, and The Old Shop in Mill Valley.

CAROL LUNDMARK of Tiburon has joined the Frank Howard Allen & Co. Realtors' residential sales staff office in Greenbrae.

A graduate of the University of Texas, she came to Marin in 1968, taught school in Fairfax, and then entered the real estate field.



"Retail sales may be off, but at least we won't have as much returned merchandise."

Crown Zellerbach Hikes Newsprint

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Crown Zellerbach yesterday raised the price of its domestically produced newsprint 3.4 per cent, or $6.18 a ton.

The increase from $177.50 to $183.68 was approved by the Cost of Living Council for 30-pound standard newsprint, the company said.

We Can Be Better Because Of Crises

Can we, in the spirit of Christmas, find something good in such unsettling events of 1973 as Watergate and the energy crisis?

We can, if we give it a little thought. Both the scandal of Watergate and the inconveniences of oil-gasoline-power shortages can prove helpful to us and to the nation. And both can, if we will help them, make us better Christians.

THE WATERGATE investigation has brought to light misuses of political power and political money that have shocked us. But the disclosures have more than shocked us; they also have made us look considerably harder at how well we have performed our duties of citizenship — particularly the duty to hold our elected and non-elected representatives answerable to us, the people.

None of the scandals came to be just because of the Committee To Re-elect the President, or just because of President Nixon or the men with whom he surrounded himself in the White House. They came to be because we, the people, forgot our duty to demand the same honesty and integrity in government that we demand in private dealings. We said, "Oh, well, it's just politics." We "let George do it."

We forgot that freedom is never won lightly and can never be held lightly. And so, we opened the way for corruption that eats at the substance of freedom.

Watergate has awakened us to the corruption. If it has awakened us also to the necessity to be more responsible citizens, we and our nation will be the better for it.

THE ENERGY CRISIS did not come about just because the big oil companies and the big power companies promoted the use of more and more gasoline and more and more power without enough regard to the depletion of resources. It did not come about just because the Arab countires cut off 10 to 12 per cent of our supply. It did not come about through some connivance between oil companies and government.

It came about because we, the people, were too wasteful. We did not pay attention to depletion of resources. We were ever ready to add new appliances, to buy bigger automobiles, to drive instead of walk, to patronize the less economical consumers of natural resources — the airplane rather than the train, the frost-free refrigerator rather than the old-fashioned kind, even the electric can-opener and toothbrush rather than expending a minimal amount of our own energy.

All of this we did for our own personal convenience, with no thought to conserving anything.

The energy crisis has awakened us to the fact that our sources of energy are finite, that there is no bottomless pocket from which we may draw forever with no thought but for our own convenience.

If it teaches us to conserve, to be less wasteful, it will make better citizens and better Christians of us. And again, our nation will be the better for it.

The Fat Makers

November and December might well be known as the months of the hungry raccoons. They come at night and eat and eat and eat! This season they are single-minded about making fat to keep them alive through the cold time to come. One friend in San Rafael reports feeding 100 pounds of dog food a week recently.

Gosh — What Now?

Those Marinites who believe the old saw about rain making the plants grow are anticipating an early spring with profuse foliage and abundant, giant blossoms. Acacias are already groaning under heavy buds. This might be the beginning of an incomparable floral season.

PAUL E. PETERZELL

Clean Air Act Too Vital To Be Energy Crisis Loss

Many of our leaders claim the energy crisis means citizens soon will have to accept dirtier air. The Clean Air Act is too cumbersome to bother with now, they insist as they go about dismembering it.

They forget, however, that the act is more than a cosmetic stunt to pretty up views. It is based on the vital matter of human health. It is not a simple issue of drippy noses irritated by air pollution.

At issue are effects that shorten life and make it miserable in the meantime for a substantial number of people whose systems cannot adapt to breathing bad air. Unless we screen everyone to certify those fit enough to live in and around cities, we cannot afford to reverse the slow process of cleaning up the air.

Polluters literally are banking on public willingness to tolerate dirty air. It would be radically different if the public demanded clean air, just as it demands clean water.

The danger of this mixed standard of public health would be illustrated if the limits on drinking water pollution were relaxed. And on milk, too.

A lot of people would get sick, many would have shorter lives, and some would kick off almost immediately if they had to drink water as dirty as the air. Dirty air is kind of hard to get into a glass in your hand so it can be seen easily, but can be just as bad for your health as dirty water.

The whole thing would be good for the economy, especially for long-term health care centers and mortuaries.

Dirty air means higher profits for many industries, so they hardly can be blamed for manipulating the energy crisis to get rid of costly environmental controls. If the public lets them get away with gutting the Clean Air Act, the consequences will fall upon us all for a long time.

The huge tower also is being used for serious scientific research on air pollution. Measurements of oxidant and carbon monoxide at various levels on the 977-foot-high structure will yield data on the vertial distribution of pollutants and their variations in concentrations.

Another device is studying the characteristics of the temperature inversion layer. This information will be coorobarated by readings from balloons and aircraft.

All the data will be used to prepare the Air Pollution Control District's computer model to show the regional effects of major developments.

We still would prefer, however, that the tower had been built underground.

"I envy them their mileage, J.B."

ERNEST B. FURGURSON

Yesteryear's Christmas: Who'd Have Believed The 'Energy Crisis' Complaints Of 1973?

WASHINGTON — When we were kids, one of the crosses we bore graciously at Christmas time was listening to the grown-ups talk about how all they got from Santa Claus back when was a tangerine and a Barlow knife, and they considered themselves lucky.

Now, as grown-ups, it is not quite so impressive to tell today's kids how we sacrificed for the common good ourselves at some yule past by accepting a mere Colson balloon-tire bicycle, Rawlings official football, some Union Hardware skates, six Big-Little Books, a nature encyclopedia, and in our stockings a collection of English walnuts, pecans, tangerines, hard candy, a compass and a Marine Band harmonica.

Fyuletide, 1973

WHAT WE HAVE to fall back on this year, some of us anyhow, are tales about how in the Christmases of yore we didn't worry about energy crises, even during the war, because we practiced do-it-yourself fueling.

I don't mean we did it ourselves to the extent that the poor people who lived on Liberty Hill did. Most of them lived in haphazard mansions made of assorted sheets of galvanized metal, patched with orange crates and cardboard boxes. When a coal train came down the slow grade behind Green Hill Cemetery, some of them (usually the husbands) would get atop the cars and throw and kick coal off along the track side. Their partners on the ground would run along picking it up in burlap bags until the caboose came and the man chased them away. A typical day's load was about half a sack, which had to do till next time.

It is a fairly rare and precious thing for an American boy of only 12 or so to appreciate even then how lucky he is. Watching people gather coal that way and take it home to Liberty Hill to burn in red-hot laundry stoves helped, in my case.

For we, of course, bought our coal at $14 a ton, if I remember right. The truck would back up to the garage and unload it next to where the car sat. During the war, that space was filled up with scrap paper being collected for the benefit of the boys overseas and the profit of Boy Scout Troop 51. The '39 Plymouth we had before the war got serious was sold and we walked for the duration. It didn't hurt a bit.

RATHER THAN a red-hot laundry stove, we had one of those big black round stoves about 18 inches in diameter, with shiny footrests on each side to keep your feet warm on and with mica windows in the door so you could see whether the fire needed feeding. If you built a fire and kept a close eye on it, it would last indefinitely — assuming when you got up early in the morning you knew just how to poke the coals back into life. As I recall, ours needed rebuilding from the bottom up only once a week.

My job was first to break up the coal into manageable chunks. You did this with the back of a hatchet, aiming the blow at the big blocks and then closing your eyes before the chips sprayed into your face. Then you shoveled up two scuttles full, which weighed around 35 pounds each, and took one inside and left the other next to the back door. That much usually lasted a day and a night.

Kindling splitting came frequently but not every day; simply a matter of splitting scrap lumber thin enough to catch fire from a balled-up newspaper but thick enough to light a load of coal.

NATURALLY NOT EVERYBODY in my hometown had to either scrounge coal off the railroad or gather 'round a stove at home. There was central heating even then, and lots of people had those Arcola furnaces that sat in the kitchen or on the back porch and bumped and rumbled demanding more coal. We shifted to an oil-fed space heater the year after the war.

But a standard generation ago, the national norm was to heat about two rooms with a stove and shut off the rest of the house, and wrap a bathrobe around your feet in the cold bed with three blankets and two quilts on top and your breath frosting in the air.
and your breath frosting in the air.

And on Christmas morning, when firecrackers had been echoing outside for what seemed hours and you could hear whispers and the rustle of wrapping paper from the living room — as you curled up tighter with your nose sticking out of the covers and called and asked, "Is it 6 o'clock yet?" — if anybody had told you then that someday people would complain because they had to turn their automatic thermostats back to 68 degrees, you would have brushed it off as just another fairy tale like the grown-ups used to tell.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Way Government Could Really Help Consumer

It's always interesting to read about government actions designed to "help" the consumer. (See the article on drug pricing in Wednesday's I-J).

If as much time and effort were spent on weeding out ineffective and unneeded spending programs as is spent on investigating business practices, the consumer/taxpayer would be saved a much larger amount of money.

Boy's Act Of Mercy May Have Delayed Paper

One of your I-J carriers may be using a slightly soiled bag. If his customers notice, I'd like to explain why to them.

Ryan stopped on his route to help a badly injured cat. He directed traffic around the animal and waited until the owner arrived. If your paper was late it was because of his act of mercy and kindness.

Thank you, Ryan Willmore. Young men like you give us hope for the America of tomorrow.

Concern Not Life Style But Pollution Of Bay

The obvious social statement by your reporter in your paper of Dec. 14, both in his article entitled "Life on a Leaky Houseboat", and in his "Reporter's Notebook" column, in which he mentions the same, deserve to be looked at from other points of view. How would you like it if someone suddenly appeared in front of your house prepared to stay an indefinite time, and dumped garbage and sewerage there?

We are not concerned with Dr. Diamond and his companion's life style. We are concerned about pollution of the bay waters, which has diminished the numbers of crab, striped bass, wild birds, seals, to name a few.

Many times in the past three months I have been in the area where this houseboat was located but did not see any evidence of any work being done toward rehabilitating it.

As a "middle class home owner who lives on a hill" and pays taxes toward operating Marin County, I feel Supervisors Wornum and Roumiguiere are to be complimented for their interest and concern in enforcing the county ordinances.

Thanks To Those Who Gave Blood For Youth

It is our loss that we aren't able to know you, but we wish to thank you one and all who gave blood for Tim McDonald, our 15-year-old son.

Tim is gone now, from the ravages of leukemia, and though we miss him terribly, there is much consolation in the fact that you, who gave to help him, loved him greatly though you didn't know him.

We also wish to thank Dr. Arthur Ablin for his extensive efforts and application of his great knowledge in Tim's behalf.

If Bagley Leaves, Firm Won't Dissolve

I want to correct a misconception which may have arisen from your recent editorial concerning one of my law partners, Assemblyman Bill Bagley.

The editorial says that Bill "will dissolve the (law) firm if he is elected (state) controller." One might erroneously conclude from this that the 10 other attorneys now in our firm would thereupon disband and individually go about their respective business. This is not the case.

When Bill is elected controller, the rest of us expect to keep carrying on, together and at the same old stand. The only significant difference will be that Bill's name will no longer be in the title of the firm, and he will of course have no further financial interest in it nor will he be receiving the fractional income which the firm has paid him in the past.

But, I can assure you, we will not "dissolve."

School Locker Theft Outrages Grandparent

For many years of my life I have paid taxes, without complaint about the constant increases. Part of the taxes are apportioned to education — school maintenance, teachers' salaries, books, etc., etc. — to which I contribute with no protest. Even though I am 75 years old and do not have any of my children attending school, I share the cost of educating other people's children — willingly.

Today, my 18-year-old grandson, a student at Terra Linda High School, had to walk home in his gym clothes, exposed to inclement weather, because the lock on his clothes locker was jammed. He sought the help of a school custodian. The locker when opened was empty. All his clothing, including wallet and identification cards, had been stolen.

Something is drastically worng with the school system. With these thieves running rampant, more security and screening is definitely needed.

We are harboring and the courts are protecting juvenile delinquents who are potential criminals.

Nelson Rockefeller is keeping his options open. That means he can either start running for president immediately or wait until next week.

Congressmen looking into President Nixon's taxes promise him a fair shake — but not necessarily as fair as the one he got from the IRS.

As members of Congress go home to talk to constituents, some of them don't really want to ask if any elected official should be impeached.

This country is made up of the Haves and Have-Nots, bothconvinced they don't have enough.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Nixon Adamant, Congress Slow, But States Enact Reforms

Will President Nixon resign? Next to the fuel shortage, that is the foremost topic of speculation in Washington. Some of his friends expect he will. Most of his critics hope he will.

Under any foreseeable circumstances, the answer is no. Mr. Nixon has always said he has no intention of quitting. In private conversation he is now putting his position even more unequivocally. He is giving a flat, two-letter, one-word reply: no.

It sounds as conclusive and final as one can make it. His reasoning is this: (1) that he considers he has done nothing wrong and that unpopularity is not a cause for quitting, and (2) that to resign under such circumstances would weaken the presidency for all future occupants.

WILL NIXON RECOVER CREDIBILITY? Will he be able to govern effectively if the Watergate storm does not subside?

The answer which Vice President Gerald Ford is giving is that Watergate will not long continue as the prime concern of the American people. His view is that the president and the Republican Party will be in a good position in 1974 if the economy remains strong, if there is peace in the Middle East, and if inflation is kept under control.

But none of these three ifs will be easily realized.

THE IMPEACHMENT PROCESS WILL BEGIN. This doesn't mean the president will be impeached. The process requires three steps: (1) a vote by the House Judiciary Committee on whether to recommend impeachment; (2) a vote by the full House on whether to pass a bill of impeachment; (3) a trial and vote by the Senate (two-thirds required) whether to order impeachment.

The process could be ended at the first vote and the dominant view in Washington is that the House Judiciary Committee will vote it down.

DEMOCRATS SKIRTING VICE-PRESIDENTIAL REFORM. A party committee under Sen. Hubert Humphrey has been in travail for months and has now given birth to a mini-mouse. Its proposal:

Extend the national convention 48 hours to permit full consideration or, at the presidential nominee's request, hold a vice-presidential nominating convention at a later date.

ANOTHER POLITICAL MYTH IS EXPLODED. Among the most widely propounded dogmas today are that public apathy about politics makes needed reform unattainable and that if there is any chance of reform it will come from the federal government, not from the states.

Wrong on both points. State legislatures are speedily outdistancing Congress in furthering political reform, and voters in 25 states have brought into being new laws to reduce the influence of money and secrecy in the political process.

State capitals are not waiting for Washington. In Texas, Oregon and at least 10 other states (New Jersey, Florida, Iowa, Hawaii, Nevada, California, Maine, Nebraska, Utah, Maryland), new and stricter campaign finance legislation has been passed with stiff enforcement provisions.

Revulsion over Watergate, yes. Apathy, no. A grass-roots political revival is at hand.

TO CORRECT A MYTH. Arab spokesmen have repeated so many times that all Israel has to do to get a settlement is to obey the U.N. Resolution 242 and withdraw from all the occupied territories.

The resolution doesn't say that. It called for "withdrawal from occupied territories" and left unspecified the extent of withdrawal. The word "all" was originally proposed and rejected by the Security Council.

We Can Be Better Because Of Crises

Can we, in the spirit of Christmas, find something good in such unsettling events of 1973 as Watergate and the energy crisis?

We can, if we give it a little thought. Both the scandal of Watergate and the inconveniences of oil-gasoline-power shortages can prove helpful to us and to the nation. And both can, if we will help them, make us better Christians.

THE WATERGATE investigation has brought to light misuses of political power and political money that have shocked us. But the disclosures have more than shocked us; they also have made us look considerably harder at how well we have performed our duties of citizenship — particularly the duty to hold our elected and non-elected representatives answerable to us, the people.

None of the scandals came to be just because of the Committee To Re-elect the President, or just because of President Nixon or the men with whom he surrounded himself in the White House. They came to be because we, the people, forgot our duty to demand the same honesty and integrity in government that we demand in private dealings. We said, "Oh, well, it's just politics." We "let George do it."

We forgot that freedom is never won lightly and can never be held lightly. And so, we opened the way for corruption that eats at the substance of freedom.

Watergate has awakened us to the corruption. If it has awakened us also to the necessity to be more responsible citizens, we and our nation will be the better for it.

THE ENERGY CRISIS did not come about just because the big oil companies and the big power companies promoted the use of more and more gasoline and more and more power without enough regard to the depletion of resources. It did not come about just because the Arab countires cut off 10 to 12 per cent of our supply. It did not come about through some connivance between oil companies and government.

It came about because we, the people, were too wasteful. We did not pay attention to depletion of resources. We were ever ready to add new appliances, to buy bigger automobiles, to drive instead of walk, to patronize the less economical consumers of natural resources — the airplane rather than the train, the frost-free refrigerator rather than the old-fashioned kind, even the electric can-opener and toothbrush rather than expending a minimal amount of our own energy.

All of this we did for our own personal convenience, with no thought to conserving anything.

The energy crisis has awakened us to the fact that our sources of energy are finite, that there is no bottomless pocket from which we may draw forever with no thought but for our own convenience.

If it teaches us to conserve, to be less wasteful, it will make better citizens and better Christians of us. And again, our nation will be the better for it.

The Fat Makers

November and December might well be known as the months of the hungry raccoons. They come at night and eat and eat and eat! This season they are single-minded about making fat to keep them alive through the cold time to come. One friend in San Rafael reports feeding 100 pounds of dog food a week recently.

Gosh — What Now?

Those Marinites who believe the old saw about rain making the plants grow are anticipating an early spring with profuse foliage and abundant, giant blossoms. Acacias are already groaning under heavy buds. This might be the beginning of an incomparable floral season.

ERNEST B. FURGURSON

Yesteryear's Christmas: Who'd Have Believed The 'Energy Crisis' Complaints Of 1973?

WASHINGTON — When we were kids, one of the crosses we bore graciously at Christmas time was listening to the grown-ups talk about how all they got from Santa Claus back when was a tangerine and a Barlow knife, and they considered themselves lucky.

Now, as grown-ups, it is not quite so impressive to tell today's kids how we sacrificed for the common good ourselves at some yule past by accepting a mere Colson balloon-tire bicycle, Rawlings official football, some Union Hardware skates, six Big-Little Books, a nature encyclopedia, and in our stockings a collection of English walnuts, pecans, tangerines, hard candy, a compass and a Marine Band harmonica.

WHAT WE HAVE to fall back on this year, some of us anyhow, are tales about how in the Christmases of yore we didn't worry about energy crises, even during the war, because we practiced do-it-yourself fueling.

I don't mean we did it ourselves to the extent that the poor people who lived on Liberty Hill did. Most of them lived in haphazard mansions made of assorted sheets of galvanized metal, patched with orange crates and cardboard boxes. When a coal train came down the slow grade behind Green Hill Cemetery, some of them (usually the husbands) would get atop the cars and throw and kick coal off along the track side. Their partners on the ground would run along picking it up in burlap bags until the caboose came and the man chased them away. A typical day's load was about half a sack, which had to do till next time.

It is a fairly rare and precious thing for an American boy of only 12 or so to appreciate even then how lucky he is. Watching people gather coal that way and take it home to Liberty Hill to burn in red-hot laundry stoves helped, in my case.

For we, of course, bought our coal at $14 a ton, if I remember right. The truck would back up to the garage and unload it next to where the car sat. During the war, that space was filled up with scrap paper being collected for the benefit of the boys overseas and the profit of Boy Scout Troop 51. The '39 Plymouth we had before the war got serious was sold and we walked for the duration. It didn't hurt a bit.

RATHER THAN a red-hot laundry stove, we had one of those big black round stoves about 18 inches in diameter, with shiny footrests on each side to keep your feet warm on and with mica windows in the door so you could see whether the fire needed feeding. If you built a fire and kept a close eye on it, it would last indefinitely — assuming when you got up early in the morning you knew just how to poke the coals back into life. As I recall, ours needed rebuilding from the bottom up only once a week.

My job was first to break up the coal into manageable chunks. You did this with the back of a hatchet, aiming the blow at the big blocks and then closing your eyes before the chips sprayed into your face. Then you shoveled up two scuttles full, which weighed around 35 pounds each, and took one inside and left the other next to the back door. That much usually lasted a day and a night.

Kindling splitting came frequently but not every day; simply a matter of splitting scrap lumber thin enough to catch fire from a balled-up newspaper but thick enough to light a load of coal.

NATURALLY NOT EVERYBODY in my hometown had to either scrounge coal off the railroad or gather 'round a stove at home. There was central heating even then, and lots of people had those Arcola furnaces that sat in the kitchen or on the back porch and bumped and rumbled demanding more coal. We shifted to an oil-fed space heater the year after the war.

But a standard generation ago, the national norm was to heat about two rooms with a stove and shut off the rest of the house, and wrap a bathrobe around your feet in the cold bed with three blankets and two quilts on top and your breath frosting in the air.

And on Christmas morning, when firecrackers had been echoing outside for what seemed hours and you could hear whispers and the rustle of wrapping paper from the living room — as you curled up tighter with your nose sticking out of the covers and called and asked, "Is it 6 o'clock yet?" — if anybody had told you then that someday people would complain because they had to turn their automatic thermostats back to 68 degrees, you would have brushed it off as just another fairy tale like the grown-ups used to tell.

Way Government Could Really Help Consumer

It's always interesting to read about government actions designed to "help" the consumer. (See the article on drug pricing in Wednesday's I-J).

If as much time and effort were spent on weeding out ineffective and unneeded spending programs as is spent on investigating business practices, the consumer/taxpayer would be saved a much larger amount of money.

Concern Not Life Style But Pollution Of Bay

The obvious social statement by your reporter in your paper of Dec. 14, both in his article entitled "Life on a Leaky Houseboat", and in his "Reporter's Notebook" column, in which he mentions the same, deserve to be looked at from other points of view. How would you like it if someone suddenly appeared in front of your house prepared to stay an indefinite time, and dumped garbage and sewerage there?

We are not concerned with Dr. Diamond and his companion's life style. We are concerned about pollution of the bay waters, which has diminished the numbers of crab, striped bass, wild birds, seals, to name a few.

Many times in the past three months I have been in the area where this houseboat was located but did not see any evidence of any work being done toward rehabilitating it.

As a "middle class home owner who lives on a hill" and pays taxes toward operating Marin County, I feel Supervisors Wornum and Roumiguiere are to be complimented for their interest and concern in enforcing the county ordinances.

If Bagley Leaves, Firm Won't Dissolve

I want to correct a misconception which may have arisen from your recent editorial concerning one of my law partners, Assemblyman Bill Bagley.

The editorial says that Bill "will dissolve the (law) firm if he is elected (state) controller." One might erroneously conclude from this that the 10 other attorneys now in our firm would thereupon disband and individually go about their respective business. This is not the case.

When Bill is elected controller, the rest of us expect to keep carrying on, together and at the same old stand. The only significant difference will be that Bill's name will no longer be in the title of the firm, and he will of course have no further financial interest in it nor will he be receiving the fractional income which the firm has paid him in the past.

But, I can assure you, we will not "dissolve."

Clean Air Act Too Vital To Be Energy Crisis Loss

Many of our leaders claim the energy crisis means citizens soon will have to accept dirtier air. The Clean Air Act is too cumbersome to bother with now, they insist as they go about dismembering it.

They forget, however, that the act is more than a cosmetic stunt to pretty up views. It is based on the vital matter of human health. It is not a simple issue of drippy noses irritated by air pollution.

At issue are effects that shorten life and make it miserable in the meantime for a substantial number of people whose systems cannot adapt to breathing bad air. Unless we screen everyone to certify those fit enough to live in and around cities, we cannot afford to reverse the slow process of cleaning up the air.

Polluters literally are banking on public willingness to tolerate dirty air. It would be radically different if the public demanded clean air, just as it demands clean water.

The danger of this mixed standard of public health would be illustrated if the limits on drinking water pollution were relaxed. And on milk, too.

A lot of people would get sick, many would have shorter lives, and some would kick off almost immediately if they had to drink water as dirty as the air. Dirty air is kind of hard to get into a glass in your hand so it can be seen easily, but can be just as bad for your health as dirty water.

The whole thing would be good for the economy, especially for long-term health care centers and mortuaries.

Dirty air means higher profits for many industries, so they hardly can be blamed for manipulating the energy crisis to get rid of costly environmental controls. If the public lets them get away with gutting the Clean Air Act, the consequences will fall upon us all for a long time.

The huge tower also is being used for serious scientific research on air pollution. Measurements of oxidant and carbon monoxide at various levels on the 977-foot-high structure will yield data on the vertial distribution of pollutants and their variations in concentrations.

Another device is studying the characteristics of the temperature inversion layer. This information will be coorobarated by readings from balloons and aircraft.

All the data will be used to prepare the Air Pollution Control District's computer model to show the regional effects of major developments.

We still would prefer, however, that the tower had been built underground.

Registering Car May Be Hassle For New Resident

With the holiday season upon us it shouldn't be the time for anything but good cheer.

Licensing of motor vehicles is a necessary evil in society and, although always a hassle, most citizens rightly group it with other unpleasant but necessary tasks such as getting out of bed each morning.

He goes to the motor vehicle office in Corte Madera, stands in line for up to half an hour, and then is told to get his car's pollution devices updated and checked.

He casts an affirmative reply to the question, "Have you got the pollution control slip." And as the examiner nods approval he thinks it will only be minutes before he receives new license plates.

WRONG AGAIN and he waits.

Since he also wants to put his wife's name on the registration (having been married just a short time), he is given some forms and told to take them home for his wife's signature.

By his third trip to Corte Madera he has just about given up hope of ever receiving the license and almost needs a file folder to carry all the papers he has accumulated for the registration folks.

The examiner tells him he has all the necessary information to get the license. But as she checks over the application with a glance she spies it, the snag he knew had to appear to cause more trouble.

It seems his out-of-state ownership certificate and out-of-state registration don't match as to the serial number of his car. His mind panics as he wonders if the registration clerk doesn't think he stole the car, altered its serial number and was involved in some grand plot.

But as she reaches under the counter he panics once again, thinking she has tripped a silent alarm and the police will soon appear to arrest him for something.

BEING OPEN MINDED he realizes that the motor vehicle clerks he has hassled with must put up with complaining people like himself all year long. And the experience for him has come only once during the year.

I found it to be quite an experience and with nearly a week to soften my attitude I have quite saying "Bah, Humbug!" each time I see the new blue and gold plates on my car.

Hungary Wants No Watergate

Anti-Soviet Book Block Is Planned

MOSCOW (UPI) — A copyright agency official has indicated the Soviet Union will try to block world publication abroad of works it considers anti-Soviet, especially books by Nobel Prize winning author Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn.

The official said the government intends to use its new membership in the Univeral Copyright Convention to block publication by acting as Soviet authors' sole agents in selling books overseas.

"The Soviet author in accordance with our laws must coordinate this (copyright) question with us," said Boris D. Pankin, the copyright agency chairman, in an interview.

He said his group now is the only legal Soviet body authorized to deal with foreign publishers. It was established last September after the Soviet Union joined the world convention May 27.

Referring to Solzhenitsyn, Pankin said: "Our attitude toward him, or more precisely to his works, those which we know about, is not changed. We shall never welcome any anti-Soviet works, no matter whose they are."

Solzhenitsyn has said he has many unpublished manuscripts, but it is not known if copies already have been sent abroad.

Pankin left no doubt his agency would prosecute foreign publishers of works it did not approve and Soviets supplying them—the publishers for copyright infringement under the convention and the Soviets for violation of Russian law.

Pankin said no author had the right to "bypass our representation and approach a publisher directly and give him permission to publish. If he does so, he is violating Soviet law."

He said any deal made directly with a foreign publisher would be invalid. "We shall ask the publishers and if they are not able to explain how they received the manuscript and what right they have to use it, the publishing house will bear the legal responsibility," he said.

A Recess In Carpenters' Court Case

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A contempt of court hearing in the wildcat strike by Northern California carpenters has been recessed until Thursday.

The carpenters walked off the job five weeks ago to protest the refusal of the cost of living council to allow them a negotiated pay increase.

A construction superintendent told the court yesterday he saw Jack Melton, a union business agent, talking with idled workers in San Francisco on Nov. 19, three days after an injunction had been issued barring strike activity.

The witness, Patrick Conway, said he asked Melton: "When are your men going back to work?"

He said Melton answered: "When you pay the 65 cents and all the retroactive pay."

It's a fact. But not likely to be a headline. Violence and scandal are the staples of news; individual charity and kindness go unremarked. Night Before Christmas

'Twas the Night Before Christmas was written in 1822 by the same man who later authored something called George Castriot, Surnamed Scanderbeg, King of Albania. Needless to say, he is best remembered for his famous Christmas ballad. The professor of Oriental and Greek literature also compiled A Compendious Lexicon of the Hebrew Language. The author penned 'Twas the Night Before Christmas for his own children, but it was printed the next year anonymously and without his knowledge. Entitled A Visit From Saint Nicholas — rather than 'Twas the Night Before Christmas, it was finally published by the author in 1844 as one of a collection of poems.

DO YOU KNOW — Who wrote 'Twas the Night Before Christmas?

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By BILL ROBERTS

Registering Car May Be Hassle For New Resident

With the holiday season upon us it shouldn't be the time for anything but good cheer.

However, in case a friend of yours answers your happy greeting with a "Bah, Humbug!," the following tale may help you understand his state of mind.

Licensing of motor vehicles is a necessary evil in society and, although always a hassle, most citizens rightly group it with other unpleasant but necessary tasks such as getting out of bed each morning.

For the new California resident who wishes to license his car for the first time in this state, it can be a mammoth nightmare.

He goes to the motor vehicle office in Corte Madera, stands in line for up to half an hour, and then is told to get his car's pollution devices updated and checked.

After spending $45 for new equipment, he returns to the Corte Madera office, waiting in line once again.

He casts an affirmative reply to the question, "Have you got the pollution control slip." And as the examiner nods approval he thinks it will only be minutes before he receives new license plates.

WRONG AGAIN and he waits.

Since he also wants to put his wife's name on the registration (having been married just a short time), he is given some forms and told to take them home for his wife's signature.

By his third trip to Corte Madera he has just about given up hope of ever receiving the license and almost needs a file folder to carry all the papers he has accumulated for the registration folks.

Becoming accustomed to the Department of Motor Vehicles' usual format, he waits in line.

The examiner tells him he has all the necessary information to get the license. But as she checks over the application with a glance she spies it, the snag he knew had to appear to cause more trouble.

It seems his out-of-state ownership certificate and out-of-state registration don't match as to the serial number of his car. His mind panics as he wonders if the registration clerk doesn't think he stole the car, altered its serial number and was involved in some grand plot.

Finally it happens. The clerk breaks into a holiday smile and laughs at the mistake, obviously a clerical error caused by omitting one number and misreading a second.

But as she reaches under the counter he panics once again, thinking she has tripped a silent alarm and the police will soon appear to arrest him for something.

Instead he is handed a new license plate and tools to install it.

The ordeal is over and there are holiday greetings all around.

BEING OPEN MINDED he realizes that the motor vehicle clerks he has hassled with must put up with complaining people like himself all year long. And the experience for him has come only once during the year.

And, after all, they promise the renewal of the in-state license will be much easier next year.

I found it to be quite an experience and with nearly a week to soften my attitude I have quite saying "Bah, Humbug!" each time I see the new blue and gold plates on my car.

Hungary Wants No Watergate

The ministry had ruled that from Jan. 1, stenographers be replaced at trials by tape recorders.

But following protests that recordings of legal proceedings could accidentally be erased, the ministry has ordered that only special erase-proof machines be used in court.

Anti-Soviet Book Block Is Planned

MOSCOW (UPI) — A copyright agency official has indicated the Soviet Union will try to block world publication abroad of works it considers anti-Soviet, especially books by Nobel Prize winning author Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn.

The official said the government intends to use its new membership in the Univeral Copyright Convention to block publication by acting as Soviet authors' sole agents in selling books overseas.

"The Soviet author in accordance with our laws must coordinate this (copyright) question with us," said Boris D. Pankin, the copyright agency chairman, in an interview.

He said his group now is the only legal Soviet body authorized to deal with foreign publishers. It was established last September after the Soviet Union joined the world convention May 27.

Referring to Solzhenitsyn, Pankin said: "Our attitude toward him, or more precisely to his works, those which we know about, is not changed. We shall never welcome any anti-Soviet-works, no matter whose they are."

Solzhenitsyn has said he has many unpublished manuscripts, but it is not known if copies already have been sent abroad.

Pankin left no doubt his agency would prosecute foreign publishers of works it did not approve and Soviets supplying them—the publishers for copyright infringement under the convention and the Soviets for violation of Russian law.

Pankin said no author had the right to "bypass our representation and approach a publisher directly and give him permission to publish. If he does so, he is violating Soviet law."

He said any deal made directly with a foreign publisher would be invalid. "We shall ask the publishers and if they are not able to explain how they received the manuscript and what right they have to use it, the publishing house will bear the legal responsibility," he said.

A Recess In Carpenters' Court Case

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A contempt of court hearing in the wildcat strike by Northern California carpenters has been recessed until Thursday.

The carpenters walked off the job five weeks ago to protest the refusal of the cost of living council to allow them a negotiated pay increase.

A construction superintendent told the court yesterday he saw Jack Melton, a union business agent, talking with idled workers in San Francisco on Nov. 19, three days after an injunction had been issued barring strike activity.

The witness, Patrick Conway, said he asked Melton: "When are your men going back to work?"

He said Melton answered: "When you pay the 65 cents and all the retroactive pay."

Melton is business agent for Piledrivers Local 34, an affiliate of the carpenters union.

American citizens contribute $19.6 billion to charity annually
It's a fact. But not likely to be a headline. Violence and scandal are the staples of news; individual charity and kindness go unremarked. This is not to make any Pollyannish assumption that violence does not exist in harrowing abundance. In perspective we must see that violence is in all of us. So is God. The time is now to try His way, in concert, on a scale never before attempted. Get together with your family, friends, neighbors, or co-workers to discuss the problems of violence and how you can work together to help solve them. For a helpful discussion guide and further information write: Religion In American Life, 475 Fifth Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017. Plan an active role in your community and help show the way.

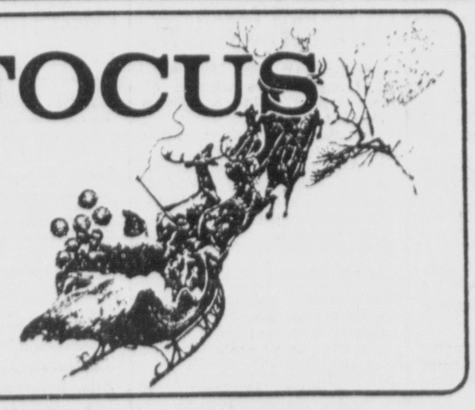
FOCUS


Night Before Christmas
'Twas the Night Before Christmas was written in 1822 by the same man who later authored something called George Castriot, Surnamed Scanderbeg, King of Albania. Needless to say, he is best remembered for his famous Christmas ballad. The professor of Oriental and Greek literature also compiled A Compendious Lexicon of the Hebrew Language. The author penned 'Twas the Night Before Christmas for his own children, but it was printed the next year anonymously and without his knowledge. Entitled A Visit From Saint Nicholas — rather than 'Twas the Night Before Christmas, it was finally published by the author in 1844 as one of a collection of poems.

DO YOU KNOW — Who wrote 'Twas the Night Before Christmas?

FRIDAY'S ANSWER — Nast attacked William Marcy — "Boss" — Tweed.

WHO IS GOING WHERE?

The scene is a roadway in Salt Lake City. A high school student who asked to remain unidentified, is trying to get to Florida and poke some fun at President Nixon at the same time. Nixon and his family may spend some time in Florida during the holidays but the President hasn't decided whether the family will go by train or plane.

Big Labor Believes In No-Fare Transit

By ED TOWNSEND
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK CITY — Buses and subways should be free. So says US big labor — the AFL-CIO.

The federation believes that elimination of fare boxes and turnstiles is needed to preserve transit service. A fare-free policy would "go a long way toward tearing down ghetto walls," labor leaders assert.

The proposal, endorsed unanimously by the AFL-CIO's biennial convention in Bal Harbour, Fla., last month, is based on recommendations by the Amalgamated Transit Union, an affiliate that for some time has been urging a free-transit system.

Such a system is vital, they say, not only for necessary service but also to relieve congestion, pollution, "and other ills the auto brings with it."

John M. Elliott, president of the transit union, has called on the US Department of Transportation to give "serious consideration" to such a plan.

The idea is not a new one. The transit union and AFL-CIO have advocated fare-free transit for the past three or four years, but never as urgently as now. They see such a system as one of the surest ways to bring about dramatic increases in transit use and consequent reductions in the use of private motor vehicles.

But they acknowledge the likelihood of "an adverse and skeptical reaction" to the proposal, particularly from tax- and budget-conscious officials and voters.

Under such a plan, financing would have to be from public funds, as police, fire, sanitation, and other public services are financed.

The AFL-CIO says this is not enough: As in the New York City subway and bus systems, fares (now 35 cents) seldom meet operating costs for services (New York riders are threatened with increases to 60 cents), and transit crises are frequent and often critical.

As long as there are fares, says AFL-CIO, "transit will continue to decline." So it proposes:

Legislation to provide financial assistance to mass transit from general tax revenues, to make fare-free service possible.

A demonstration project by the Department of Transportation to finance and test fare-free systems and financing methods for at least two years in one or more metropolitan areas.

In supporting these proposals, Elliott says the number of riders using mass transit has been declining steadily while fares have been rising and services deteriorating. He estimates that 94 per cent of all daily passenger trips in many large urban areas are by automobile, with only about 4 per cent by buses or other forms of local transit.

Such a figure reflects the growing decentralization of homes, retailing, business and industry. Mass-transit service to their suburban locations is often inadequate, usually on secondary or peripheral routes that produce less revenue and are costly to operate; private transportation becomes the only quick sure way to go and return.

And, said Elliott, as more people use private cars, transit service on such routes is likely to be cut back, perpetuating inefficiencies.

The transit union president suggested that a no-fare system would generate a substantial increase in patronage because it would "remove entirely passenger resistance to the fare-box charge as a constraint upon regular maximum use of the system"; service would be viewed by riders as "prepaid, supported by their taxes."

Free transit would be financed primarily through local taxes, although state and even federal funds might be involved in some areas. Elliott has estimated that the costs in additional taxes per household would not exceed present fare or auto costs.

John A. Volpe, as transportation secretary in 1969, also suggested that public transit be looked on "much like any other public service . . . The cost of public education is not met by students or parents, and we don't expect user charges for police or fire protection.

"Their services are considered so important that the entire community must agree to share the burden of supporting them."

Arguments Over Forestry Techniques Keep Raging

By PETER TONGE
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

EUGENE, Ore. — The giant hemlock stood tall, if somewhat tattered, here on the western slopes of Oregon's Cascade Mountains. For possibly better than 300 years it had occupied this particular spot and now it was to come down.

In the hands of an experienced logger a chain saw is a devastatingly efficient instrument. Three deft cuts and in a matter of minutes the forest giant, five feet across the towering well over 100 feet into the air, fell with a rending crash, the top 20 feet shattering on impact like an overripe melon.

A dying tree was being taken from the forest so that useful fiber might be harvested before it was all lost to insects and decay and so that growing conditions for nearby trees might be improved.

In recent years logging has become a touchy subject in the United States. While the forest-products industry cites a need for still greater timber harvests, environmental groups warn of a serious threat to the country's forests. They would like the tightest of controls clamped on all logging operations.

Even selective harvesting, such as the example just described in which only individual trees are removed from the forest offends some of these groups. And clear-cutting, where acres are stripped of trees in one progressive sweep across the land, dismays them all.

Commercial foresters say both methods are necessary, and that nowhere in this day and age should a forest be left entirely to the ravages — or, depending on how you view the subject, the management — of nature.

While environmentalists talk of vanishing forests, commercial foresters fear dwindling timber supplies. Both groups want trees. But they disagree sharply on the utilization and management of timberlands.

Commercial foresters talk ever more frequently these days of intensive forestry. They see trees as renewable resource which must be managed much like any agricultural crop.

They talk of thinning and fertilizing, of even-aged forests, and the introduction of new "super trees" bred for growth potential and insect resistance. In some instances they think of monoculture — the growing of a single species on large tracts of land.

This is the approach the timber supply industry is beginning to adopt on industry-owned lands. It is a practice the industry would like extended to some federally owned commercial forests as well.

The nation, indeed the whole world, is too short of timber and timberlands to adopt less than intensive production practices, the industry feels.

Much of this is anathema to the environmentalists. They contend that the natural forest is a "beautiful" forest — and that such areas are becoming increasingly rare.

Moreover, they d not believe the nation's timber needs are as considerable as the industry makes out. In particular they do not want intensive forestry practiced on federal lands, nor do they want as much timber taken from these lands as the government's "allowable cut" permits.

These then are the opposing views of those sides most intimately involved in what is now being termed America's tall timber controversy. Laymen stand in the middle, trying to reconcile the seemingly contradictory statements that come from each side.

When Columbus landed in the New World, almost half of what is now the United States was covered with natural forest. Today some 75 per cent of that forest cover remains — or something like 754 million acres. One-third of the American forest more than equals the size of the Scandinavian countries (Norway, Sweden, Denmark, and Iceland) with Holland, Belgium, Austria, and Switzerland thrown in.

The remaining almost 500 million acres are designated commercial forest. Almost 60 per cent of that is owned by private individuals. The federal government and other public bodies (towns and state agencies and the like) own 28 per cent. The forest products industry comes in a distant third with 13 per cent or some 67 million acres.

But forest lands are steadily disappearing — to expanding freeways, power-line rights-of-way, and suburban sprawl. Exact figures are not available, but some estimates suggest the going rate might be as high as a million acres a year. Right now the US has approximately 2.4 acres of forest land per capita. Population expansion alone is likely to bring that down to 1.9 acres by the year 2000.

The urgent need then is to grow much more timber on existing lands, the industry contends. It can be done with intensive forestry. Foresters believe timber production could triple this way.

To a degree, industry-owned lands is proving the point: 13 per cent of the commercial forest is producing 26 per cent of the nation's timber. And more timber is being grown on these lands in one year than is currently being harvested. The forest is expanding, in fact.

Intensive forestry generally means clear-cutting large areas of trees, reseeding from the air or possibly hand-planting of young nursery-grown stock for even quicker reproduction. Once every five years fertilizer is applied to the intensive forest — about as much as the home gardener spreads over his lawn every spring.

Thinning and later selective harvesting takes place. The remaining trees, freed from intensive competition for light, air, and nutrients, frequently triple the growth rates of a natural forest.

Selective harvesting continues until finally the area is clear-cut again and the whole process begins once more. A clear-cut, say the foresters, must be seen as the start of a new high-yield forest.

It certainly does not look that way at the start. A recently logged piece of land is ugly and desolate-looking until new cover takes over — grasses and shrubs at first, and finally trees again. But then a rehabilitated piece of cut-over land with a mixture of young trees and grasses is more attractive to game and birds than the mature forest.

Even so, environmentalists want nothing of clear-cutting or any intensive forestry approach in the national forests.

The crux of the dispute is a totally different philosophy over the place and purpose of forest lands in the United States; whether it should be largely left to play a natural part in the scheme of things or be managed by man for his optimum economic benefit. The designated wilderness areas and the intensive forests are the products of these two approaches.

The Sierra Club's Gordon Robinson, formerly a commercial forester himself, contends forests thrive best where there are no people "and hence no forestry."

The natural forest thrives on soil made rich by the decay of previous generations of trees and the annual supply of leaf-mold. High-yield forestry threatens this soil fertility, he maintains, by removing a good deal of what would naturally enrich the forest soil.

Particularly, he is against monoculture and even-aged forests. A naturally mixed forest in both tree species and ages is less susceptible to the ravages of fire and the attacks of insects and fungus, he says.

George Cheek, executive vice president of the American Forest Institute, replies that the aim of the breeding programs is to produce trees resistant to these problems.

Young trees, Cheek admits, are more vunerable to fire. "Their bark is much thinner, and they are thus more readily damaged by the flames." On the other hand, he says that an intensively managed forest is kept largely clear of the debris in which a fire can start.

Cheek also suggests that the managed forest, even one that is subjected to clear-cutting, provides better recreational areas than the virgin forest where "you can't see the sky, you can't see the horizon, and you can't figure out where you are."

Be that as it may, environmental groups assert that intensive forestry is the "antithesis of conservation, inviting environmental disaster on much of the national forest."

The real reason behind industry's desire for more logs from federal lands, say environmentalists, is its need to keep timber in abundant supply and therefore competitive with substitute materials. If lumber prices rise much more, aluminum, plastic, and concrete may well replace it in many instances. They point out the lumber use in the US has remained constant since 1910.

True enough, the foresters say. But wood is a renewable resource. The substitute materials arenot. And the manufacture of substitute materials consumes vast amounts of energy which adds to the country's pollution load.

Says Guy Sabin, assistant professor of forestry at Clemson University, Clemson, S.C.:

"It takes approximately 430 kilowatt hours of energy to process a ton of wood into useful products. Processing a ton of steel requires 2,700 kilowatt hours — more than six times as much energy; and aluminum requires approximately 17,000 kilowatt hours — or more than 40 times as much energy as wood."

Then, too, for every ton of finished lumber only 3.4 tons of raw material is processed. For steel and aluminum the ratio is 10-1 and 15-1 respectively.

As to the fact that timber harvets have remained static over six decades, the industry has this to say:

In 1910, more felled timber was left in the forest than taken out of it because the limited technology of the day meant that only a relatively small part of the tree could be handled properly.

Also in those days most of the forest harvest was consumed as fuel — to fire furnaces, heat homes, and cook with. The steady rise in wood products since that time has merely taken up that portion of the harvest previously left in the woods or consumed as fuel.

That reserve has now been taken up. The future increase in wood products must come from still more efficient use of logged timber and from increased harvests.

And so the arguments go on.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Overdoses Of Some Vitamins Can be Painful And Dangerous

Some vitamins can be taken with impunity. They are well tolerated and the excess usually is eliminated. But excess amounts of vitamins A and D are toxic and potentially dangerous. A daily dosage of more than 25,000 U.S.P. units of A or 2,000 of D may do harm, especially in youngsters whose tolerance is less. These are maximal levels. According to the latest government recommendations, vitamin A for children should not exceed 2,500 I.U. daily. For adults, the limit of vitamin A is 5,000 I.U. daily. For vitamin D, the recommended daily intake is 400 I.U. for children.

THE PROLONGED daily consumption of 50,000 or more units of vitamin A by children leads to weakness, weigh loss, irritability, fretfulness, itching, peeling of the skin, and cracking and bleeding of the lips.

More serious signs of toxicity develop when the cause is not recognized and the vitamin A is not discontinued. The liver enlarges, the hair falls out, and the bones swell and become tender. This was noted in the cod liver or halibut oil days when parents thought if a little was good, a lot was better.

Eskimos never eat polar bear liver because they know better. The husky dogs also avoid it instinctively. Food is scarce near the North Pole and occasionally a hunter or trapper is tempted to eat a large portion of polar bear liver.

SHORTLY THEREAFTER he becomes drowsy, complains of headache, vomits, and the skin peels off. Why? He has consumed up to 10 million I.U. of vitamin A and is suffering from acute poisoning.

Whale liver is said to be even richer in vitamin A. The liver of whale contains more than two pounds of vitamin A. Of course, this liver also weighs a ton and it is doubtful whether anyone could possibly eat that much, even with onions or bacon.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902. Telephone inquires will not be answered.

'KIDDIE COCKTAILS'

Mrs. D. Y. writes: Sunday is our day to eat out. My husband and I have a martini and he insists on ordering "kiddie cocktails" for the children (ages 5 and 7). I've asked him repeatedly not to do this as I feel it sets a pattern that could become a problem when they are older. Children are imitators and I don't want them to get the idea that dinner and drinks go hand in hand. Do you think I'm being overly concerned about a little ginger ale and grenadine, etc.?

REPLY

Some psychologists claim that serving these nonalcoholic drinks (ginger ale, cola, or grenadine) encourages children to adopt adult drinking habits. In this respect, it is not advisable, despite the fact it is harmless. Many Europeans give their children a sip of the real McCoy with the understanding they will learn how to drink in moderation.

SINUS CAVITIES

B. A. writes: Do the sinus glands serve any worthwhile purpose?

REPLY

Sinuses are not glands, and let's be thankful, because our sinuses and our glands cause enough trouble. The sinuses that connect with the nose are hollow spaces in the bones of the face and skull. They warm inspired air and because they are hollow, lessen the weight of the bones of the skull.

BLEEDING SOURCE

D.G. writes: If a person bleeds, how is he to know whether it is due to ulcer, hemorrhoids, or a diverticulum?

REPLY

He will never know where the bleeding is coming from unless X-rays are taken or the lower intestine is examined via a sigmoidoscope. Bright red blood usually means hemorrhage from the lower intestine or rectum. Blood from the stomach turns black when it comes into contact with the acid in the gastric juice. As a result, the stools are tarry in color.

TONSIL INFECTION

REPLY

They usually return to normal size after a bout of tonsilitis, unless the bacteria become entrenced or an abscess forms within the tonsil. In time, they tend to shrink and by adulthood are small.

PLAYFUL NIP

T.S. writes: If a dog that has been inoculated against rabies playfully nips a person, is there any danger of rabies?

REPLY

Not as a rule.

INDUCED INSANITY

A reader writes: On a recent TV show, the wife was feeding her husband pills to make him lose his mind. Would this be possible in real life? I have no intentions of doing this to my husband, but am curious.

REPLY

Yes. Certain chemicals produce hallucinations, depression, or other symptoms of mental disorders. They are not recommended for this purpose but the TV medical shows must be allowed considerable latitude to be of interest. Drama such as this is rarely encountered in real life. Did the author of the play indicate where the sinister wife obtained the pills?

INSTANT GRAY HAIR

Miss H. W. writes: Can a person's hair turn white overnight?

REPLY

There are reports of hair that turned gray within a short period of time after fright or other severe emotional upheaval. However, the graying process usually takes longer.

WHO IS GOING WHERE?

The scene is a roadway in Salt Lake City. A high school student who asked to remain unidentified, is trying to get to Florida and poke some fun at President Nixon at the same time. Nixon and his family may spend some time in Florida during the holidays but the President hasn't decided whether the family will go by train or plane.

Big Labor Believes In No-Fare Transit

By ED TOWNSEND
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

NEW YORK CITY — Buses and subways should be free. So says US big labor — the AFL-CIO.

The federation believes that elimination of fare boxes and turnstiles is needed to preserve transit service. A fare-free policy would "go a long way toward tearing down ghetto walls," labor leaders assert.

The proposal, endorsed unanimously by the AFL-CIO's biennial convention in Bal Harbour, Fla., last month, is based on recommendations by the Amalgamated Transit Union, an affiliate that for some time has been urging a free-transit system.

Such a system is vital, they say, not only for necessary service but also to relieve congestion, pollution, "and other ills the auto brings with it."

John M. Elliott, president of the transit union, has called on the US Department of Transportation to give "serious consideration" to such a plan.

The idea is not a new one. The transit union and AFL-CIO have advocated fare-free transit for the past three or four years, but never as urgently as now. They see such a system as one of the surest ways to bring about dramatic increases in transit use and consequent reductions in the use of private motor vehicles.

But they acknowledge the likelihood of "an adverse and skeptical reaction" to the proposal, particularly from tax- and budget-conscious officials and voters.

Under such a plan, financing would have to be from public funds, as police, fire, sanitation, and other public services are financed.

The AFL-CIO says this is not enough: As in the New York City subway and bus systems, fares (now 35 cents) seldom meet operating costs for services (New York riders are threatened with increases to 60 cents), and transit crises are frequent and often critical.

As long as there are fares, says AFL-CIO, "transit will continue to decline." So it proposes:

Legislation to provide financial assistance to mass transit from general tax revenues, to make fare-free service possible.

The prompt acquisition of all private transit companies by public bodies.

A demonstration project by the Department of Transportation to finance and test fare-free systems and financing methods for at least two years in one or more metropolitan areas.

In supporting these proposals, Elliott says the number of riders using mass transit has been declining steadily while fares have been rising and services deteriorating. He estimates that 94 per cent of all daily passenger trips in many large urban areas are by automobile, with only about 4 per cent by buses or other forms of local transit.

Such a figure reflects the growing decentralization of homes, retailing, business and industry. Mass-transit service to their suburban locations is often inadequate, usually on secondary or peripheral routes that produce less revenue and are costly to operate; private transportation becomes the only quick sure way to go and return.

And, said Elliott, as more people use private cars, transit service on such routes is likely to be cut back, perpetuating inefficiencies.

The transit union president suggested that a no-fare system would generate a substantial increase in patronage because it would "remove entirely passenger resistance to the farebox charge as a constraint upon regular maximum use of the system"; service would be viewed by riders as "prepaid, supported by their taxes."

Free transit would be financed primarily through local taxes, although state and even federal funds might be involved in some areas. Elliott has estimated that the costs in additional taxes per household would not exceed present fare or auto costs.

John A. Volpe, as transportation secretary in 1969, also suggested that public transit be looked on "much like any other public service . . . The cost of public education is not met by students or parents, and we don't expect user charges for police or fire protection.

"Their services are considered so important that the entire community must agree to share the burden of supporting them."

Arguments Over Forestry Techniques Keep Raging

By PETER TONGE
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

EUGENE, Ore. — The giant hemlock stood tall, if somewhat tattered, here on the western slopes of Oregon's Cascade Mountains. For possibly better than 300 years it had occupied this particular spot and now it was to come down.

In the hands of an experienced logger a chain saw is a devastatingly efficient instrument. Three deft cuts and in a matter of minutes the forest giant, five feet across the towering well over 100 feet into the air, fell with a rending crash, the top 20 feet shattering on impact like an overripe melon.

A dying tree was being taken from the forest so that useful fiber might be harvested before it was all lost to insects and decay and so that growing conditions for nearby trees might be improved.

In recent years logging has become a touchy subject in the United States. While the forest-products industry cites a need for still greater timber harvests, environmental groups warn of a serious threat to the country's forests. They would like the tightest of controls clamped on all logging operations.

Even selective harvesting, such as the example just described in which only individual trees are removed from the forest offends some of these groups. And clear-cutting, where acres are stripped of trees in one progressive sweep across the land, dismays them all.

Commercial foresters say both methods are necessary, and that nowhere in this day and age should a forest be left entirely to the ravages — or, depending on how you view the subject, the management — of nature.

While environmentalists talk of vanishing forests, commercial foresters fear dwindling timber supplies. Both groups want trees. But they disagree sharply on the utilization and management of timberlands.

Commercial foresters talk ever more frequently these days of intensive forestry. They see trees as renewable resource which must be managed much like any agricultural crop.

They talk of thinning and fertilizing, of even-aged forests, and the introduction of new "super trees" bred for growth potential and insect resistance. In some instances they think of monoculture — the growing of a single species on large tracts of land.

This is the approach the timber supply industry is beginning to adopt on industry-owned lands. It is a practice the industry would like extended to some federally owned commercial forests as well.

The nation, indeed the whole world, is too short of timber and timberlands to adopt less than intensive production practices, the industry feels.

Much of this is anathema to the environmentalists. They contend that the natural forest is a "beautiful" forest — and that such areas are becoming increasingly rare.

Moreover, they d not believe the nation's timber needs are as considerable as the industry makes out. In particular they do not want intensive forestry practiced on federal lands, nor do they want as much timber taken from these lands as the government's "allowable cut" permits.

These then are the opposing views of those sides most intimately involved in what is now being termed America's tall timber controversy. Laymen stand in the middle, trying to reconcile the seemingly contradictory statements that come from each side.

When Columbus landed in the New World, almost half of what is now the United States was covered with natural forest. Today some 75 per cent of that forest cover remains — or something like 754 million acres. One-third of the American forest more than equals the size of the Scandinavian countries (Norway, Sweden, Denmark, and Iceland) with Holland, Belgium, Austria, and Switzerland thrown in.

The remaining almost 500 million acres are designated commercial forest. Almost 60 per cent of that is owned by private individuals. The federal government and other public bodies (towns and state agencies and the like) own 28 per cent. The forest products industry comes in a distant third with 13 per cent or some 67 million acres.

But forest lands are steadily disappearing — to expanding freeways, power-line rights-of-way, and suburban sprawl. Exact figures are not available, but some estimates suggest the going rate might be as high as a million acres a year. Right now the US has approximately 2.4 acres of forest land per capita. Population expansion alone is likely to bring that down to 1.9 acres by the year 2000.

Meanwhile, a government estimate suggests the need for forest products will double in the next 25 years.

The urgent need then is to grow much more timber on existing lands, the industry contends. It can be done with intensive forestry. Foresters believe timber production could triple this way.

To a degree, industry-owned lands is proving the point: 13 per cent of the commercial forest is producing 26 per cent of the nation's timber. And more timber is being grown on these lands in one year than is currently being harvested. The forest is expanding, in fact.

Intensive forestry generally means clear-cutting large areas of trees, reseeding from the air or possibly hand-planting of young nursery-grown stock for even quicker reproduction. Once every five years fertilizer is applied to the intensive forest — about as much as the home gardener spreads over his lawn every spring.

Thinning and later selective harvesting takes place. The remaining trees, freed from intensive competition for light, air, and nutrients, frequently triple the growth rates of a natural forest.

Selective harvesting continues until finally the area is clear-cut again and the whole process begins once more. A clear-cut, say the foresters, must be seen as the start of a new high-yield forest.

It certainly does not look that way at the start. A recently logged piece of land is ugly and desolate-looking until new cover takes over — grasses and shrubs at first, and finally trees again. But then a rehabilitated piece of cut-over land with a mixture of young trees and grasses is more attractive to game and birds than the mature forest.

Even so, environmentalists want nothing of clear-cutting or any intensive forestry approach in the national forests.

The crux of the dispute is a totally different philosophy over the place and purpose of forest lands in the United States; whether it should be largely left to play a natural part in the scheme of things or be managed by man for his optimum economic benefit. The designated wilderness areas and the intensive forests are the products of these two approaches.

The Sierra Club's Gordon Robinson, formerly a commercial forester himself, contends forests thrive best where there are no people "and hence no forestry."

The natural forest thrives on soil made rich by the decay of previous generations of trees and the annual supply of leaf-mold. High-yield forestry threatens this soil fertility, he maintains, by removing a good deal of what would naturally enrich the forest soil.

Particularly, he is against monoculture and even-aged forests. A naturally mixed forest in both tree species and ages is less susceptible to the ravages of fire and the attacks of insects and fungus, he says.

Robinson sees intensive forestry as a still relatively new form of agriculture with an as yet largely unproven record.

George Cheek, executive vice president of the American Forest Institute, replies that the aim of the breeding programs is to produce trees resistant to these problems.

Young trees, Cheek admits, are more vunerable to fire. "Their bark is much thinner, and they are thus more readily damaged by the flames." On the other hand, he says that an intensively managed forest is kept largely clear of the debris in which a fire can start.

Cheek also suggests that the managed forest, even one that is subjected to clear-cutting, provides better recreational areas than the virgin forest where "you can't see the sky, you can't see the horizon, and you can't figure out where you are."

Be that as it may, environmental groups assert that intensive forestry is the "antithesis of conservation, inviting environmental disaster on much of the national forest."

The real reason behind industry's desire for more logs from federal lands, say environmentalists, is its need to keep timber in abundant supply and therefore competitive with substitute materials. If lumber prices rise much more, aluminum, plastic, and concrete may well replace it in many instances. They point out the lumber use in the US has remained constant since 1910.

True enough, the foresters say. But wood is a renewable resource. The substitute materials arenot. And the manufacture of substitute materials consumes vast amounts of energy which adds to the country's pollution load.

Says Guy Sabin, assistant professor of forestry at Clemson University, Clemson, S.C.:

"It takes approximately 430 kilowatt hours of energy to process a ton of wood into useful products. Processing a ton of steel requires 2,700 kilowatt hours — more than six times as much energy; and aluminum requires approximately 17,000 kilowatt hours — or more than 40 times as much energy as wood."

Then, too, for every ton of finished lumber only 3.4 tons of raw material is processed. For steel and aluminum the ratio is 10-1 and 15-1 respectively.

As to the fact that timber harvets have remained static over six decades, the industry has this to say:

In 1910, more felled timber was left in the forest than taken out of it because the limited technology of the day meant that only a relatively small part of the tree could be handled properly.

Also in those days most of the forest harvest was consumed as fuel — to fire furnaces, heat homes, and cook with. The steady rise in wood products since that time has merely taken up that portion of the harvest previously left in the woods or consumed as fuel.

That reserve has now been taken up. The future increase in wood products must come from still more efficient use of logged timber and from increased harvests.

And so the arguments go on.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Overdoses Of Some Vitamins Can be Painful And Dangerous

Some vitamins can be taken with impunity. They are well tolerated and the excess usually is eliminated. But excess amounts of vitamins A and D are toxic and potentially dangerous. A daily dosage of more than 25,000 U.S.P. units of A or 2,000 of D may do harm, especially in youngsters whose tolerance is less. These are maximal levels. According to the latest government recommendations, vitamin A for children should not exceed 2,500 I.U. daily. For adults, the limit of vitamin A is 5,000 I.U. daily. For vitamin D, the recommended daily intake is 400 I.U. for children.

THE PROLONGED daily consumption of 50,000 or more units of vitamin A by children leads to weakness, weigh loss, irritability, fretfulness, itching, peeling of the skin, and cracking and bleeding of the lips.

More serious signs of toxicity develop when the cause is not recognized and the vitamin A is not discontinued. The liver enlarges, the hair falls out, and the bones swell and become tender. This was noted in the cod liver or halibut oil days when parents thought if a little was good, a lot was better.

Eskimos never eat polar bear liver because they know better. The husky dogs also avoid it instinctively. Food is scarce near the North Pole and occasionally a hunter or trapper is tempted to eat a large portion of polar bear liver.

SHORTLY THEREAFTER he becomes drowsy, complains of headache, vomits, and the skin peels off. Why? He has consumed up to 10 million I.U. of vitamin A and is suffering from acute poisoning.

Whale liver is said to be even richer in vitamin A. The liver of whale contains more than two pounds of vitamin A. Of course, this liver also weighs a ton and it is doubtful whether anyone could possibly eat that much, even with onions or bacon.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902. Telephone inquires will not be answered.

'KIDDIE COCKTAILS'

Mrs. D. Y. writes: Sunday is our day to eat out. My husband and I have a martini and he insists on ordering "kiddie cocktails" for the children (ages 5 and 7). I've asked him repeatedly not to do this as I feel it sets a pattern that could become a problem when they are older. Children are imitators and I don't want them to get the idea that dinner and drinks go hand in hand. Do you think I'm being overly concerned about a little ginger ale and grenadine, etc.?

REPLY

Some psychologists claim that serving these nonalcoholic drinks (ginger ale, cola, or grenadine) encourages children to adopt adult drinking habits. In this respect, it is not advisable, despite the fact it is harmless. Many Europeans give their children a sip of the real McCoy with the understanding they will learn how to drink in moderation.

SINUS CAVITIES

B. A. writes: Do the sinus glands serve any worthwhile purpose?

REPLY

Sinuses are not glands, and let's be thankful, because our sinuses and our glands cause enough trouble. The sinuses that connect with the nose are hollow spaces in the bones of the face and skull. They warm inspired air and because they are hollow, lessen the weight of the bones of the skull.

BLEEDING SOURCE

D.G. writes: If a person bleeds, how is he to know whether it is due to ulcer, hemorrhoids, or a diverticulum?

REPLY

He will never know where the bleeding is coming from unless X-rays are taken or the lower intestine is examined via a sigmoidoscope. Bright red blood usually means hemorrhage from the lower intestine or rectum. Blood from the stomach turns black when it comes into contact with the acid in the gastric juice. As a result, the stools are tarry in color.

TONSIL INFECTION

REPLY

They usually return to normal size after a bout of tonsilitis, unless the bacteria become entrenced or an abscess forms within the tonsil. In time, they tend to shrink and by adulthood are small.

PLAYFUL NIP

T.S. writes: If a dog that has been inoculated against rabies playfully nips a person, is there any danger of rabies?

REPLY

Not as a rule.

INDUCED INSANITY

A reader writes: On a recent TV show, the wife was feeding her husband pills to make him lose his mind. Would this be possible in real life? I have no intentions of doing this to my husband, but am curious.

REPLY

Yes. Certain chemicals produce hallucinations, depression, or other symptoms of mental disorders. They are not recommended for this purpose but the TV medical shows must be allowed considerable latitude to be of interest. Drama such as this is rarely encountered in real life. Did the author of the play indicate where the sinister wife obtained the pills?

INSTANT GRAY HAIR

Miss H. W. writes: Can a person's hair turn white overnight?

REPLY

There are reports of hair that turned gray within a short period of time after fright or other severe emotional upheaval. However, the graying process usually takes longer.

High Court Rulings Lean To Authority

By CHARLOTTE MOULTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, with President Nixon's four appointees in the ascendancy, is moving into 1974 with steady support for governmental authority when it collides with individual rights.

A 6-3 voting pattern developed under Chief Justice Warren E. Burger has surfaced noticeably in this kind of case since the 1973-74 term started in October. The Court under Burger has not directly reversed the famous individual liberties decisions handed down in the era of retired Chief Justice Earl Warren. But decisions based on related aspects of the same principles often go against the individual.

For instance, in the most outstanding of the handful of opinions handed down this term, the six-man majority strengthened the power of police to search persons without a warrant. In two test cases, the individuals were searched and convicted of narcotic violations after being stopped on relatively minor traffic violations.

The Nixon appointees in addition to Burger and Rehnquist who seem to be shaping a new legal slant for the Court are Justices Harry A. Blackmun and Lewis F. Powell Jr. They almost always get the support of Justice Byron R. White and often that of Justice Potter Stewart.

What remains of the "Warren Court" is composed of Justices William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall. They have been in the minority in a number of weather vane rulings.

This term, the six-man majority approved a jury instruction for state trial judges which has been widely condemned for federal courts.

In another test case, they made it harder in certain circumstances to file a single suit in a federal court on behalf of all persons in a like situation — the "class suit" designed to save time and money for the litigants and the courts.

The lineup falls apart in many other types of cases. Further, a major constitutional showdown which had been anticipated by many courtwatchers on presidential secrecy of the Watergate tapes dissolved at the lower court level.

Other profound issues raised by former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew were shelved when he resigned and pleaded no contest to income tax wrongdoing.

The President's authority to impound congressionally appropriated funds was put directly to the justices in October but they decided to let lesser tribunals have their say first.

As a result the court is busy accepting and hearing the normal collection of cases —all important in their own way — dealing with subjects like women's rights, obscenity, school desegregation, wiretapping, military law, voting and juvenile rights.

The flood of incoming cases continues to mount but the proposal of a committee headed by Prof. Paul A. Freund of Harvard Law School to establish a mini-court for screening purposes has not achieved any momentum. Several present and past members of the court, including Warren, have vigorously opposed the idea.

Nevertheless several other proposals are in the air and the discussion can be expected to continue. Burger himself has said he does not propose to let the matter drop.

None have been on the sick list recently. Douglas, 75, who has had a heart pacer in his chest for some time, says he is in better health than his doctor is.

Nor have any suggested they are ready to retire. Douglas could have done so 10 years ago at full salary and Brennan, 67, could have retired in 1971. Both are Democrats and presumably are reluctant to being succeeded by a Nixon appointee.

Blackmun, 65, who served on the 8th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals before coming to the Supreme Court in 1970, is eligible for retirement in 1974. A meticulous worker, he might find relief from the Court's overwhelming case load an attractive prospect.

Despite its action last June enlarging the states' power to curb obscene literature and films, the Court will soon hear still another case stemming from the conviction of an Albany, Ga., theater manager for showing the movie "Carnal Knowledge."

Although the ruling could be diluted by a number of legal technicalities, state officials are hoping the Court will decide whether standards for judging obscenity are to be local or state-wide.

Theater owners say if hundreds of thousands of cities, towns and communities can set up their own obscenity standards, it will be impossible to market many outstanding films for fear of local prosecutions.

Two women's rights decisions are in the offing, both related to the treatment accorded expectant mothers. One deals with when pregnant teachers may be required to stop work; the other with whether a state may exclude normal pregnancy from its disability insurance program.

A Florida man has turned the sex equality argument around and is challenging a state law granting a $500 property tax exemption to widows but not widowers.

On the perennial question of school desegregation, the Court will look at a plan to mix Detroit's inner city schools with those in the white suburbs. The justices failed to come to grips with a similar problem in Richmond, Va., because Powell disqualified himself.

Another race argument has been taken up by a white law student who claims the University of Washington is discriminating in favor of minority groups. The outcome could affect many programs designed to provide a legal education to blacks who cannot qualify under normal entrance requirements.

Several dozen federal prosecutions are riding on decisions as to whether wiretapped evidence not obtained strictly in accordance with the 1968 Omnibus Crime Control Act may be used. The law is very specific about procedures for obtaining a judge's approval to tap.

Military law enters the picture in the case of Capt. Howard B. Levy, the Brooklyn, N.Y., dermatologist who refused to train Army medics for Vietnam duty. A lower court reversed Levy's conviction and struck down the "General Article" of the Uniform Code of Military Justice. It makes an offense "all disorders and neglects to the prejudice of the good order and discipline in the armed forces" and "all conduct of a nature to bring discredit upon the armed forces."

The Court has also agreed to examine a conflict between military and civil courts over which has jurisdiction when servicemen possess or sell drugs off base.

Another case with military facets questions whether the Constitution permits members of Congress to hold commissions in the armed forces reserves.

In the voting rights category, the Court is considering whether states may deny the vote to ex-felons and to persons in jail awaiting trial or serving misdemeanor sentences. In addition, a would-be local office holder in California says the filing fee requirement in his state discriminates against the poor.

Minority parties and independent candidates are complaining about Texas nominating procedures and a loyalty oath for political parties in Indiana is under review.

In a Wisconsin case, the Court is set to decide whether trial judges may without giving a reason deny offenders 19 to 22 the benefits of the Youth Correction Act or whether explanations subject to appellate review must be provided.

A juvenile case from Alaska focuses on the conflict between keeping a young person's criminal record secret and the right of a defendant to get the youth's testimony on the witness stand.

Economists Are In Favor Of End Of Controls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Association of Business Economists (NABE) says its approximately 900 members favor an immediate end to the administration's wage-price controls by a two to one margin.

The group said yesterday a survey of selected companies indicated that intense domestic demand coupled with controls was responsible for shortages of materials and supplies.

Supplies in tightest demand were metals, chemicals, gasoline and other fuels, lumber and wood products, engines, machinery and office equipment, NABE said.

The findings were culled from questionnaires from about 150 companies and their economists, NABE said.

Judge Now Has Missing Chariot

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Restauranteur Nick Galaxidas has located his missing "Ben Hur" chariot, but he will have to convince a judge to give it back before he can commute to work again in his gas-saving rig.

Municipal Court Judge Allen Fields yesterday said he will not release the chariot from his garage until Galaxidas can prove he owns it. "All I know is I don't know who the damn chariot belongs to," Fields said. "Just come out and show me a pink slip and it's yours."

Galaxidas said he bought the "Ben Hur" chariot for $4,000 two years ago at a MGM movie lot auction. "I don't have any papers, and MGM Studios are closed until Wednesday. And I did so want to drive my cousin around town in it," he added.

Recreation Center Open

For those who want to drop in to play shuffleboard, pool, ping pong and table games, the Mill Valley Community Recreation Center on Camino Alto will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. on Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays through Jan. 4.

The city's parks and recreation department is sponsoring a pool tournament at the center from 1 to 5 p.m. next Thursday and Friday and a ping pong tournament on Jan. 3 and 4. Deadlines for entering are Wednesday for pool and Jan. 2 for ping pong.

The department also will open the Mill Valley Middle School gymnasium from 7 to 9:30 p.m. on the same days as the center for basketball and volleyball players.

Postponement Of Hearing Is Requested

The Marin Municipal Water District board has asked the Army Corps of Engineers to postpone final hearings on the environmental impact report for the Warm Springs dam project in Sonoma County.

The report, which is being reviewed in Washington, D.C. by the Counsel of Environmental Quality, will be ready for hearings in early January. J. Dietrich Stroeh, district engineering manager, said the board on Friday asked for more time to "adequately respond" to the report. "There may be some possible conflicts," he said.

Judge Now Has Missing Chariot

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Restauranteur Nick Galaxidas has located his missing "Ben Hur" chariot, but he will have to convince a judge to give it back before he can commute to work again in his gas-saving rig.

Municipal Court Judge Allen Fields yesterday said he will not release the chariot from his garage until Galaxidas can prove he owns it. "All I know is I don't know who the damn chariot belongs to," Fields said. "Just come out and show me a pink slip and it's yours."

The two-wheeled, Roman-style chariot, with two horses attached, was found Friday in the judge's driveway after being lost for two days.

Galaxidas said he bought the "Ben Hur" chariot for $4,000 two years ago at a MGM movie lot auction. "I don't have any papers, and MGM Studios are closed until Wednesday. And I did so want to drive my cousin around town in it," he added.

Recreation Center Open

For those who want to drop in to play shuffleboard, pool, ping pong and table games, the Mill Valley Community Recreation Center on Camino Alto will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. on Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays through Jan. 4.

The city's parks and recreation department is sponsoring a pool tournament at the center from 1 to 5 p.m. next Thursday and Friday and a ping pong tournament on Jan. 3 and 4. Deadlines for entering are Wednesday for pool and Jan. 2 for ping pong.

The department also will open the Mill Valley Middle School gymnasium from 7 to 9:30 p.m. on the same days as the center for basketball and volleyball players.

Sheep Keeping Villagers Awake

UPTON-ON-SEVERN, England (UPI) — Inhabitants of this Worcestershire village claim they dont get any silent nights because of farmer Peter Badger's 800 bleating sheep.

If the council's public health officials decide there is too much baaing they will order him to quieten the sheep.

Postponement Of Hearing Is Requested

The Marin Municipal Water District board has asked the Army Corps of Engineers to postpone final hearings on the environmental impact report for the Warm Springs dam project in Sonoma County.

The report, which is being reviewed in Washington, D.C. by the Counsel of Environmental Quality, will be ready for hearings in early January. J. Dietrich Stroeh, district engineering manager, said the board on Friday asked for more time to "adequately respond" to the report. "There may be some possible conflicts," he said.
